JUAREZ WILD WITH JOY

Rebels Celebrate the Rout, Which Federal Officials Discount as an 'Orderly Evacuation.'

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, June 24.—Zacatecas has fallen. The city was captured by the Constitutionalists last night. This information was contained in an official message received at 6 o'clock this evening by Col. Tomas Ornelas, military commander of Juarez, from Gen. Orestes Pereyra, who holds the same post in Torreon.

The message read as follows:

"I have the honor to communicate to you that yesterday at 6 P. M. the important City of Zacatecas was captured by the forces of the Division of the North. We took many prisoners and captured a large quantity of ammunition and arms. There were large losses on our side.

"Gen. Trinidad Rodriguez was seriously wounded and Gen. Monclovio Herrera was slightly wounded."

On the receipt of the news Juarez went wild. The bells of the cathedral were rung, cannon boomed, and crowds paraded the streets.

Later reports show that the victory was a costly one for the rebels. Gen. Toribio Ortega, probably the strongest man in the Constitutionalist Army next to Villa, was killed; Gen. Trinidad Rodriguez is seriously wounded, and Gen. Monclovia Herrera is wounded. The dead and wounded on the rebel side number more than 2,000, according to reports.

Villa himself was not at Zacatecas when the city was taken. As late as noon today his confidential agent here, Lazaro de la Garza, received a telegram from him saying that he was at Pemiento, nine miles north of Zacatecas, and containing no news of the victory. That fighting was continuing in the streets as late as noon today, and that the Federals still controlled one of the fortified hills near the city, was the substance of other reports received. These added, however, that the capture of all the surrounding positions was but a matter of a few hours.

The hill still held by the Federals was Mena de la Carreta, to the southeast of the city. It is one of four hills that were strongly fortified, but, with the capture of the other three, it is now subject to a cross fire, and Constitutionalists here scoff at the idea of the Federals holding it long.

The reports indicate that the heaviest fighting was at the hill of La Buffa where, a week ago, Gen. Panfilo Natera was thrice repulsed, with heavy losses. Zacatecas is almost completely surrounded by hills, the pass through which the railroad runs being easily susceptible of defense. For this reason one of the hills had to be stormed before an entrance to the city could be effected.

It is known that Gen. Luis Medina Barron, the Federal commander, had recently received three large calibre guns in addition to his machine and shrapnel pieces. The storming of La Buffa, which was strongly fortified, would therefore account for the heavy loss by the rebels, which is far greater than at the battle of Torreon.

The main part of the Federal army is in full retreat to Aguascalientes. Rebel agents here say that Villa had not intended attacking until he could completely surround the city, and that the premature attack may result in the Federals again slipping through the fingers of the rebels, just as they did at Torreon, San Pedro, and Saltillo. It is also intimated that, as Villa was not at the front, the battle was fought without his sanction and was really an accident.

The Federal Consul said that he had received no word of the capture of the city, and did not believe that it had occurred. In the event that it had, he was inclined to believe that Gen. Barron had evacuated the city in an orderly manner on orders from Mexico City. He said that San Luis Potosi was the main defense of the Federal capital, and that, had Zacatecas fallen, the evacuation was in line with that ordered at Saltillo, in order to abandon outlying positions and concentrate at a point "where the combined armies of every faction of the bandits would be powerless."

Ends a Campaign of Weeks.

Gen. Panfilo Natera has been carrying on the siege of Zacatecas for many weeks. He assaulted the city a number of times without success until the main part of Villa's army was sent to aid him.

On June 21 it was announced in Mexico City that Villa had perfected plans to attack Zacatecas with 25,000 men, 51 siege guns, and 75 rapid-fire guns. On the day following it was stated that Gen. Natera had given up his command and would not take part in the siege of Zacatecas and that Villa would take charge. Gen. Villa left Torreon for the siege on June 22, and it was stated that brisk fighting was then going on between the outposts.

Villa was supposed to have reached Fresnillo, thirty-five miles from Zacatecas, on June 23, and it was said that 5,000 cavalry had been ordered to march overland to the besieged city. Arturo Elias, the Huerta Consul at El Paso, said that Villa's forces had been repulsed the day before and forced to retreat to the north with great losses of ammunition and men. Others arriving at El Paso from the south said that in three attacks on Zacatecas Gen. Natera had been driven off with the most serious losses that the Constitutionalists had yet suffered.

Zacatecas, under normal conditions, has a population of about 40,000, and is one of the important silver-mining centres of Mexico. The city was founded in 1546 and is modern, having large public buildings, an Institute of Sciences, a Mint, and the famous Calderon Theatre.

The city lies in a valley at an altitude of 8,000 feet, and is 110 miles northwest of San Luis Potosi. It is on the Mexican National Railway, which passes through Aguascalientes to Mexico City, and is about 350 miles from the capital in a straight line.

Owing to the rugged character of the country the distance by the railway line is nearly 500 miles. Zacatecas has large pottery industries, and a fine cathedral dating back to the beginning of the seventeenth century. Of late years copper mining has been taking the place of silver, of which it is estimated more than $700,000,000 worth has been produced since 1546.

Zacatecas is the capital of the State of that name, which has a population of more than 450,000.

MEXICO CITY, June 24.—Representatives from Zacatecas in the National Congress called on Señor Esteva Ruiz this evening, asking that additional forces be sent to the capital of that State for its protection against the rebels. The richer families of Zacatecas have left the city for Aguascalientes and other points.

Minister Blanquet said tonight that the fighting at Zacatecas was confined to sniping between the outposts.

SAN LUIS POTOSI EVACUATED?

Carranza Informed That Federals Have Moved to Other Towns.

SALTILLO, June 23, (Via Laredo, Texas, June 24.)—Federal troops which have been stationed at San Luis Potosi already have evacuated that town with the exception of a small garrison, according to a report by courier received at the headquarters of Gen. Carranza today. According to the report most of the Federal troops under Gen. Joaquin Maass have been sent to reinforce Aguascalientes and to garrison Queretaro. The Constitutionalists have reached a point on the railroad fifty kilometers from San Luis Potosi and are repairing the railroad as rapidly as possible.

Gen. Gonzales arrived last night with 2,000 men from Monterey. He was joined this morning by Gen. Luis Caballero, Governor of the State of Tamaulipas, and Gen. Comacho, who is operating in the State of Puebla. These Generals, with the Cabrera brothers, leaders in the State of Hidalgo, conferred today regarding the affairs of the Constitutionalists. Gonzales's 2,000 troops, it was announced, will leave for the south tomorrow. The brigade of Gen. Cesario Castro also is preparing to entrain for the south.

Gen. Carranza, it is expected, will leave in a day or two for Monterey for a long promised visit.

Anti-American Spirit Again Shown by Insults.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, June 24.—According to reports from Mexico City anti-American feeling is becoming more evident there, and the situation is considered serious. It is generally believed that mediation is bound to fail, and in that case it is expected that Huerta will commit some hostile act to bring about intervention.

Americans say that they have been subjected to many indignities in the last few days. It is now impossible for women to appear in the streets. The oldest residents say they have not known a time when the situation was more tense, and they greatly fear outrages against Americans if conditions continue as at present.

Forced Loans Keep Up Soldiers Hard Pressed by Zapatistas.

ON BOARD U. S. S. CALIFORNIA, MAZATLAN, June 24 (By Wireless to San Diego, June 24).—Conditions at Acapulco, which have long been deplorable, are gradually becoming intolerable.

In order to subsist, the Federal garrison under Gen. Salido is making forced daily loans ranging from 50 cents gold to $25 on all civilians who have that much discoverable wealth.

The rebels operating under the leadership of Zapata keep the town tightly hemmed in. The Federal troops are restless and the citizens depressed.

This was the news brought here today by the Pacific Mail liner Peru, which also carried two refugees—A. F. Flint, an American, and Dr. C. Finehout, a Frenchman. They came down to the coast at the little banana port of San Blas, where the Peru picked them up.

Question of Withdrawal Left for Decision After Internal Differences Are Composed.

NO WORD FROM CARRANZA

But Huerta Delegates Agree to Confer with His Representatives if They Come.

Special to The New York Times.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 24.—At a conference of the A B C envoys and the American and Huerta delegates, held late tonight, the protocols of agreements, heretofore reached between the Americans and Mexicans, were formally signed.

In one article of the protocols signed the United States Government agrees not to claim "a war indemnity or other international satisfaction."

This, it is learned, is intended to mean that the United States Government is to abandon its demand that the Huerta Government shall order a national salute to the Stars and Stripes on account of the indignity offered to Assistant Paymaster Copp of the United States dispatch boat Dolphin and enlisted men of that vessel at Tampico. It was the Tampico incident, as it has been called, that brought about the action of the American naval forces in capturing Vera Cruz two months ago.

The mediators and the American and Mexican delegates decided that the matter of the withdrawal of the United States forces from Vera Cruz should be left to determination in the Peace Conference after the opportunity had been given to representatives of Mexican factions to settle their internal troubles. In the meanwhile the American forces will hold Vera Cruz under the terms of the armistice now in force.

There will be no recess of the mediation conference while negotiations are taking place between Huerta and Carranza delegates, provided such negotiations are agreeable to the Constitutionalists. One at least of the mediators will always be here to give advice that may be sought by the disputants. Ambassador da Gama will probably leave Niagara Falls tomorrow to join Señhora da Gama at Long Branch, N. J. Minister Naon will remain here, and Minister Suarez-Mujica expects to be absent for a time on a visit to his wife, who is ill.

Ambassador da Gama announced that the mediators had asked the Constitutionalist representatives in Washington to send delegates here to confer with the Huerta delegates in regard to a settlement of Mexico's internal problems. His invitation was forwarded several days ago to Rafael Zubaran, the representative of Gen. Carranza in this country. Up to tonight no response had been received.

At tonight's conference the Huerta delegates gave formal assent to the invitation, and said they would be willing to confer with the Carranza representatives if they came.

Mediators Issue a Statement.

In explanation of their action in asking Gen. Carranza's Washington agent to send delegates here to confer with the representatives of Gen. Huerta, the mediators late tonight issued the following formal statement:

"The internal question of Mexico constitutes an essential difficulty in the way of full solution of the conflict pending with the United States of America. We so understood when we extended to all the parties interested the tender of our good offices toward the peaceful settlement of this conflict.

"Unfortunately, circumstances we respect did not permit the Constitutionalist Party, notwithstanding its acceptance in principle of our tender, to participate in the conferences of the mediators under the conditions which we considered as indispensable if they were to be conducted in that atmosphere of cordiality and confidence which would facilitate the solution sought.

"Notwithstanding this, we, the mediators, understand that, at the present moment, it is our duty to remove all obstacles which might stand in the wey of the attainment of the purposes which prompted the tender of our good offices; and the study we have made of all the circumstances connected with that conflict has shown us that its settlement is dependent, at the present moment on the solution of the internal questions between the contending parties, and that it is the latter to whom peculiarly belong the right and the authority to solve it.

"It is for this reason that we have

Wind Tosses the America About While Twelve Men Hang to Ropes to Keep Her Down.

FLIES WITH FOUR ABOARD

Barely Misses Two Canoes—Curtiss Workmen Will Win $94,000 if Ocean Flight Succeeds.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMMONDSPORT, N. Y., June 24.—Rodman Wanamaker's transatlantic flier, the America, made its third flight at 7:44 o'clock tonight after a narrow escape from being wrecked during a sudden storm at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Several of the ropes by which it is held to the ground had been untied in order to give room for workmen to fit supplementary hydroplaning surfaces on each side of the America's keel. The storm came without warning. A gust of wind lifted the left wing, from which most of the ropes had been loosened, several inches off the ground.

Glenn Curtiss, who was superintending the work, shouted for some of the men to fasten down the ropes. Two of his employes started to do this, when a second blast, more powerful than the first, lifted the wing again. The two men grasped the ends of the wing and hung onto it, but the wind, increasing in fury, lifted them about two feet off the ground, while the airboat tugged at other ropes on the left side and threatened to pull them from their stakes.

Curtiss and nine other men who were on the aviation field ran to the left side of the machine and took hold of the wing and hung their bodies from its edge, their combined weight barely sufficing to drag it to the ground. The wind kept increasing in velocity, while lightning began to play over the hills around Lake Keuka.

After the left wing had been forced back to earth it was easier to hold down. Eight men continued to hang on it while the others secured it to stakes with a dozen more ropes. Fifteen minutes later the wind had stopped and the sky was clear.

"It was within an ace of being wrecked," said Mr. Curtiss. "If we had been a few seconds later the wind would have carried it away. As it was, it raised two men a foot or so from the ground, and if it had been lifted just a little higher nothing on earth could have saved it. The storm was a remarkably sudden one, but I am disgusted to think we had failed to provide against all such risks."

The America, however, suffered no damage. Just before the flight in the evening another minor accident took place. While the engines were being tried out before the America was ushered into the water, the propellors developed great speed, and started the airboat forward. It bumped from the launching cradle and its nose dropped several feet to the ground. Several persons who were standing in front of it had to throw themselves to the ground to escape injury. It was righted in a few minutes, however, and was started, uninjured, for the water.

The stiffness of the new engines gave some trouble in cranking it, but just before 8 o'clock it got under way with four men aboard—Lieut. Porte, George Hallett, James La Monte, and George Robinson.

After driving through the water for about 200 yards it rose easily into the air. After about fifteen minutes of flying Lieut. Porte started back for the aviation field.

There were a number of canoes on the lake near Hammondsport which were only visible at close range. These gave the air pilot a little trouble. Once when he was flying about 300 yards from shore at a height of two feet above the water a canoe got directly in his path. The canoeist paddled desperately, but could not get clear of America's seventy-two-foot wing spread.

From the shore it looked for a second as if the canoeist was doomed. The pilot, however, tilted the America to port, raising his right wing a few feet and deftly hurdling the canoe.

About one hundred yards further three boys in another canoe had a narrow escape. The America was ploughing through the water and the three boys could not paddle out of the way. It looked as if the starboard wing was certain to cut down the canoe, when the America circled completely around it. The three boys were Robert Gainor, Leslie Graham, and Harold Graham. Leslie Graham, the oldest, said:

"We could see them inside the cabin waving to us to get out of the way, but we could not paddle fast enough, and it looked as if it was all up with us. Then it slowed and rode all the way around the canoe."

The America stopped about 100 yards out and took aboard Sumner R. Hollander and William D. Gash, representatives of Rodman Wanamaker, who went out in a launch. With six men and a 100-pound sack of cement aboard, no attempt was made this time to lift the America from the water, and she cruised the lake as a power boat.

The flight was made tonight to try out the elevators, or hydroplaning surfaces, which had been fitted to the America near its keel during the day. These are two planes of 10 by 18 feet, which assist it to climb out of the water. Lieut. Porte said that they worked perfectly.

In the flights made tonight and yesterday the America carried about 700 pounds less weight than it will when it is loaded with 300 gallons of gasoline for its transatlantic flight. Nine 100-pound sacks of cement lie on the aviation field to be used in weighting the boat when the flight is attempted with the America carrying its full load.

Sumner R. Hollander, who arrived here today will leave for England in a few days. He will await Lieut. Porte in Plymouth Harbor to escort him for the last few miles of his journey to the

In providing in her will for the American Museum of Natural History, Mrs. Jesup said:

> I give and bequeath to the American Museum of Natural History of the City of New York four million dollars ($4,000,000) as a permanent fund to be known as "The Morris K. Jesup Fund," the income, and only the income, to be used in the purchase of specimens and collections and the expenses incident to and incurred in assisting scientific research and investigation and publication regarding the same, which the trustees of the Museum shall regard as in its interests.

In a codicil, added to her will three years after the will was drawn, Mrs. Jesup provided for an additional bequest of $1,000,000 to the museum.

Husband Long Head of Museum.

Morris K. Jesup, who died on Jan. 22, 1908, became President of the Museum of Natural History in 1882, and devoted a large part of his time and energy to its interests. In his lifetime Mr. Jesup gave more than $1,000,000 to the museum, and under his will it inherited an additional $1,000,000. Many of the most valuable collections which the museum possesses are due to Mr. Jesup's interest. The cases of specimens of native woods and minerals were obtained and then enlarged through his efforts. He helped to finance many expeditions of scientific research, among them several of the polar quests of Admiral Peary. After Mr. Jesup's death his wife continued to aid the museum with gifts, contributing generously to back the museum's expeditions. In 1910 she gave to the museum a collection of ethnological objects from the Philippines.

Mrs. Jesup had in her home a valuable collection of paintings, most of which were gathered by her husband. The will contained this statement in regard to them:

> I give and bequeath any paintings, whether they belong to me individually or came to me from my husband, and which may be selected by the Museum, to the Metropolitan Museum of Art of the City of New York, upon condition that the Museum shall (less any which it may think best to sell, replace or exchange) group them in schools with other paintings belonging to the same schools, and that upon each picture, including any new purchases, there shall be kept a plate stating that it was presented by me, Mrs. Morris K. Jesup, from the collection of my husband, Morris K. Jesup. If the Museum shall receive this bequest upon the foregoing condition, then I give and bequeath to it, free of tax, $50,000 as a permament fund to be kept invested by it and the income to be by it applied to keeping the collection in repair or in the purchase of new paintings.

The Museum of Art also receives $100,000 for the establishment of the Morris K. Jesup fund, the income from which is to be used for the encouragement of American art in whatever way the trustees of the museum may think best. Those paintings which the museum does not care to accept are to be given to Mrs. Jesup's executor for distribution among her relatives.

In bequeathing $300,000 to Union Theological Seminary, of which her husband was a Director, Mrs. Jesup said:

> I give and bequeath to the Union Theological Seminary in the City of New York $300,000, to constitute a permanent fund, to be called "The Morris K. Jesup Fund," so much of the income as may be necessary to be applied to the maintenance of a chair for the teaching of the English Bible, pure and simple, not by way of criticism, but, taking it as it reads, to instruct students how to teach and preach it in the most simple and effectual way to reach the hearts of the people.

Mrs. Jesup's gift of $300,000 to Yale University brings her recent gifts to Yale to a total of $450,000. In May, 1909, she gave $100,000 to Yale for the establishment of a professorship in memory of her husband. In the same year she gave $50,000 to Yale to create a Chair of Silviculture.

Many of the institutions named in Mrs. Jesup's will were those with which her husband was connected. He was the President of the Board of Trustees of the Syrian Protestant College at Beirut,

MAYOR'S PISTOL SHOT REYNOLDS

Ex-Senator Is Accidentally Wounded in Front of Mr. Mitchel's Home.

FALLING WEAPON EXPLODED

Inflicted Wound in Thigh and Finger and Victim Is at St. Luke's.

ONLY DANGER IS INFECTION

Mishap Follows Motor Trip to Mayor's Farm for Target Practice—His Wife a Witness.

Mayor Mitchel's pistol accidentally shot ex-Senator William H. Reynolds in front of the Mitchel home at 258 Riverside Drive on Saturday afternoon, it was learned last night. The automatic pistol dropped from a holster carried by Mr. Mitchel when he was alighting from his automobile. It struck the sidewalk, breaking the safety clutch set against the trigger and forced the hammer down, exploding a cartridge.

The bullet hit ex-Senator Reynolds, who had alighted just before the Mayor, on the left thigh, and, coming out, passed through the middle finger of his left hand. He was taken to St. Luke's Hospital, where he was doing well last night. The danger of septic poisoning from gunshot wounds was not past but the condition of the patient was so good that his early recovery was expected without serious results.

Mrs. Mitchel was with her husband, close to Reynolds, at the time the revolver exploded, and both were endangered by the chance shot.

"I am hit! Look at my finger!" exclaimed Mr. Reynolds as he staggered across the sidewalk.

The wounded man walked unsteadily into the corridor of the Peter Stuyvesant Apartments, where Mr. and Mrs. Mitchel live, and calmly waited while the Mayor summoned Dr. A. J. Barker Savage, a physician in the building. Dr. Savage hurried to Mr. Reynolds's side, and, assisted by the Mayor and the physician, he went to the Mitchel apartment, where his wounds were dressed. He remained there until Sunday, when Dr. John A. Hartwell of 27 East Sixty-third Street was sent for by the Mayor.

Dr. Hartwell, who attended Frank L. Polk, Corporation Counsel, who was shot when the attempt was made to assassinate the Mayor, ordered the removal of Mr. Reynolds to St. Luke's Hospital. The patient was placed in a private ward of the Plant Pavilion.

Mayor Tells of Accident.

After visiting the Senator in the hospital last night, Mr. Mitchel at his home told how the accident happened.

"On Saturday Senator Reynolds, Mrs. Mitchel, myself, and a friend of Mrs. Mitchel motored to my farm at Croton, and we took along several revolvers and a rifle for target practice," he said. "We shot at a target there and returned home in the afternoon. When we reached the house here the Senator alighted first, carrying several of the revolvers and a coat and started for the door. I had assisted Mrs. Mitchel to alight; then I picked up a revolver that was inclosed in a leather holster and turned to follow the Senator.

"A motor coat that I had thrown over my arm caught on some metal projection of the automobile, dragging me around and throwing my arm upward. The movement tipped the holster upward and the revolver slipped out, butt first, but I did not notice this until the explosion occurred.

"The revolver struck the sidewalk in a peculiar way—probably it would not happen exactly that way once in a hundred times. I always carry a revolver at safety, so that it will be impossible to fire it without breaking the mechanism, or releasing the clutch. Before we left the farm I had carefully examined all the weapons before placing them in the car to be sure that they were set with the safety clutch.

"Falling backward from the holster the revolver struck directly on the top of the hammer, apparently, breaking the safety mechanism and driving the trigger point against the cartridge. The Senator did not wish anything said about the accident, fearing it would needlessly alarm his family now abroad."

"I cannot say how seriously I regret the accident," the Mayor added. "I am much gratified at the assurance given me at the hospital tonight that the Senator was doing splendid and his speedy recovery seems certain."

Physician Explains Case.

Dr. Savage was much surprised when he heard from a TIMES reporter that news of the shooting had got out. At first he refused to discuss the accident at all, explaining that he had promised to say nothing about it, but on being assured that Mayor Mitchel himself had made a statement of the case, he consented to tell what he knew.

"I was in my office when the shot was accidently fired just in front of my house," the physician said. "I ran out and saw that Mr. Reynolds had been shot. He seemed to be in a very bad condition. Mayor Mitchel asked that he be removed to his apartment, and I accompanied him there.

"The shot had been fired by an automatic pistol and the bullet was of soft metal, the kind which mushrooms when it strikes. The bullet had entered Mr. Reynolds's left thigh, posterior, and had then deflected to the side. It came out on the side of the thigh and made an ugly wound. It so happened that Mr. Reynolds had had his hand at his side, and the bullet continued on through the middle finger, splintering the bone. It passed all the way through the finger and spent itself on the street.

"Mr. Reynolds was not unconscious,

Bathing Pavilion Struck by Lightning While 5,000 Are at Resort.

NEW ROCHELLE, June 24.—Lightning struck the bathing pavilion on Glen Island at 10:30 this evening. The building burned. There was a brisk easterly breeze, but the flames were checked before they got to the amusement park, which is at the other end of the island.

More than 5,000 persons were at Glen Island to-night for a fireworks display, and most of them were still there when the fire began. The Glen Island Fire Department was delayed, and the fire had gained great headway before the apparatus arrived. The New Rochelle department was also called, but they were unable to get to the island.

The burned bathing pavilion also held a dance hall and restaurant. The loss was estimated at $10,000.

Farmer Engages "Jim" Johnson to Protect His Laborers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—A Northamptonshire farmer, named Whitehead, has engaged the negro boxer, "Jim" Johnson, to protect his laborers, who refuse to join the farm laborers' strike.

He says that if necessary he will employ other fighting men.

ROBBED WALDO HOME.

Prisoners Confessed to Burglary, of Which Police Were Ignorant.

Special to The New York Times.

RIDGEWOOD, N. J., June 24.—Four men who are supposed to have robbed the home of the late Mrs. Rhinelander Waldo, mother of ex-Police Commissioner Waldo, at Madison Avenue and Seventy-second Street in New York, three weeks ago, were arrested here last night as they were robbing a store. It is said the men confessed that they had robbed the Waldo home and also the jewelry store of David Horowitz in Third Avenue, between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth Streets.

The prisoners said they were John Cross of 204 East Sixty-fifth Street, Ernest Baker of 452 Third Avenue, Randolph Krekouck of 1,274 Avenue A, and Alfred Armstrong of 136 East Forty-sixth Street, Manhattan.

Neither the police of the Thirty-first Precinct, in which the Waldo home is situated, nor Police Headquarters had any record of a burglary committed there. The house is closed, and there is a "For Sale" sign nailed on the front of it.

MORE ROCKEFELLER GUARDS

Force Doubled Upon the Departure of John D., Jr., for Maine.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, June 24.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and family left today for Seal Harbor, Maine, where they will spend July and August. It was said today that extra guards had been put on duty at the Pocantico Hills estate. Mr. Rockefeller has had about thirty negroes watching, and it is said that number has been doubled.

The determination of the agitators to speak here and the riot on the Aqueduct on Monday have worried Mr. Rockefeller, it is said, and he has decided to take no chances. These guards are in addition to the twenty-four deputies on the estate in charge of Sheriff Doyle.

Tarrytown has taken measures for protection against another invasion of the I. W. W., and four special policemen from White Plains went on duty tonight.

John D. Rockefeller will remain at Pocantico Hills all Summer, and will not return to Cleveland, as has been his custom, owing to the tax trouble in Ohio. Mr. Rockefeller is enjoying his daily golf, and is just now particularly interested in the new fountain which is being placed near his house.

LIKES PRESIDENTIAL KISS.

Miss Reilly, 8, Asks for One to Take Back to California.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—President Wilson, who heretofore has ignored what old-fashioned politicians considered the first rule of politics, requiring candidates and office holders to kiss babies, violated his own rule today by kissing Miss Laura Margaret Reilly, the eight-year-old daughter of Charles Thomas Reilly, an old Princeton coach. This departure from custom was made at the young lady's request, greatly to her father's amusement.

Mr. Reilly, who is on a visit East from his home in Los Angeles, called to pay his respects to the President, bringing his daughter with him. The President and Mr. Reilly chatted about old times, while Miss Reilly became increasingly bored. She had, of course, been duly presented to Mr. Wilson and had exchanged an unsatisfactory handshake.

"Won't you kiss me, please," she said, "so I can take it all the way back to California?"

With a smile of pleasure the President complied. Miss Reilly smiled in her turn.

"That's the sweetest kiss I ever had," she said, taking her place contentedly by her father.

'IF PERKINS GOES, I'LL GO, TOO.'-T. R.

Colonel, Home on Imperator, Notifies Party That George W. Must Stay In.

HAD TWO CHILLS ON VOYAGE

Temperature Rose to 105, but He Says "I'm All Right Now."

WON'T RUN FOR GOVERNOR

Issues a 2,000-Word Statement Attacking Mexican Policy and Defending His Panama Action.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt arrived in Quarantine at 8:20 o'clock last night on the Hamburg-American liner Imperator with his nephew, Philip Roosevelt. They were met by Mrs. Roosevelt and other members of the family on the steam yacht Joyance, belonging to Senator William H. Childs. George W. Perkins and Theodore Douglas Robinson were also on the yacht with Collector Malone and a couple of Inspectors, who passed the Colonel's baggage quickly after it had been taken off the liner.

Col. Roosevelt and his party left Quarantine almost at once on the Joyance, which was expected to land him home about midnight.

The ex-President looked in better health than when he arrived from Brazil in May, but he still shows traces of the hardships he encountered on his exploring expedition in South America. He handed out a long statement prepared for the press in which he dealt with the Mexican situation and defended his action in Panama.

When told of the effort of some Progressives to force Mr. Perkins out of the party, Col. Roosevelt's eyes snapped and he replied:

"If they read George Perkins out of the party they will have to read me out, too."

Asked about the Governorship, Col. Roosevelt emphatically denied that he had any intention of running for Governor again.

The Colonel said his health had improved on his trip abroad to attend his son's wedding in Spain, but that he would be subject to the chills he had contracted in Brazil for some time to come.

"I had two chills on board the ship," he said, "which kept me to my cabin. One came directly I got on board the Imperator at Southampton and the second one, which was very severe, came on after we had been forty-eight hours out at sea. I had a temperature of 105 degrees and had to go to my cabin for the day."

Will Make Indoor Speeches.

"But I'm all right now," he continued, "and I shall speak at Pittsburgh on June 30. I had to have my throat examined in London because, as is so often the case, the after effects of the fever contracted in the wilds of Brazil left its mark in my throat. This effect will probably last for some months, and I shall not be able to speak in the open air or make continuous speaking trips. However, I shall be able to deliver a certain number of speeches indoors.

"Mr. Perkins," declared the Colonel in his reference to the National Executive Chairman, "has been, on the whole, the most useful member of the Progressive Party. No man has served with greater zeal and disinterestedness. He has striven in absolutely good faith for the principles of the party, both as regards corporations and business generally, and as regards the group questions dealing with the welfare of the wage-earner and his economic and social advance. As for reading him out of the party, when that is done they will have to read me out, too."

In speaking, the Colonel's voice sounded a little weak, and he had the slight catch in his throat which was noticeable when he returned from Brazil. He spoke in glowing terms of his reception abroad, in Spain and in London, and said that he had enjoyed his trip immensely. The Imperator would have arrived early in the afternoon, Col. Roosevelt said, if the liner had not encountered a dense bank of fog after she passed Nantucket Lightship at 9:20 o'clock yesterday morning.

Dr. Rice Apologizes.

Col. Roosevelt gave out a letter from Dr. Hamilton Rice, the explorer, in which he said he was mistaken when he questioned the discovery of the River of Doubt. This letter read as follows:

"Dear Col. Roosevelt:

"It is only just and right in view of the circumstances of the last few weeks that I should write to you to say that after hearing your lecture last evening the premises no longer exist upon which I based an opinion and made certain criticisms upon the results of your South American expedition. Your most fair, lucid, and interesting narrative dispels completely the topographical points in dispute, and I am truly sorry for whatever unpleasantness and misunderstanding have arisen in consequence of my comments. Also I deeply regret that any remarks of a personal nature ever appeared causing the tone of my comments to be entirely misinterpreted and misunderstood.

"I feel confident you will receive in the same friendly spirit that they are offered you my warmest and most deep felt congratulations upon the great success and splendid achievements of your expedition, a noble journey nobly done. For the courage, fortitude, and valor you displayed, the very modest references to yourself, the generous and magnanimous spirit in which you give full and just tribute to your brave companions, I have only words of praise, thoughts of admiration. Believe me, dear sir, I am very sincerely yours,

"HAMILTON RICE."

Silent About Whitman.

Mr. Roosevelt did not say anything about District Attorney Whitman, and there was little opportunity for the reporters to ask questions, as ex-Senator Childs, Raymond C. Fosdick, and George W. Perkins were hurrying him on to the yacht. C. H. Duell, who went down to Quarantine with the Collector, was also in the party.

Col. Roosevelt wore the same steel gray sack suit he had on when he sailed from New York and carried a Panama hat in his hand until the yacht was out of sight. As he went down the ladder the band on the Imperator played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the big searchlight was thrown upon him.

Included in the party on the Joyance were Mrs. Roosevelt and her two sons, Quentin and Archie, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Derby, and Emlen Roosevelt. William H. Childs, Collector Malone, Deputy Collector John Castrel Williams, Raymond B. Fosdick, and Mr. Perkins, all accompanied Col. Roosevelt on the yacht which had waited alongside the Imperator while he was giving his interview to the reporters. The Imperator was not passed by the Health Officer last night, and her 600 cabin passengers lined the rail of the upper promenade deck and cheered Col. Roosevelt as the yacht started off for Oyster Bay.

ROOSEVELT ATTACKS WILSON.

Defends Panama Action and Talks of "Mushy Amiability."

Col. Roosevelt handed out the following prepared statement on his arrival at Quarantine last night:

"The payment of twenty-five millions to Colombia, together with the expression of what is in effect an apology for our having secured the right to build the Panama Canal, is merely the belated payment of blackmail with an apology to the blackmailers. If this proposed treaty submitted by President Wilson, through Mr. Bryan, is right, then our presence on the Isthmus is wrong. In such case Panama should at once be restored to Colombia and we should stop work on the canal and abandon the place bag and baggage. There should be no half-way measures. If we as a nation have been guilty of theft we should restore the stolen goods. If we have not been guilty of theft we should not pay blackmail.

"The handling of our foreign affairs by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan has been such as to make the United States a figure of fun in the international world. This proposed Colombian treaty caps the climax, and if ratified, will rightly render us an object of contemptuous derision to every great nation. In view of its submission to Congress I wish to call attention to exactly what was done under my Administration. Because of the action of that Administration the people of the United States acquired what they could by no other means have acquired, the right to build the Panama Canal.

"In 1903 it was still doubtful whether we would adopt the Nicaragua or the Panama route. The Government of Colombia was exceedingly anxious that we should adopt the latter, and offered to arrange and did arrange a treaty with us in order to prevent our going to Nicaragua. Partly in consideration of this treaty we abandoned negotiations with Nicaragua. We acted in good faith and the course of action we thereby entered upon was conducted upon their proposal, their promise. It was our right and also our duty to our own people and to the rest of the world to exact the performance of this promise.

Defends Panama Action.

"For 400 years there had been conversation about the need of the Panama Canal. The time for further conversation had passed, the time to translate words into deeds had come. If I had followed President Wilson's policy of 'watchful waiting' it would have insured half a century of additional conversation, and the canal would still be in the dim future. And it is only because the then Administration acted precisely as it did act that we now have the Panama Canal.

"The interests of the civilized people of the world demanded the construction of the canal. Events had shown that it could not be built by a private concern. We as a nation would not permit it to be built by a foreign Government. Therefore we were in honor bound to build it ourselves. We were in honor bound not to permit the great enterprise, so essential to our own well-being and fraught with such usefulness to all the nations of mankind, to be arrested by the corrupt greed of a Government, impotent itself to build the canal, impotent to keep order on the isthmus or to preserve it from invasion and from the dominion of any Old World power, and at the same time so ignorant of the feelings of the American people and of this Government as to believe that they would tamely submit to extortion and blackmail.

"Until the present proposed treaty was negotiated by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan I had not supposed that any American Administration would thus betray the honor and interest of the American people by submitting to blackmail, but at any rate the Colombian Government was in error when it indulged in such a supposition about my Administration. I have no quarrel whatever with the Colombian people, and do not question their fine private qualities.

"But unfortunately in international affairs a nation must be judged by the Government that speaks for it. The then Colombian Government was embodied in the person of a single man, a dictator, with absolute executive and legislative power. He had been elected as Vice President. After a short time he seized the President and put him in jail. He then published an edict saying that under the Constitution, for he was an ardent adherent of the letter of the Constitution, it was his right to assume all the executive powers of the Government in the absence of the President. He refused to permit Congress to assemble. He then published another edict reciting that under the Constitution it was his right to assume all of the legislative powers in the absence of Congress.

"The absence of the President soon became permanent, as he died in jail. Year after year went by and still no Congress was allowed to meet. So elected, the Vice President continued as absolute and uncontrolled dictator, embodying the entire Government, all power of Colombia. While this was the situation, he not only embodying, but being the Colombian Government, he negotiated the canal treaty with us. Ten million dollars was the sum stipulated to be paid. Remember that the Colombian Governmental power which negotiated the treaty was the same that ratified or rejected it; it was merely one man in two different capacities. And it was partly in consideration of this treaty that we abandoned the Nicaragua route.

Talks of Colombia Blackmail.

"But when we had thus committed ourselves and the Colombian dictator, that is the Colombian Government, thought it was too late for us to change, he decided to try to get more money from us. He had absolute power to execute the treaty without the consent of his Congress; a little later he offered to execute it without the consent of Congress. But in order to give him a pretext he summoned Congress, a Congress that carried out his orders without altering them in the smallest particular, which did nothing whatever except reject the treaty and then adjourn. One of the speakers assigned the real reason for their action with much frankness. We had agreed to pay the French company $40,000,000. The Colombian Government, in defiance of its own legislative act, proposed to confiscate the property of the French Government so as thereby to be 'in a better position to negotiate' with us; in other words, be able to get this $40,000,000 from us.

"Incidentally, I would call the attention of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan to the fact that this $40,000,000 represents the exact sum which Colombia lost when the United States Government of that day refused to submit to blackmail. They now only propose to pay $25,000,000 blackmail. They had better make the job thorough while they are about it and give the whole $40,000,000. Otherwise they will still leave an opening for action by some future Administration of similar mushy amiability toward foreign powers that have sought to wrong us.

"There is no earthly reason why we should not throw in the extra fifteen millions if we propose to pay the twenty-five. Colombia has exactly as much right to one sum as the other. Of course, France would not have submitted to the proposed robbery. I made up my mind that if we waited we would have on the Isthmus a great Old World power, which would have a right to be there, because we would have lost our own rights through our supine folly, and in such case, in other words, if I had acted on the Wilson-Bryan theory all chance of our building the canal would have vanished into thin air. The case demanded immediate and decisive action. I took this action.

"Taking the action meant taking the Canal Zone and building the canal. Failure to take the action would have meant that the Canal Zone would not have been taken and that the canal would not have been built. Panama regarded itself as having suffered, and, in fact, had suffered an intolerable wrong. The building of the canal was vital to her well-being. Colombia had been an unsympathetic and incompetent master, powerless even to keep order in the territory which it had ruled and oppressed. During the preceding fifty years there had been fifty-three revolutions on the Isthmus, and on a score of occasions we had been obliged to land our troops to protect our treaty rights and the lives and property of Americans and other foreigners.

"Panama declared her independence, her citizens acting with absolute unanimity. We promptly acknowledged her independence. She forthwith concluded with us a treaty substantially like that we had negotiated with Colombia for the same sum of money. We then immediately took the Canal Zone and began the construction of the canal. We did not in the smallest degree instigate the revolution. The people of Panama were a unit in demanding the revolution. We never fired a shot at any Colombian. The only act of ours which could in any measure be construed as hostile to Colombia was our landing sailors and marines on the Isthmus to protect the lives of American women and children, and in this matter we merely did what had been done in at least twenty of the previous fifty-three revolutions.

"As soon as the revolution was an accomplished fact, and when it was, of course, too late, Colombia endeavored to undo her actions. Her President offered to ratify the original treaty either calling a congress, which he would guarantee would ratify it, or else by ratifying it himself in the absence of Congress if preferred.

"This alternative offer demonstrated with mathematical certainty his previous own power to carry out the treaty he had himself previously made and said he could not carry out. Of course, our Government could not at that late date yield to his request, as it would have been treachery to Panama.

"As President I declined to allow Uncle Sam to be blackmailed. President Wilson now desires the blackmail to be paid. His attitude can be illustrated by a hypothetical case. The present Administration has, with regard to Mexico, pursued a course wavering between peace and war, exquisitely designed to combine the disadvantages of both, and feebly tending first toward one and then toward the other.

"Usually it has permitted the free ingress of arms into Mexico, both from this country and from others. Occasionally, however, it has undergone spasms of understanding that these arms might ultimately be used against our own troops. It has then prohibited the landing of arms, sometimes wabbling back again to its original position, as when it took Vera Cruz to prevent the landing of weapons and munitions of war, and shortly afterward permitted the very same arms and munitions to be landed.

"Well, if some future Administration of similar views on international relations should offer Mexico $25,000,000 as an atonement for intermittently refusing to allow the landing of arms that might be used against our own people, it would be behaving precisely and exactly as President Wilson's Administration is behaving about Colombia.

"The conduct of the United States' Government throughout the entire proceeding which resulted in the acquisition of the canal was absolutely open and straightforward, absolutely in accordance with the principles of the highest international morality. Only by acting precisely as we did act could we have secured the right to build the Panama Canal. It is hypocrisy to claim credit for the canal and at the same time attempt to discredit the course which alone rendered the canal possible. It will be a grave wrong to the republic, a reflection upon the honor of this nation in the past, and a menace to its interests in the future, if this treaty for the belated payment of blackmail is ratified at Washington."

DISCUSS WHITMAN ON YACHT.

Colonel Makes No Comment as He Goes to Bed in Oyster Bay.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 25.—Col. Roosevelt was brought to Oyster Bay aboard William H. Childs's yacht, which landed at 12:40 o'clock this morning at the W. Emlen Roosevelt dock. The Colonel was accompanied by his family, George W. Perkins, Theodore Douglas Robinson, and Charles H. Duell, Jr., who started the Whitman Progressive boom. The party, headed by the Colonel, walked up a hill leading to Yellow Bank, the W. Emlen Roosevelt home. From there the Colonel started at 1 o'clock for Sagamore Hill in an automobile.

On the lawn in front of his cousin's home, Mr. Roosevelt met the newspaper men. He said that on the way down to Oyster Bay Mr. Duell, Mr. Perkins, and Mr. Robinson had presented Mr. Whitman's case, and when asked what was his disposition toward Mr. Whitman, he said he had no comment to make.

"You must not read between the lines, because if you do, I will deny it tomorrow," he said. "I will turn you over to Messrs. Perkins, Robinson and Duell, and you can pump them for all you're worth.

"Get everything out of them you can. I have nothing to say."

When Mr. Robinson was asked he said he had told the Colonel that he doubted whether the Progressives would indorse Mr. Whitman's candidacy. Mr. Perkins came forward and said he thought Mr. Robinson's opinion was correct.

Col. Roosevelt, speaking of the letter from Dr. Hamilton Rice, the explorer, said:

"That ends my career as a geographer. For the next four months, I suppose, I will become a politician."

UNIONS AGAINST WILKINSON.

Goodrich of Westchester May Be New State Chairman.

One of the many Progressive Party problems which Col. Roosevelt will be asked to decide within the next few days has to do with the successor of his nephew, Theodore Douglas Robinson, in case the latter should determine to retire as Chairman of the Progressive State Committee. Mr. Robinson has told his friends that he would not like to remain in that position should the Colonel be a candidate for Governor, and many Progressives believe that he will step out as head of the State Committee whether the Colonel runs or not.

Until a couple of days ago it was taken for granted that Horace S. Wilkinson of Syracuse would suceed Mr. Robinson. But labor organizations of Syracuse are preparing to lodge an emphatic protest with the Colonel against the selection of Mr. Wilkinson, according to report last night. The protest of the unions will charge Mr. Wilkinson with having done his best, as manager of the big crucible steel works in Syracuse, to disrupt labor organizations. They credit him with having broken up two unions at the plant and with having threatened to break up any new union that was formed.

David M. Goodrich is being boomed as a compromise candidate for the State Chairmanship by certain Progressive State Committeemen who, while personally friendly to Mr. Wilkinson, are reluctant to risk losing the support of organized labor in the coming campaign by making him State Chairman. Walter A. Johnson, the Progressive leader of Westchester County, freely admitted last night that he had brought a Goodrich boom to town.

"Mr. Goodrich is not in any sense a candidate for the place," said Mr. Johnson, "but I feel assured that he would accept it if urged to do so. I am a great admirer of Mr. Wilkinson, but I know him well enough to feel that he would not for a minute care to be the cause of a rupture between the Progressives and the labor organizations."

Mr. Goodrich lives at Mount Kisco and is a manufacturer of automobile tires. He is about 42 years old and a close personal friend of Col. Roosevelt. He enlisted with the Roosevelt Rough Riders in the Spanish war and is mentioned by the Colonel in his history of that struggle as one of two men who stood with him on the summit of San Juan Hill when the battle raged hottest. The other man was "Jack" Greenway of Arizona. In the 1912 campaign Mr. Goodrich was in charge of the Progressive campaign in Westchester County.

Progressive leaders who were in this city last night within a few hours of the Colonel's arrival declared their belief that he would become the Bull Moose candidate for Governor this Fall. They were somewhat disturbed when they learned from Charles H. Duell, Jr., who has been actively canvassing the Progressives in the State with a view to bringing about the nomination of District Attorney Whitman, that he received a wireless from Col. Roosevelt asking him to meet the Imperator at Quarantine, as the Colonel wanted to talk to him at once. Mr. Duell more than intimated that he fully expected the Colonel to come out in an open indorsement of Mr. Whitman's candidacy.

RETURNING FROM JUNGLE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados, June 24.—Am returning to God's country aboard the Denis, after completing Amazon explorations. Find Roosevelt's discovery authentic.

ALGOT LANGE.

Algot Lange, who sends this dispatch, is a Dane, 31 years old. He came into prominence in 1912, when he returned from the Brazilian wilderness with tales of wonder, daring, and horror. His fight against death by fever was described in his book, "In the Amazon Jungle," and after its appearance the museum of the University of Pennsylvania engaged him to make a three-year entomological expedition into Brazil. He set out in September, 1912, with five companions, and had not been heard from until his cablegram reached THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday. The party, it appears, is several months ahead of schedule.

Mr. Lange is coming to New York on the steamship Denis of the Booth Line, which left Barbados yesterday morning. He is due to arrive on June 30 or July 1.

The exact route of the Lange party was not set forth at the time of the departure, but it is understood that Lange went further up the Amazon than Col. Roosevelt did. Col. Roosevelt made Manaos, the capital of Amazonas, his base. Lange, according to his announced plans, was to go further up the Amazon and advance into the interior on the Yaviari River. According to Lange's accounts, he had gone this far west on his earlier adventure and had traversed what he called the "White Man's Grave" territory. Lange expected to make Ramata de Males, a settlement at the junction of the Amazon and the Javary Rivers, one of his bases of supplies.

Lange's expedition sailed up the Amazon on a little steamboat equipped for burning wood and small enough to sail up any of the Amazon's tributaries. Lange's companions were scientists selected by the University Museum, and Lange himself went equipped with a moving-picture apparatus, intent upon taking pictures of some of the things of which he had spoken in his book. It is believed that he entered the regions traversed by Col. Roosevelt and that he came upon numerous wide rivers. He spoke of some of these rivers in his book and pointed out that they had never been mapped.

Scientists have not accepted all of Lange's statements about the Brazilian jungles. According to Lange, he encountered cannibals and saw men eaten; he investigated tribes which had never seen white men before; he found gold in the beds of creeks, plentiful and easy to get. He asserted that he had seen specimens of the anaconda, or water boa, more than fifty feet long. This was challenged by a number of men. Lange said that he would prove by his second trip that he had not exaggerated at all. He expected to get a moving picture of an anaconda in action.

The men who accompanied Lange on his first trip into the jungle were never heard of again. Lange told in his book how they had contracted the dreaded beri-beri and dropped off one by one. He himself nearly went insane with the fever and crawled through the wilderness in despair, alone, and 2,500 miles from the nearest point of civilization. Then he was rescued by Indians and was nursed back to life.

Lange kept a diary on the first trip. Referring to the death of his last Indian companion, named Jerome, the adventurer and gold hunter wrote:

> My brain echoed strange fantasies and my eyes were closed in a half coma when I heard Jerome uttering the wild cry I knew was the end. My eyelids parted in time to see the Indian, his knife raised in his clenched hand and on his face a demon's stare, rushing across the fire toward me. I sank back feebly. I had not the strength to raise a finger. Then came a hoarse cry and I looked to see Jerome fall headlong into the fire. He expired as he lay, a gruesome spectacle, but a typical tragedy of this fever-frenzied country.

Lange, according to his accounts, had collected five boxes of gold which he expected to take to New York. When fever overtook him he could carry this extra weight no longer. So he hung the boxes up in a tree in the jungle. He had expected to find this spot a second time and get back his gold. He had broken the bulb of a thermometer and applied the mercury test to the gold, he said.

ARREST "COL." WILKINSON

Held with Van Booskirk on Charge of Using Mails to Defraud.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—"Colonel" George Wilkinson, President of the Central Tennessee Development Company, and Mahlon Van Booskirk, an attorney, with offices in the Heed Building, whose home is at 2016 Gratz Street, counsel to the company, were arrested today as they sat in the offices of Chief Postal Inspector Cortelyou. They were accused of using the mails to defraud in connection with the development company scheme to boom Spring City, Tenn., into a metropolis of industry.

The prisoners were taken before Magistrate Stevenson, sitting as a United States Commissioner, who held them in $2,500 bail each for a further hearing on July 8, when the Government expects to have more than a score of witnesses here from Knoxville, Chattanooga, and Spring City to testify against them.

Government officials said tonight that it was their belief that only the top of a huge scheme had been scratched. It was intimated that an investigation would be instituted into other companies with which "Colonel" Wilkinson had been connected, and that upon the outcome of these inquiries depended whether additional warrants would be issued.

Chief Postal Inspector Cortelyou testified concerning the organization of the $6,000,000 development company and the printing of $6,000,000 in bonds, as already outlined in THE NEW YORK TIMES. Mr. Cortelyou testified that when questioned "Colonel" Wilkinson said he was connected with a substantial banking house, the International Bankers' Alliance of London. But, testified Mr. Cortelyou, the International Bankers' Alliance was not a reputable concern. It was in such bad order, he declared, that on May 27 last the Government issued a fraud order against it, which prevented it from getting mail in the United States. He added that a fraud order also was issued against J. A. Dent, Controller of the Alliance, at the same time.

To evade this fraud order, he said, the concern changed its name in advertisements in American newspapers to "Bankers' Alliance," dropping the "International." Mr. Cortelyou said he would have a new fraud order issued to cover this change of name. Dent, he said, was a fugitive from justice, under indictment in this country for swindling.

"Colonel" Wilkinson, who is a well-known Philadelphia figure and who lives at the Bingham Hotel, and Van Booskirk were taken into custody on two charges, one preferred by Postal Inspector Smith of this city and the other by George Robinson of Spring City, Tenn., Vice President of the company which Wilkinson promoted.

The affidavit made by Robinson set forth that in August or September last Wilkinson went to Spring City and promoted a joint stock company which had for its supposed purpose the development of a score or more of elaborate enterprises. In furtherance of this scheme it was charged that Wilkinson represented himself as the agent of the International Bankers' Alliance, and that after the company was organized he obtained large sums of money from various residents of the town by false and fraudulent representations. Robinson charged that the claims of Wilkinson were fraudulent in that he did not represent any bank or bankers of repute, nor had he carried out his contract with the stockholders, although he had promised repeatedly to do so.

REBELS CAPTURE ZACATECAS; BIG LOSS

thought it our duty to invite, as we have done, both the representatives of the Constitutionalist Party and those of the Government of Gen. Huerta, accredited to the conferences of the mediation, to meet at a place near that where they are being held in order to discuss and agree between themselves upon bases of an arrangement whereby the political pacification of the country could be consummated, with the termination of the civil war and the organization of a provisional Government to conduct the general elections for the establishment of the powers of a permanent Government.

"In this manner, and if an unprejudiced and compromising spirit could prevail at said conferences we trust that Mexican patriotism will remove, by itself and without outside interference, the causes of the sorrowful situation in which the country finds itself at the present time, re-establishing thereby the exercise without reservation of her national sovereignty and of her material and moral prosperity.

"Furthermore, the mediation in which we are engaged, it should be unnecessary to repeat, has not proposed in any form whatsoever to interfere in, decide or legislate on internal questions of Mexico, but seeks, as at all times it has sought, to bring about between the contending parties a serene discussion of the conflicting interests which now divide them in order to procure or facilitate an agreement between them with the aid of our friendly counsel, without prejudgment of partiality."

On the adjournment of tonight's conference Ambassador da Gama made the following oral statement explanatory of what had taken place:

"We have protocolized tonight three articles of the plan of pacification concerning the international side of the Mexican problem.

"Before that protocolization we, the mediators, made the statement that we deemed it advisable to invite the Constitutionalist party to send delegates to discuss with the Mexican delegates the internal aspects of the problem."

Text of the Protocols Signed.

Copies of the protocols signed were also made public. Their text follows:

"Article 1—The Provisional Government referred to in Protocol 3 shall be constituted by agreement of the delegates representing the parties between which the internal struggle in Mexico is taking place.

"Article 2, Section A—Upon the constitution of the Provisional Government in the City of Mexico the Government of the United States of America will recognize it immediately, and thereupon diplomatic relations between the two countries will be restored.

"Section B.—The Government of the United States of America will not in any form whatsoever claim a war indemnity or other international satisfaction.

"Section C.—The Provisional Government will proclaim absolute amnesty to all foreigners for any and all political offenses committed during the period of civil war in Mexico.

"Section D.—The Provisional Government will negotiate for the constitution of international commissions for the settlement of the claims of foreigners on account of damages sustained during the period of civil war as a consequence of military acts or the acts of national authorities.

"Article 3.—The three mediating Governments agree on their part to recognize the Provisional Government organized as provided by Section 1 of this protocol."

The decision to leave for future settlement the question of the withdrawal of the American armed forces from Vera Cruz was due to a difference between the Governments of the United States and Mexico and expressed by their delegates.

President Wilson, it was made known, contended that any agreement on the subject should provide that the American troops should not be withdrawn until after constitutional elections had been held throughout Mexico, and a new President installed in office.

The Mexican delegates combated this proposal on the ground that if American troops remained in Mexico for the period favored by President Wilson the accusation might properly be made that they were kept in Mexico to influence the elections.

As neither side was willing to recede from its position, it was agreed that consideration of the question of the withdrawal should be postponed until after the effort had been made to have the Huerta and Constitutionalist delegates settle their difference under the method proposed by the mediators.

The report from El Paso of the fall of Zacatecas failed to arouse interest tonight in the mediation circle. Two of the negotiators expressed doubt of its truth. The general opinion expressed was that the negotiations with the Constitutionalist delegates would go ahead regardless of the operations of the revolutionary forces.

Urrutia's Remarkable Suggestion.

Dr. Aureliano Urrutia, who was Minister of the Interior in the Huerta Cabinet until recently, arrived at Niagara Falls today, but he remained on the American side and did not see any of the mediators or the Mexican delegates. Señora Urrutia and his son were with him. Dr. Urrutia suggested that a provisional Government in Mexico City, composed of Luis Cabrera, Constitutionalist agent in Washington, Señores Rabasa, Elguero, and Rodriguez, the Huerta delegates to the Niagara Falls conference, and Gen. Francisco Villa would be acceptable to all Mexicans. He though Señor Cabrera should be provisional President and Gen. Villa Minister of War. Among the Mexican contingent here it was said that talk of this sort was not to be taken seriously. Dr. Urrutia and his family left the Falls for New York at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Soon after the landing of the American forces at Vera Cruz Dr. Urrutia figured in a sensational incident there. When he was forced to leave the Huerta Cabinet, Dr. Urretia went to Vera Cruz, where he was nearly mobbed by some of his fellow-countrymen, who were excited by reports that he had ordered cruelties inflicted upon political prisoners.

MEDIATORS WON'T ADJOURN.

Will Stand Ready to Aid Mexican Factions in Negotiations.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 24.—Terms for the composing of all international differences between the United States and Mexico have been concluded. The conditions under which diplomatic relations will be resumed were tonight embodied in a protocol which was signed by the Ambassador of Brazil, the Ministers of Chile and Argentina, and the American and Huerta delegates.

The chief settlement is not expected to arouse opposition from the Constitutionalists, who will participate in, and to a large degree mold the adjustment of all internal disputes.

When a new provisional Government is established to succeed that headed by Gen. Huerta, the result of mediation—recognized as a triumph for Pan-American diplomacy—will become effective.

Coincidentally with the action taken tonight, it was announced that the actual naming of a provisional President and the organization of a Government, which is considered a purely internal problem, will be left to an informal conference of representatives of the Constitutionalists—Luis Cabrera, Rafael Zubaran, and José Vasconcelos—and the delegates sent by Gen. Huerta to the mediation conference.

No formal adjournment of the mediation conference will be taken, but there will be no sessions while the representatives of the two warring factions in Mexico endeavor to arrive at an agreement on the personnel of the new Government, the agrarian and educational reforms and other internal problems.

The protocol was drafted early today and its phraseology telegraphed to Washington for approval.

At 9 o'clock tonight word came from President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, authorizing the American delegates to sign it. The Mexican delegation had not expected so prompt a response. Dr Naon, the Minister from Argentina, also had failed to notify them that there would be a full conference. Louis Elguero, one of the Huerta delegates, was several miles away at dinner when the conference was called. He made a hurried trip in an automobile, and on his arrival the conference began.

The results of the mediators' work tonight places the issue now squarely before the representatives of the two warring factions. On them will rest the responsibility for failure or success of the peace plans as a whole. The mediators and the American delegates will stand by to lend a helping hand and give their counsel when sought. Luis Cabrera, Rafael Zubaran, and José Vasconcelos, the Constitutionalist delegates, are in Washington, and should arrive here in another day or two, though final arrangements for their coming have not yet been made. The sending to Washington of Fernando Iglesias Calderon, who, it had been expected, would head the Constitutionalist delegation, caused some confusion in plans, but it was believed tonight that Calderon's mission to the National Capital was merely to substitute for Zubaran during his absence. Cabarera and Vasconcelos were originally designated by Gen. Carranza to attend the mediation conferences.

There was little said here tonight about Gen. Villa's attitude toward the sending of delegates, but it was believed that he was in thorough accord with the proposition. Reliable information has come that he is ready to accept the terms of the conferences, and it is not unlikely that he will be kept informed of its progress.

It was decided by the mediators and delegates to postpone consideration of the exact date when American forces shall be withdrawn from Vera Cruz. This, as well as the Constitution of the new Provisional Government in Mexico, will be protocolized after the conferences between the Constitutionalists and Huerta delegates adjourn.

Assurance that the Constitutionalists would be represented at the informal conferences came direct to the mediators today from Luis Cabrera, one of the confidential representatives of Gen. Carranza in Washington.

It is likely that the conferences between the two Mexican factions will be held here, but this will be determined after the Constitutionalist delegates arrived. Buffalo is another city suggested, but it is not generally believed that the Mexicans will consent to meet in the United States.

EXPECT CARRANZA TO YIELD.

Washington Officials Think His Delegates Will Go to the Falls.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Despite many conflicting reports concerning the mission to Washington of representatives of the Mexican Constitutionalists now en route, it was asserted tonight in official quarters that there was every expectation that the agents of Gen. Carranza would accept the invitation of the American Commissioners at the Niagara Falls mediation conference to participate in informal negotiations relative to the pacification of Mexico.

In the light of the announcement made in New Orleans yesterday by Alfredo Breceda, one of the three Carranza agents on his way to Washington, that the Constitutionalists never would confer with Gen. Huerta except on the battlefield, a statement made here tonight by one of the representatives of the Constitutionalists was regarded as significant.

"It can be said with emphasis," this representative said, "that the statement made yesterday by Señor Breceda is not supported by Fernando Iglesias Calderon. Señor Calderon is coming to the United States to aid in the negotiations that have been pending toward the settlement of the troubles of his country."

JUNTA WANTS RECOGNITION.

Breceda's Mission Reported to be to Demand It for the Rebels.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The Constitutionalist junta here is waiting for the arrival tomorrow of Capt. Alfredo Breceda, private secretary to Gen. Carranza, who is coming to Washington on a special mission from the First Chief of the Constitutionalists. Señores Cabrera, Zubaran, and Vasconcelos of the junta profess to have no knowledge of the character of the mission on which Capt. Breceda is coming.

While Breceda's interview at New Orleans, in which he said that Gen. Carranza would not consent to meetings between the Constitutionalist and Huerta delegates, is said by Constitutionalists here to represent the opinion of many of their party, it is doubted whether Breceda was speaking with authority. The belief among Constitutionalists here is that he was voicing his own opinion, basing it upon what he understood to be the views of Gen. Carranza from close personal association with him.

It was intimated here tonight that on Breceda's arrival in Washington he might take up with the Washington Government, through Zubaran and the junta, the question of recognition of the belligerency of the Constitutionalists. This, Constitutionalist supporters here say, will strengthen their cause more than anything else now except the capture of Zacatecas. They feel that they have reached the psychological moment for such a recognition.

The Constitutionalist leaders are engaged in watchful waiting for an answer from Gen. Carranza to the telegraphic interrogation sent to him on Saturday, seeking to know whether he would be willing to send delegates to Niagara Falls for an informal conference with the Huerta delegates concerning internal problems in Mexico. Rafael Zubaran, chief of the Constitutionalist confidential agency here, said tonight he had received no word from Gen. Carranza, who is considering the matter. Without instructions from Gen. Carranza none of the Constitutionalists here would confer with the Huerta delegates, formally or informally.

Constitutionalists tonight had received no confirmation of the reports of the capture of Zacatecas by Gen. Villa's army, and regarded the newspaper report as premature. If the report should prove correct, while it would undoubtedly increase the eagerness of the Huerta delegates for an agreement for peace, it would probably make the Constitutionalists more insistent than ever that an uncompromising member of their faction be chosen for provisional President.

MEXICO WINS AT THE FALLS.

Son of One of the Huerta Delegates Victor in Tennis Tournament.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 24.—The mediation tennis tournament, participated in by representatives of the United States, Great Britain, Mexico, Argentina, France, Chile, and Italy, ended this afternoon in a victory for Mexico. Luis Rodriguez, son of Agustin Rodriguez, one of the Mexican delegates to the mediation conferences, was the victor. He defeated Richard V. Oulahan, Washington representative of THE NEW YORK TIMES, in the finals, in two straight sets. The scores were 6—4, 7—5. A large silver loving cup was the trophy.

The sets, while strenuously contested, were productive of good feeling on all sides. Rodriguez was warmly congratulated.

A large gallery watched the finals. Tea was served in the hotel gardens immediately after the play, and Senhor da Gama, the Brazilian Ambassador, in making the presentation speech, expressed the wish that before the close of the conference another cup would be won, signalizing the success of the mediation proceedings.

The entire mediation colony, including the American delegates, were present.

EXPECTS PEACE AGREEMENT.

Esteva Ruiz Awaits Word from Niagara Falls on Important Clause.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 24.—Señor Esteva Ruiz said at 8 P. M. that he expected to hear tonight of the approval of one of the most important clauses in the Niagara Falls protocol.

The Foreign Office hears that Gen. Carranza has instructed Fernado Iglesias Calderon and Miguel Breceda to sound the Washington Government on whether his representatives would be admitted to the Niagara Falls conference.

AD MEN PICK CHICAGO.

Next Convention Likely to be Held There—To Re-elect Woodhead.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, June 24.—It looks as if Chicago had captured the Associated Advertising Clubs Convention for 1915, despite the opposition of San Francisco. The fight was waged in the Nominating Committee from 9:30 this morning to 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

When the final ballot was taken 32 votes were cast in favor of Chicago, 26 for San Francisco, and five for Minneapolis.

It is understood that when the elections are held on Thursday, President William Woodhead of San Francisco will not be opposed, and that the Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer will be returned by acclamation. They are: Vice President, Walter B. Cherry, Syracuse, N. Y.; Secretary, P. S. Floorea, Indianapolis, Ind.; Treasurer, T. W. Lequatte, Des Moines, Iowa. All were nominated by the committee.

These five members of the National Executive Committee were elected today: Frank H. Rowe, Toronto; Edward G. Shea, Baltimore; E. L. Shuman, Fort Worth; John Renfrew, Los Angeles, and A. E. Chamberlain, Chicago. The latter is the three-year nominee. Hereafter five Executive Committeemen will be elected annually for three-year terms, so that there will be a membership of fifteen.

President Stephenson of Printer's Ink today awarded the Printer's Ink Cup for ad. club efficiency to the Los Angeles Club. He warned New York and Chicago that they "would have to go some" to win it back next year.

A cup for oratorical proficiency was given to A. L. Sherman of El Paso, Tex., whose speech charmed the audience on Tuesday. One of the interesting speeches of today was the report of Richard H. Waldo, Chairman of the General Publicity Committee.

"No business gathering," he said, "has ever been as thoroughly advertised as this. What the members of this committee have done is witnessed by the wonderful gathering here."

MRS. JESUP LEAVES $8,450,000 TO PUBLIC

Syria; President of the National Young Men's Christian Association, President of the American Sunday School Union, President of the Chamber of Commerce, Trustee of the Protestant Half Orphan Asylum, and a Director of the New York Institution for the Deaf and Dumb.

Gift to Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Jesup directed that her bequest of $50,000 to the New York Chamber of Commerce should be used in whatever way the trustees of that organization thought best. Then she added: "Loans of money to aid young merchants would be agreeable to me." Mrs. Jesup directed that the income from the $50,000 bequeathed to the New York Institution for the Deaf and Dumb should be used to aid the students in obtaining work and in getting a start in life.

Several reductions of bequests to institutions were made in the codicil of Mrs. Jesup's will. Under the will the New York Zoological Gardens and the New York Botanical Gardens received $50,000 each. The codicil reduced both of these bequests by half. Reductions from $50,000 to $10,000 were made also in the bequests to the General Memorial Hospital for the Treatment of Cancer and Allied Diseases and St. Luke's Hospital. On the other hand, Cooper Union received nothing under the will, but $10,000 under the codicil.

Among the provisions in the codicil was this: "I give and bequeath to J. Pierpont Morgan the picture of the Parthenon by Church."

These bequests were made to individuals under Mrs. Jesup's will: To Richard M. Jesup, in trust, $300,000; $100,000 to Charles M. Jesup, her husband's nephew; $10,000 outright and an annuity of $10,000 to Catharine O. Jesup, $250,000 outright to Richard M. Jesup, $25,000 each to Mary Townsend Cuyler, Mrs. Katherine Lockwood, Mrs. Fanny Patterson, and Mrs. Eleanor B. Ives, $10,000 each to Mrs. Frances Lewis Cuyler, Julia Helen Wilson, and the Rev. Howard Bliss of Syria, $5,000 each to Maria Jesup Howe, Mrs. Thomas G. Evans, Mary De Witt Cuyler, grandniece; Frances Lewis Cuyler, grandniece; Helen Scott Cuyler, grandniece; Eleanor De Graff Cuyler, grandniece; Hilda Le Grand Cuyler, Benjamin Strong, Sallie Betts, Charlotte Wise Hopkins, Mary Bissell, the Rev. William T. Elsing, Henry Billington, an employe, and Mrs. J. Kearny Warren, and $1,000 each to James Martin, her coachman; John J. Donohue, a servant; Anthony O'Brien, a servant; Margaret D. B. Barrow, Mary Johnson, and Caroline Carlson. Bequests of $100 each were made to servants who had been in Mrs. Jesup's employ for one year.

Mrs. Jesup gave $2,000,000 outright to Thomas De Witt Cuyler, her nephew, whom she appointed her sole executor. Mr. Cuyler is a lawyer of Philadelphia. Besides the $2,000,000 bequest, Mr. Cuyler is to receive all his aunt's real estate at Bar Harbor, Me., and one-half of the residuary estate.

Eleanor De Graff Cuyler, Mrs. Jesup's niece, of 777 Madison Avenue, is to receive $1,000,000 outright; all jewelry, articles of personal use, and ornament at 197 Madison Avenue, at Lenox, Mass., and at Bar Harbor; all of her aunt's real estate at Lenox, Mass., and the other half of the residuary estate.

Mrs. Jesup's will was offered for probate yesterday by the law firm of Parsons, Closson & McIlvaine at 52 William Street. The will was drawn up on Feb. 8, 1910, and the codicil was added on March 28, 1913. No valuation has been placed on the entire estate. The cash bequests alone, however, amount to $12,316,000. Morris K. Jesup left an estate of $12,814,894, and the share of Mrs. Jesup in this was $9,617,091.

Henry Fairfield Osborn, President of the American Museum of Natural History, gave out a statement last night in regard to Mrs. Jesup's $5,000,000 bequest, in which he said:

"Mr. Jesup was elected to the Presidency of the museum at a very critical time in its development. Mr. Jesup devoted twenty-eight of the best years of his life to the development of the museum, and at the close of his administration he left the American Museum in a very advanced position among the museums of the world.

"This gift of Mrs. Jesup's is the most important gift that the American Museum has received. This legacy will greatly advance the scientific and educational interests of the museum. The funds will be used solely for exploration and for the scientific and educational work upon the collections. Undoubtedly the Trustees will desire especially to advance those departments of the museum in which Mr. Jesup was most deeply interested. The income from this endowment will be used in the best manner possible for the advance of the scientific purposes of the institution."

Mr. Osborn made known also the various gifts which Mrs. Jesup made to the Museum in her lifetime. In 1895 she presented to the Museum a large mass of pink tourmaline. Between 1899 and 1901 she presented important ethnological specimens from the Arapahoe, Shoshone, Bannock, Ute, and Kootenay Indians. The most important gifts were three Cape York meteorites—Ahnighto, Dog, and Woman—presented in 1908. The Ahnighto meteorite weighs thirty-six and a half tons and is the largest known meteorite in the world. It was brought from Cape York by Rear Admiral Peary. Mrs. Jesup offered to contribute $25,000 in 1913 to help equip the second Stefansson expedition. This expedition, however, was financed by the Canadian Government. Mrs. Jesup was elected a Benefactor of the Museum in 1911 in recognition of her generous contributions.

SCORE DIE IN STORM; $1,000,000 DAMAGE

HUNDREDS LEFT HOMELESS

Many Places Still Without Wire Communication—Milwaukee Alone Has a $150,000 Loss.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, June 24.—The worst storm in the history of Wisconsin swept every corner of the State between midnight and 4 o'clock this morning, leaving in its wake a dozen dead, more than fifty injurd, many of whom will die, and a property loss of certainly $1,000,000, probably much more. The estimate of $1,000,000 includes no loss to the growing crops.

At Emmet, in North Central Wisconsin, a few miles from Mosinee, five persons were killed and twenty-five injured, ten probably fatally, when the cyclone struck a barn in which a wedding dance was in progress. Only the bride and bridegroom escaped unhurt.

The storm toll, with many important towns yet to be heard from, telegraphic service being practically impossible in any part of the State, is thus summarized:

Mosinee—Five dead, twenty-five injured; property loss in county, $50,000.

Appleton—Losses in Outagamie County, $100,000; one dead, eight injured.

Kaukauna and Lower Fox River Valley, including Greenbay, $75,000.

Neenah and Menasha, Upper Fox Valley, $25,000.

Eau Claire—Farm buildings valued at $15,000 destroyed.

Oshkosh, Omero, and County Districts—Loss of $50,000; fifteen hurt, none dangerously; one killed by live wire.

Ripon—One killed, three hurt; property loss of $25,000. The 125 men employed by Mrs. Victor L. Lawson of Chicago at her Summer home were turned over to the county to assist in clearing up the wreckage.

Watertown—One dead, three seriously hurt; property loss, $25,000.

Fond du Lac—Damage, $50,000.

Sparta—Property loss, $50,000; one dead, three injured.

Tomah—Loss, $50,000.

Waukesha—Damage, $25,000.

Berlin—One killed, two injured; property loss, $20,000.

Manitowoc—Loss, $8,000.

La Crosse—Property loss, $75,000. This includes the destruction of the Indian relic collection of W. E. Smith, the finest private collection in the country. There was a loss of $30,000 at Minnesota City across the river.

Milwaukee—Property loss, $150,000; one killed by live wire, three injured.

ST. PAUL, June 24.—Four killed in and near Minneapolis was the reported havoc today of last night's wind and rain storm. Esther Munson, 17 years old, was killed when her home collapsed. Louis Grams and Margaret Kelly were drowned when their canoe was blown over in Lake Harriet. Miss Loretta Grams of Jordan, Minn., also was caught in a canoe which was swamped in Lake Harriet, and drowned.

WATERTOWN, S. D., June 24.—Two hundred buildings in the path of last night's tornado present a scene of ruin today. All the most seriously injured are said to have a chance to recover. A special meeting of the City Council and Commercial Club was held today to start the work of raising a relief fund for the victims. Hundreds were left homeless.

At Clear Lake, S. D., H. E. Manning was killed and Mrs. Christianson and her baby daughter were fatally hurt. The property loss is estimated at $40,000.

ENGLISH TO HAVE PAVILION.

Form an Organization to Build Structure for San Francisco Fair.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 24.—A National Committee has been formed for the purpose of building a British-American pavilion at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. This body will work in co-operation with the British committee formed for the same purpose in London, whose members, it is expected, will contribute funds for the purpose and send an exhibit. This plan has no bearing on the arrangements already made for the British competitive exhibitions in the various industrial sections.

Practically every leading British society in California was represented at the meeting held at the St. Francis Hotel last evening. It was announced that the National Committee to raise funds for the pavilion would have as members George T. Wilson, Vice President of the Pilgrims; Charles W. Bowring, President of St. George's Society, and M. A. Morrison, Jr., President of St. Andrew's Society, all of New York; John Creerar, President of the British Empire Association of Illinois, and the Presidents of the St. Andrews Society, Welsh Society, and Sons of St. George Society of Chicago, and the Presidents of all the leading British organizations in California.

A State organization was formed with A. C. Kains, Chairman; John McGregor, Treasurer; George Wright, Secretary, and the chief officers of the Sons of St. George, St. Andrew's Society, British California Association, and other societies as members.

It was estimated that between $300,000 and $400,000 could be raised. This would be enough to erect and maintain a representative British pavilion. Steps are being taken to form committees in each State.

but was in great pain. I did the best I could to make him comfortable. Mr. Mitchel requested that Dr. John A. Hartwell, who had attended Mr. Polk when he was shot, be summoned. Dr. Hartwell was out of town, and it was 10:30 o'clock before he returned. He came immediately to the Mayor's apartment and took charge of the patient. He advised that Mr. Reynolds be removed to St. Luke's Hospital. The next morning, Sunday, I removed him to St. Luke's, where he is receiving the best of attention."

Dr. Savage, who attended many persons with gunshot wounds when he was assigned to east side hospitals, was asked whether Mr. Reynolds's wounds, judging by his experience, would prove serious. He said that they were serious, but not necessarily dangerous. The great danger to be avoided, he said, was infection.

According to Dr. Savage, the wound in the hand probably would be more serious than that in the thigh. He said that the least sign of infection would necessitate an amputation of the finger, if not the hand.

"The bullet passed through a network of heavy tissue in the thigh, and infection is possible there also," said Dr. Savage.

Patient Resting Well.

Dr. Savage called on Mr. Reynolds in the hospital yesterday morning and found him resting calmly. No callers were permitted to see the patient. He appeared to be somewhat improved.

Besides Dr. Hartwell another surgeon, Dr. James W. Jameson, 375 Park Avenue, was called into consultation after Mr. Reynolds reached the hospital. Dr. Jameson could not be found last night. Dr. Savage said that Dr. Jameson had dressed the wounds earlier in the day.

Instructions had been left at St. Luke's by the Superintendent that nothing was to be given out about the Reynolds case. It was admitted in the afternoon that a Mr. Reynolds was at the hospital, but no one would say that it was the ex-Senator. At midnight, however, his identity was admitted. The clerks in charge refused to state what his condition was.

None of Mr. Reynolds's relatives had been informed of the accident. They live in Long Beach, L. I. Friends at the hotels in Long Beach said that the ex-Senator was taking a vacation and that he would not return for several weeks. They considered it strange that he had disappeared so mysteriously, but none of them had heard of the accidental shooting.

It appeared that the ex-Senator was most missed in Long Beach by the politicians. There was an election there on Tuesday, and he had promised to devote all his time to it on Monday and Tuesday. He was last seen at Long Beach on Saturday morning. Mayor Mitchel met him there, and they went off together in an automobile. The Senator told some friends that he would return on Sunday morning to play tennis. He sent no word, and his partner could not understand why he had not appeared to keep his engagement. In the afternoon Mayor Mitchel again appeared at Long Beach, but Mr. Reynolds was not with him.

Why Mayor Carried a Pistol.

The Mayor has practiced target shooting for many years. On Saturday he and Mr. Reynolds used long-barreled revolvers for practice, and it was one of these weapons and not the smaller pistol which the Mayor carried for his own protection that exploded.

The fact that Mr. Mitchel goes about armed became known at the time of the attempt on his life by Michael P. Mahoney on April 17. As the Mayor walked across the City Hall Park to the police station with his assailant it was noted that he was carrying a revolver in his hand. Asked about this afterward, he said:

"I had a gun in my pocket. I have carried one for the last three months. The experience of the last administration teaches us that there are always a few crazy people in every community, and no one can foretell what they will do. The Mayor is always receiving threatening letters."

"Have you received many such letters lately?" the Mayor was asked.

"I don't know," he replied. "I don't see them or take the trouble to read them. Erratic tendencies usually manifest themselves at the beginning of an administration, and so I have been on my guard."

Reynolds Father of Long Beach.

Ex-Senator Reynolds has been known for years as one of the most adventurous and successful of Brooklyn's real estate men. Born in Brooklyn the son of a builder, he went into business for himself before he was 21. He made $50,000 at the time that the elevated railroad was opening up new territory in Brooklyn, but he lost it all when he came to New York and tried to play the game on the Consolidated Stock Exchange.

He went back to the real estate business in Brooklyn, and, in spite of the lure of the West, which has twice nearly drawn him from his home town, he has passed all his business life close to the place of his birth. He has aided in the development of the Park Slope, Borough Park, and Bensonhurst, and he has been identified with two great amusement enterprises, the Montauk Theatre and Dreamland at Coney Island.

But his great idea has been the formation of Long Beach. Taking a mere stretch of sand, he has for the last ten years been spending vast sums in building up a resort to be compared with Atlantic City. When Dreamland was burned and the city acquired its site, he devoted practically all his time and capital to Long Beach, and he has already gone far toward making it a success.

Mr. Reynolds's service in the Legislature was in his younger days, when he was a prominent member of the Republican Party. He has sat both in the Assembly and the Senate, and distinguished himself there as strong enough to be independent even under such a powerful boss as the late Thomas C. Platt.

PUT OUT DYING MAN TO SAVE HER NAME

Story Told by Stamford Widow When W. R. Ballou Was Found Unconscious at Her Door.

SKULL FRACTURED BY FALL?

Bloody Footprints Led to Mrs. Helen M. Angle's Rooms—She Is Held for Rich Man's Death.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., June 24.—Waldo R. Ballou, a leading Republican politician and business man of this place, 69 years old, was found in a dying condition late Tuesday night on the sidewalk in front of the Rippowam Building, the home of the Rippowam Lodge, No. 24, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, in West Main Street. His skull was fractured. He was unconscious and died without regaining his senses in the Stamford Hospital soon after 3 o'clock this morning.

Chief of Police Brennan, Lieut. Nevins, and other officers reached the house soon after the body was found. They entered the building and found a pool of blood in the ground floor vestibule and the tracks of bare feet leading up the stairs. There also were red smears on the wall of the stairway, which is built-in and has no balustrade, only a rail against the wall on either side.

The tracks of the feet led up the stairs to the landing on the second floor, where there was a large pool of blood. This landing has a cement floor. From it the tracks led up to the third floor and to the door of the studio apartment occupied alone by Mrs. Helen M. Angle, 40 years old, an old friend of Mr. Ballou. It was noticed that there were no marks on the stairs between the second and third floors, except the tracks of bare feet.

Chief Brennan knocked at Mrs. Angle's door and was admitted by her. She was in her nightdress with a kimono over it, and appeared to be in an almost hysterical condition. When asked about Mr. Ballou, she shuddered and said that he had called on her that evening, but had left the house at 10 o'clock. When told that he had been found dying at the foot of the stairs leading to her door, she became more agitated. She readily admitted Chief Brennan and his men, however, and consented to their searching her apartment.

Find Man's Hat in Room.

The apartment consists of two large rooms—a living room in front and a room fitted up for sleeping behind it, both very well furnished. From the door the police found red tracks of bare feet leading across the front room to the rear room, but there were no other marks and no disorder of furniture to indicate that a struggle had occurred. On a box seat in the front room Chief Brennan found a straw hat dented in front, with red stains on it. The hat had Mr. Ballou's initials in it. In view of the fact that no hat was found beside the dying man, the police certainly regard it as Mr. Ballou's hat.

On opening the box seat on which the hat was found, the police discovered a waist belonging to Mrs. Angle on which there were red stains. Other garments of hers, similarly marked, were found in the drawer of a bureau in the rear room. No weapon with which the man might have been struck was found in the room. A cloth which evidently had been used to wipe up some floor was found in a closet.

Mrs. Angle would not say anything to the police about Mr. Ballou's visit or departure, except that he had called on her as an old friend and had left her rooms in a good humor. When the police found the clothing and hat she realized the incriminating nature of the discoveries and asked:

"Am I under arrest?"

Chief Brennan told her that it would be necessary to detain her as a material witness at least, and she was taken to the second floor police dormitory in the Town Hall, where she has been confined ever since, although no charge has been made against her.

Mrs. Angle's Story.

Mrs. Angle consented to see reporters there today, and, although she said that she could make no formal statement, she did talk about the case. Beginning hysterically, but becoming calmer, she said:

"I don't know what I'm to do. I seem to have no friend on earth. No one will speak a good word for me. The finding of Mr. Ballou's body and the circumstances of the affair now all are against me. I know things look bad, but I am innocent of any wrong."

When told that her father, Leonard Blondell, a leading citizen of this place, would arrive from Maine tonight, and that he certainly would stand by her, Mrs. Angle said:

"Yes, he is the one person to whom I can go now. But I fear the effect of this thing on him. He will suffer intolerably, I know."

That she had suffered since last night was very evident. She said that she had neither eaten nor slept, and she showed it. Although a very large and well-preserved woman, she appeared haggard and her eyes, ordinarily a clear gray, were bloodshot and dull. Asked to tell just what did happen in the Rippowan Building, Mrs. Angle said:

"I had nothing whatever to do with Mr. Ballou's death. It was entirely accidental. We had no quarrel at all. He had been drinking when he came to see me last night, and when he left my rooms he still showed the effects of it, but he was in a good humor. He went out and I shut the door behind him and began at once to prepare for bed, as I was very tired. It was then about 10 o'clock.

"As I was undressing I heard a fall on the steps, but thought that Mr. Ballou had only stumbled. A few minutes later, however, I thought I had better investigate, so went out of my door. I saw his body lying at the second floor landing. I ran down in bare feet and tried to arouse him. He would not wake up, and then I discovered that he was bleeding from the head. I thought that he was dead. There seemed to be no life in him.

Carried Body Down Stairs.

"My first impulse was to call the police, and, of course, I should have done that. But I was in a panic. I realized the scandal and notoriety that would come if the man were found on that landing. I thought that he was dead and that I could, therefore, do him no good by calling in any one, so, without reasoning clearly, I picked up the body and carried it, leaning against the wall, down the stairs to the sidewalk. Here I dropped it and then hurried back to my room. On the way up I found Mr. Ballou's hat. Fearing to go to the street again, I took it to my room.

"In the room I saw that my clothes were bloody, but before taking them off I tried to wipe up some of the blood from the stairs. I could not wipe out the stains so ran back to my room, undressed, and lay down. I could not sleep, I could not think. I lay in a panic of fear until the police came.

"I know that things appear to be against me, that my story may appear improbable to some, but it is the truth. I did not have a thing to do with Mr. Ballou's death. My only mistake was in not calling some one when I found him on the landing."

Several things that came out here today seemed to bear out Mrs. Angle's story. A half-empty whisky flask was found in Ballou's hip pocket. It had not been broken, but Chief Brennan said that the man could have fallen down the steps face forward without breaking the flask. Also the fact that there were no blood marks above the second floor landing except the tracks convinced the police that the blow received by Mr. Ballou, whether from an instrument or a fall, was delivered on this landing. Standing on the landing Chief Brennan said:

"The man first fell right here, I'm sure of that."

Robert Merritt, a watchman in the Borden Milk Company's store on the ground floor of the Rippowam Building, said that between 10 and 11 o'clock last night he heard the sound of something falling on the stairs of the building, but thought nothing of it at the time.

Close Friends for Years.

Mrs. Angle and Mr. Ballou had been close friends for more than five years. Although he was 29 years older than Mrs. Angle they often went about together. They were frequently seen in restaurants and riding in her father's automobile together. But with all, this there was never a word of scandal in Stamford about either of them. It was remarkable how every one here testified to Mrs. Angle's good reputation.

Mrs. Angle's father and Mr. Ballou were good friends. Some persons believed that Mr. Ballou, would marry Mrs. Angle, but others said that their friendship was purely platonic. Mr. Ballou was a widower and Mrs. Angle a widow. She had been divorced six years. Her former husband, Frank Angle, lives in Bridgeport. She obtained the divorce on the ground of desertion. Angle said in Bridgeport that he was convinced that his former wife's reputation was unimpeachable.

No Murder Motive.

All of these things helped to baffle the police in their efforts to establish any reason why Mrs. Angle should have killed Mr. Ballou. Those inclined to believe that she knew more than she told conjectured variously, revenge, jealousy, sudden anger, and other things being ascribed without evidence to support them.

Mrs. Angle did not appear at the preliminary hearing of the Coroner's inquest held here this afternoon. She was represented by ex-Probate Judge J. Stanley Finch, a friend of her family, who asked that the inquest be postponed until Mrs. Angle's father had arrived and had engaged counsel. Judge Finch was only temporary counsel, he said. Prosecutor Albert Phillips, who is also Secretary of State, represented the State before the Coroner, but offered no objection to the continuance of the inquest.

Coroner Phelan of Bridgeport, who presided at the hearing, consented to postpone the main part of the inquest until 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, but said that he would at once hear witnesses whose testimony could not possibly affect Mrs. Angle's relation to the case. He then called the two physicians who examined the body and the man who found it.

The first witness was Dr. George Sherrill of the Stamford Hospital, medical examiner for the Coroner. He said that he had been present at the autopsy performed by Dr. Bruce S. Weaver of 135th Street and Broadway, New York City, who had been summoned as an expert pathologist. Dr. Weaver was then called. He said Mr. Ballou had died from a hemorrhage of the brain, caused by skull fracture. There were two linear fractures in the skull, he said, one running on the left side from just behind the ear downward to the base of the skull; the other on the right side from just above the eye down to a point two inches behind the ear. Two inches behind the right ear a piece of the skull one inch square was loose. There were four or five star-shaped smaller fractures in the top of the skull and contusions and abrasions on the skull, forehead and nose. The right hand was marked with contusions and abrasions.

Injuries Indicate a Fall.

"The principal of these injuries, the two linear fractures in particular," Dr. Weaver said, "were caused by a blow either on the forehead or on top of the head, and it was a very heavy blow. The blow was received in one of the strongest parts of the skull and the fractures were made in one of the weakest. This often happens.

"The blow was from a heavy, flat surface, not a blunt or pointed instrument. It might have come from a fall on a cement floor or from some such thing as a bed slat or chair back."

Dr. Weaver was asked by the Coroner to give his opinion of how the blow was received.

"A fall down the steps from the third-floor landing to the second-floor landing," he said, "would explain all of the injuries. If Mr. Ballou was killed by a blow delivered by some one it was in a scuffle. The marks on the face, nose, hands, and skull could not all have been delivered in one death-dealing blow. One blow could have caused both of the long fractures which were the cause of death, however."

Although Dr. Sherrill and Dr. Weaver agreed that the death of Mr. Ballou might have been caused either by an instrument in the hands of some one or by a fall on the cement floor of the second-story landing in the house, both were inclined to believe that a fall had been responsible for Mr. Ballou's death. Whether Mr. Ballou had been pushed or had fallen accidentally, they could not conjecture, they said.

Says Daughter Is Innocent.

Leonard Blondell, Mrs. Angle's father, arrived here at 8 o'clock tonight from Southport, Me., where he had gone for the Summer with his wife, Mrs. Angle's stepmother. He hurried to his daughter and remained with her for more than an hour. When he left the police dormitory he said:

"I will not discuss my daughter's case at all except to say that she has convinced me of her absolute innocence. And I will spend every cent I have and give all of my energies to proving her innocence. She is resting well now, and I am sure will soon be a free woman."

Mr. Blondell appointed N. C. Downs of Stamford, a former City Court Judge here, as his daughter's counsel. Judge Downs would not talk about the case at length, but said that he would not put Mrs. Angle on the stand to testify in her own behalf at the Coroner's hearing tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Blondell is an ex-Councilman of this place, and is wealthy. He retired from the coal and road contracting business three years ago and owns valuable real estate here.

Mr. Ballou was a former Councilman and an ex-Treasurer of the Republican Town Committee. His second wife died five years ago, and since then he had lived in the boarding house of E. P. Guernsey at 24 Relay Place, just around the corner from where his body was found last night. He had two children, Harry Ballou of Mamaroneck and Mrs. Nellie Whitney, wife of Dr. Ray Whitney of McLean's Hospital, Waverly, Mass. They both arrived here this afternoon. Harry Ballou attended the Coroner's hearing, but refused to say anything about the case.

Waldo R. Ballou was a small man, not more than 5 feet 6 inches in height, and weighed 145 pounds. Although there was evidence that he had been drinking last night, he did not have the reputation of drinking excessively. He stood well politically and socially, and his place as Superintendent of the padlock department of the Yale & Towne factory here not only established him as a business man, but assured him a comfortable income.

LANGDON DISCOVERY STIRS THEOLOGIANS

Proves the Authenticity of Book of Genesis, Dr. Schechter Says.

HE WILL GO TO OXFORD

Head of Jewish Seminary Says Nippur Tablets Have Revealed Oldest Account of the Flood.

The publication yesterday of the discovery made by Dr. Langdon of Jesus College, Oxford, of a pre-Semitic account of the deluge among the early Babylonian tablets disinterred at Nippur aroused the greatest interest among scholars and students of the Bible in this city.

Dr. Solomon Schechter, the well-known theologian and President of the Jewish Theological Seminary since 1902, a former professor at Cambridge University, and Professor of Hebrew at the University College in London, when seen at his home, 468 Riverside Drive, yesterday afternoon, was enthusiastic over Dr. Langdon's work.

"I know that Prof. Langdon is a careful scholar, and I have great faith in his announcement," he said. "If it is as announced, I can only say that it is so remarkable as to be titanic. I cannot make intelligent observations about this until I have the full information. I am going over to Hamburg next week, and I shall cross over to England and see with my own eyes what he has found.

"As I understand the announcement, Prof. Langdon has found the origin of the Book of Genesis, and his discovery goes to prove the authenticity of that work. George Smith's discoveries in Chaldea, which was the ancient name for Babylonia, in 1872 and 1873, while fairly complete, differed in material facts from the text of the Book of Genesis as handed down by the Hebrews. That led to a great amount of controversy which has never been satisfactorily settled. Now, the Chaldean account of the Deluge is of later date than the Nippur tablets that Prof. Langdon has just translated. That proves that they are an account of the same story, corrupted by generations of telling and shaping to the religious necessities of the day. The Langdon translations are of writing that might date back to over 2,000 years B. C. while those of the Chaldean account must date from about between 600 and 1,000 years B. C.

"Thus it is easily deduced that the Jews obtained the more ancient account of the Deluge, for at the time all those countries were under the same King or Emperor. Later the Jews became a separate kingdom, and kept the old story perfect and intact, while in Assyria and Asia Minor it was corrupted and adapted to the needs of the people. It is not surprising that the oldest account of the Flood should agree with that in the Jewish records. I am very sorry that there are breaks in the inscriptions. They, of course, lead to inaccuracies. The account of the Fall of Man in which Noah appears instead of Adam requires further explanation. It is my opinion that a fragment of the Enoch legend has entered into this and created confusion that has resulted in the identities of Adam and Noah being confused. This, however, is only conjecture.

"The portion of the translation in which Noah received revelations from the Babylonia water god, Enki, being taught the wisdom of the gods, will require much explanation. I can find no parallel to this in the Bible although Noah was advised of the coming of the flood. This sounds a little like the Enoch legend also, and it will be difficult to determine the exact truth. You know Enoch occurs in several places and seems to have been an important personage, but there is never very much about him. He is one of those mystical, almost mythical, characters in the ancient writings who are always being confounded with some one else and leading to inaccuracy. The story of Enoch as told in the Apocrypha seems to have a pertinent relation to the Noah of Prof. Langdon's translations. Prof. Langdon's discovery when properly placed before the public will add greatly to the proof of the authenticity of the Book of Genesis and the whole Old Testament."

"It seems a shame that it took an English professor to make this discovery. These Nippur tablets have been in the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania for some years and the deciphering ought to have been done by an American. It seems as though none of the archaeologists of this country would attempt to do this work, although several wanted very much to try it. It was told to me that there were always difficulties placed in the way of American Professors of Biblican archaeology when they wanted to get at these Nippur tablets. Prof. Langdon does not seem to have had this trouble and has succeeded where our own people have not even been able to try."

Prof. Loring Woart Batten, Clement C. Moore, Professor of the Literature and Interpretation of the Old Testament at the General Theological Seminary, Chelsea Square, was greatly interested in Prof. Langdon's discovery but thought it was not of very great importance.

"I doubt if Prof. Langdon has discovered anything new," he said, "and the announcement that I read contained only a few facts. As soon as I can get the full text of his translations I will be better able to judge and decide if there is anything new in it. He seems to have found only another variation of the same story that the Jews wrote in their Bible. That story was common property all over Assyria, Asia Minor, and adjacent countries, and was adapted and corrupted by each people that used it. The fact that the Jewish version of it is accepted, was that they were the ones to preserve it in their Biblical writings, and so hand it down to us."

"Prof. Langdon's discovery amounts only to a corroboration of what the Jews wrote and makes their Bible more authentic, if another version of what seems to have been common property among a great number of different and constantly warring peoples can amount to a corroboration. I have found in the writings that have been discovered by the late Prof. George Smith and subsequent explorers, and now Prof. Langdon, that there is a great confusion between the characters of Adam, Noah, and Enoch. In some inscriptions it is one and in others another. The main story, however, remains the same; it is only its variations that differ.

"I do not see that Prof. Langdon has Eve. It is probable that she is mentioned also, but the reports do not say anything about her. If she were omitted in the inscriptions this would certainly be a new version of the old story. However, I shall be gald to get the full text of Prof. Langdon's translations. I feel sure that they will tell nothing new, and their importance will lie in the fact that they are the oldest known version of the story of the Deluge and the Fall of Man."

At the Jewish Theological Seminary, 535 West 123d Street, there was an active discussion among students of Biblical history, who were of the opinion that Prof. Langdon's discovery was of great importance. They compared the ancient Hebrew text with the few facts contained in the printed announcement, and said that the Nippur tablets made the story of Adam and Noah stronger than ever. They said, however, that Prof. Langdon might have made a mistake in one of the fragments translated, and that the story of Enoch might have crept in and been taken for that of Noah.

PAEBEL CONFIRMS LANGDON.

Translations Agree with Those Given Out in London.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—Officials of the University of Pennsylvania Museum today confirmed the announcement of Prof. Stephen Langdon in London yesterday that Noah and not Adam was responsible for the Fall of Man as shown by his reading of Babylonian tablets unearthed at Nippur.

Dr. Langdon, who is an American, was in this country last October, and visited the University of Pennsylvania Museum, where he made copies of fifty of the Nippur tablets. His translations tally exactly with those made here by Dr. Arno Poebel of Johns Hopkins University from other tablets in the same collection.

What makes the new account of the Fall of Man especially interting and important is that it is not, like other versions, written in the Semitic Babylonian language, but in Sumerian, the older tongue of the non-Semitic race, which, in the early days of history, held sway over Babylonia. By comparison with other tablets written in the time of King Hammurabi, the date of whose reign is definitely known, the tablet from which Dr. Langdon made his translation probably was written about 2500 B. C., making the oldest record known at present of the Creation, the Fall of Man, and the Deluge.

Examination shows that the fragments of tablets transmitted by Dr. Poebel were separate, and that with other tablets they contained the full story of the beginning of the world.

Dr. Langdon is easily the foremost Sumerian scholar in the world. Dr. Poebel is an able translator of the language, and both he and Dr. Langdon will give their full translations of such parts of the tablets as exist to the public in book form within a short time.

Whether the Bible as we have it today will have to be rewritten is a question. Whether the Hebrew writers got their ideas from the Sumerians and Babylonians or only through direct revelation is a subject concerning which theologians do not agree.

6 HURT AS AUTOS COLLIDE.

Cars Met at High Speed on a Side Hill Near Metuchen, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

METUCHEN, N. J., June 24.—As a result of an automobile collision on Bunham's Hill, south of here, about 8:30 tonight, Frank Moore of South River, N. J., and Henry Carson of New Brunswick are said to be dying, and four other persons are more or less seriously injured.

Moore and Carson were driving down the hill at a high rate of speed in Moore's touring car when William L. Taylor of Highland Park started up the hill in an automobile containing Mrs. Taylor, Miss Blanche Lucas, and Miss Clementine Eckrodt. A logging wagon laden with the trunk of a large tree was between the cars and kept the occupants of the two automobiles from seeing each other. Moore's car shot around the wagon and crashed into the other, which had only just turned out to pass the logging wagon.

The Taylor automobile was upset and all its passengers thrown out. Moore's car was thrown over a bank, a distance of fifteen feet, and both Moore and Carson were pinned under it.

While the driver of the logging wagon was making what effort he could to help Taylor and his passengers aid came from Irving Everett of Highland Park, who had been driving a few hundred yards ahead of the Taylor party and was in their company. He noticed that the Taylor car was not following and went back to investigate. Drs. L. Y. Lippincott and Herman Gross were summoned by telephone and arrived in time to help take Moore and Carson out from under the ruins of their car. They were taken to St. Peter's Hospital, where it was said late last night that neither had much chance to live.

Miss Lucas was the most seriously injured of Taylor's party, with a broken leg and severe cuts about the head. She was taken to Wells Memorial Hospital, where it was said that although very badly hurt, she probably would recover. Mrs. Taylor had a broken nose and internal injuries, and Taylor and Miss Eckrodt were cut and bruised. All three were taken to the Taylor home in Everett's car.

RAJAH A LUCKY BUYER.

Desired to Own a Winning Race Horse—First Venture Successful.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 24.—Ten days ago the Rajah of Pudukota, a small State of India, arriving in Paris on his first visit, learned that the Paris season culminated with three big horse races—the Grand Steeplechase last Sunday, the Grand Hurdle-Race today, and the Grand Prix next Sunday.

The Rajah at once expressed a desire to own the winner of one of the races. He was unable to purchase the winner of the Grand Steeplechase, as it was owned by the millionaire James Hennessy, nor the favorite for the Grand Prix, which is owned by another millionaire, Maurice Rothschild, so he bought the horse Lilium for $20,000.

Lilium today won the Grand Hurdle Race by six lengths. The race brings $16,000 of his $20,000 back to the Rajah, besides whatever bets on his horse that he may have made.

LIGHTNING STRIKES TWO.

Hostler Killed; Lieutenant Dying—Were Attending Horses.

While the storm was in progress last night lightning struck a stable known as Henny's at the Sheepshead Bay race track, killed Frederick Peters, a hostler employed in the Police Department, and injured Lieut. George Woods of Traffic Squad A so badly that he is expected to die. He was removed to the Coney Island Hospital, his right side paralyzed. The doctors gave no hope for his recovery.

With several others Peters and Woods had gone to the stable to quiet police horses stabled there in preparation for the exhibition tomorrow and Saturday at the Brighton Beach track for the Police Honor Roll Relief Fund. Lieut. Woods had a horse there which he was to ride in the exhibition.

Of the half dozen men in the shed, Peters and the Lieutenant were the only ones injured. They were standing in an open space near the entrance, and after a flash which stunned the others they were found motionless on the ground. The lightning ripped a hole in the roof under which the men were standing, and it took fire.

While some of the policemen carried the injured men out others fought the fire and soon put it out.

MISS M'GILL LOSES; VERDICT FOR $6,500

Mrs. Mayer Wins Damages for Alienation of Husband, the Heiress's Chauffeur.

NOT GUILTY OF IMMORALITY

Defendant's Defiant Remark Enables Attorney to Introduce Story Judge Barred.

A verdict for $6,500 damages was awarded to Mary Mayer, wife of Walter Mayer, a Jersey City chauffeur, last night in her suit for $50,000 for alienation of her husband's affections against Miss Eleanor McGill, Mayer's employer. The trial was held before Judge William Speer in the Hudson County Circuit Court, Jersey City. On the second count, which involved charges of immorality, a verdict of "not guilty" was returned.

The jury retired shortly after 4 o'clock. When at 6 o'clock no verdict had been returned, Judge Speer left the court and Court Clerk Kelley remained to receive the verdict. At 9:30 the jurors returned to court and announced the verdict. Abraham Graham, one of the jurors, stood up and said that the jury had not agreed on the second count. Clerk Kelley then ordered them to retire again. At 10:15 the jury returned again and announced a final verdict of "not guilty" on the second count. None of the principals was present when the jury's decision was announced. Only a few lawyers were in the courtroom.

The last day of the trial was full of dramatic incidents.

Miss McGill, heiress to $600,000, former wife of Dr. William Carr, whom she divorced, and daughter of the late Dr. John D. McGill, lost her composure when Alexander Simpson, counsel to Mrs. Mayer, attacked her in his summing up. She had presented a dignified mien, and occasionally had wept, but when the lawyer excoriated her she became excited and glared at him. He in turn called attention to her altered demeanor.

"She has been posing throughout the trial," Mr. Simpson exclaimed. "That childish innocence is all pose, but there is nothing sweet and angelic, nothing innocent, about her as she looks at me now with passion and hatred in every line of her face."

Mr. Simpson prior to this had bitterly arraigned the argument of Miss McGill's counsel, Gilbert Collins and William D. Edwards.

"Judge Collins and Senator Edwards," said Mr. Simpson, "have told you that this gentle, refined, tenderly nurtured, sweet, pure, and angelic young woman would not stoop to pick up this pusillanimous, dishwashing, hairdressing, gasoline-reeking chauffeur as a lover, but Senator Edwards and Judge Collins have been so busy digging into musty law books that they have forgotten human nature and history. Didn't Catherine the Second of Russia seek lovers among her footguards? Didn't Princess Louise of Saxony run away with a servant? We recall scores of incidents where great ladies have stooped to pick lovers from the lower walks of life."

After characterizing Miss McGill's attitude throughout the trial and her tears at the summing up as pose, Mr. Simpson continued:

"The defense has put nobody on except Mayer, the dishwasher and seducer of women, [Mayer had testified that he was forced to marry Mrs. Mayer shortly before their child was born] and Miss McGill."

It was at this point that Miss McGill forgot herself and made an indiscreet remark in a tone that the jury could plainly hear: "You forget the bellboy."

That gave Mr. Simpson an opportunity to get before the jury important evidence which had been ruled out by Judge William H. Speer.

"Yes," the lawyer retorted, bowing toward Miss McGill, "I did forget the bellboy. I thank the lady for calling my attention to it. Yes, we did have a bellboy here from Montreal who made an affidavit which was not allowed in evidence and who on the witness stand gave testimony different from that in his affidavit, which was taken some time ago. This bellboy said in his affidavit that when Miss McGill and Mayer were at the Plattsburg Hotel, he had seen Miss McGill and Mayer in the room, and that at that time Mayer had said to him, 'Don't you believe we're married? We were married in Vermont last night.'

"Gentlemen of the jury, if you will take the register of that Plattsburg Hotel you will find that the entries of the rooms of the McGill party have been doctored, and that no other entry in the book has been changed."

Mr. Collins, in summing up for Miss McGill, said that the suit against his client was "blackmail." He spoke of Miss McGill as having been brave and heroic throughout the trial, and having told the truth and frustrated the efforts of opposing counsel to trap her.

"Miss McGill," said Mr. Collins, "comes of good fighting stock. You all no doubt knew her father, a scholarly, stalwart upholder of the right. You cannot brand his daughter here, in the flower of her womanhood, as a lustful girl. There has been no evidence to warrant such an infamous charge."

YELLOW TAXI MEN STRIKE.

Fear Loss of Jobs Under Consolidation with Mason-Seaman Company.

The chauffeurs of the Yellow Taxicab Company began to go on strike at 1 o'clock this morning, about the time the first cars came in from their rounds. It was said then that by sunrise all of the machines would have been brought in by the drivers after their night's work, and that none of them would return today.

The reason given for the strike, dissatisfaction over the change of management, was more fully explained early this morning. Some of the yellow taxi drivers think they will lose their jobs after the consolidation of their company with the Mason-Seamon Company goes into effect. An order was recently issued that on next Saturday the yellow automobiles were to be transferred from their garage at Eighth Avenue and Forty-ninth Street to the garage of the Mason-Seaman Company at Eleventh Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street. Some of the striking chauffeurs got the idea that once the transfer was made, many of them would lose their places as a result of the amalgamation.

KILL STERILIZATION LAW.

Federal Court Rules That Iowa Statute Is Null and Void.

KEOKUK, Iowa, June 24.—The Iowa vasectomy, or sterilization, law, passed by the last General Assembly, was declared unconstitutional, null, and void in a decision filed by Judge Smith McPherson of Red Oak, Iowa, United States District Judge of the Southern District of Iowa, here today.

The decision, which affects similar laws in other States, grants the writ of temporary injunction sought by Rudolph Davis, an inmate of the State Penitentiary, enjoining the members of the Board of Parole, the Warden, and the penitentiary physician from subjecting the prisoner to the operation.

Judge Walter I. Smith, United States Circuit Judge for this (the Eighth) district, and Judge John C. Pollock, United States District Judge for the District of Kansas, concurred with Judge McPherson.

After discussing the case at length, Judge McPherson says:

"Our conclusion is that the infliction of this penalty is in violation of the Constitution, which provides that cruel and unusual punishment shall not be inflicted."

airboat of Capt. Ernst Bass, a graduate of the Curtiss School of Aviation.

Mr. Hollander brought with him a sidereal and an astronomical watch made for Lieut. Porte by the Waltham factory, which manufactured the two watches of identical make carried by Admiral Peary to the north pole. Lieut. Porte will have the watches in a leather belt and use them to time his observations when he fixes his position by calculations based on the distance of the sun and the North Star above the horizon.

The two engines built for the America's sister airboat finished their bench test at the Curtiss workshop today. They stood a thirty-hour run without a hitch and consumed a total of 280 gallons of gasoline, eight gallons less than was used in a similar trial by the engines of the America. The duplicate engines will be shipped to Newfoundland and substituted on the America if her own engines develop any trouble.

The second airboat is being built on the pattern of the America to attempt the transatlantic flight, if the America meets with disaster.

Lieut. Porte was elated today over word he had received that the betting at Lloyds against the success of his flight had dropped from odds of 47 to 1 to 5 to 1.

It was learned late tonight that a number of employes at the Curtiss factory will win $94,000 if the America's trip is successful. Last February, when the odds were 47 to 1, they raised a pool of $2,000 and bet it at Lloyds against $94,000 on the success of the flight.

Lieut. Porte admitted tonight that it would probably be necessary to increase the lifting surface of the America at once to enable her to load 2,000 pounds of gasoline. He said that he had opened the throttle wide tonight for the first time, and the America had responded beautifully with a burst of speed, but that he favored being on the safe side by enlarging the wings.

ALMOST EQUALS OCEAN FLIGHT

German Aviator Stays in Air for 18 Consecutive Hours.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 24.—Two flights at Johannisthal, which began yesterday and ended this morning, have demonstrated that an aeroplane journey across the Atlantic is coming within the range of possibility.

The first flight was that of the German aviator Basser, who ascended at 3:49 o'clock yesterday afternoon and remained in the air for 18 hours and 12 minutes, thus breaking the record for a continuous flight made by the Frenchman Poulet on April 26 of 16 hours and 28 minutes.

Basser used a Rumpler biplane with a 100 horse power Mercedes engine of an entirely new type. The machine will receive a prize of $2,500 from the National Flying Fund.

When Basser had been flying for four hours a competitor appeared in the person of the pilot Landsman of the Schneidemühle military flying school, on an Albatross military biplane with a 70 horse power Mercedes engine. He flew well all night, but shortly after 11 in the morning was forced to descend by a storm of rain, hail, and wind after a flight of nearly fourteen hours.

Landsman traveled at a speed of 100 kilometers an hour. He was provisioned for a twenty-four hours' flight, in which time he would have laid behind him a distance equal to that between the coasts of Ireland and Newfoundland.

When Basser descended he had still over seventeen gallons of benzine in his tanks.

IN DEAD AIRMEN'S HONOR.

Twenty Aeroplanes a Flying Guard at Austrian Victims' Burial.

VIENNA, June 24.—An escort of twenty aeroplanes flying mourning flags and manned by aviators from several nations formed a flying guard of honor at the burial today of the nine Austrian officers and men who were killed in the air catastrophe a few miles from Vienna last Saturday, when an aeroplane rammed a dirigible. The presence of this aerial fleet created a vivid impression.

An enormous concourse, including several Archdukes, members of the Austrian Cabinet, and foreign military attachés, was present at the graveside to testify the general sorrow felt for the aviators who had died doing their duty during the army manoeuvres.

While the funeral service was in progress the small aircraft circled round and round the cemetery and then flew off in company.

The nine victims of the disaster were Capt. Johanna Hauswirt, Lieuts. Ernst Hofstetter, Flatz, Hocsta, Bruer, and Haidinger; Corporals Hadina and Weber, and Engineer Kammerer.

HEARST PARADES GLYNN IN CHICAGO

Supposed Purpose Is to Bolster Up Crumbling Machine by Exhibiting an "Ally."

GLYNN MAY RUN IN FALL

Governor So Intimates and Says That Roosevelt Would Make a "Great Race" for Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 24.—Gov. Martin H. Glynn of New York, with Mrs. Glynn, arrived in Chicago today "to look at the tall buildings," according to the Governor, and to transact some personal business. Inasmuch, however, as the Governor is accompanied on his visit to Chicago by William Randolph Hearst, and is the guest while here of Mayor Carter H. Harrison and Mr. Hearst, those in touch with the local political situation, cognizant of the dire straits of the Hearst-Harrison wing of the local Democracy as a result of the bitter attacks of Hearst on the Wilson Administration, are inclined to attach much significance to the visit. This belief was intensified when it became known that Glynn, Hearst, and Harrison had held a long conference at the Blackstone Hotel, a conference that is to be renewed tomorrow.

The Hearst-Harrison machine has been in a lamentable condition for months, and of late defections have been on a wholesale scale. With many other former adherents of Hearst, Mayor Harrison practically has abandoned the coalition. Local politicians believe that Hearst has brought Glynn to Chicago to strengthen his machine by parading the Governor of the Empire State as his ally.

Gov. Glynn, however, insists that politics has nothing to do with his mission to Chicago, asserting that as a plain citizen of Albany, N. Y., he had started on a tour of the Continent for the purpose of absorbing ideas on civic progress and on legislation which he believes might be used to advantage in his town State. That was his plan, but tonight he announced that he had changed his mind and would return to New York tomorrow night.

Mr. Glynn plunged into a long dissertation on the political situation in New York State. He intimated that he might be a candidate for re-election as Governor and that Col. Roosevelt undoubtedly could "come back" and would make a great race for Governor if he would consent to be a candidate.

"We hear so much about Chicago in the East that I am particularly anxious to look over your fine buildings," said the Governor. "I may also look into your system of government a little. Many new laws are to go into effect in New York State next month, and naturally I am interested in knowing how extensively other States have worked along similar lines. One of the most important of the new laws is the Workmen's Compensation act, which goes into effect on July 1."

Gov. Glynn went on to enumerate some of the other new laws, mentioning the State Bureau for the Unemployed, the State market law, the Optional Charter act, the land bank, direct primaries, and the Massachusetts ballot. He refused to comment on the Wilson Administration, but said that New York would elect every Democratic Congressman this Fall and all others on the Democratic ticket.

"We are to try direct primaries for the first time," he said. "That means that we all must go out before the public for nomination."

He was asked if by "we" he meant that he was to be a candidate for reelection.

"I'm not saying anything about that now," he said, with a smile.

"What about Roosevelt, Whitman, and the others?" he was asked.

"Roosevelt would make a great race for Governor," Mr. Glynn replied. "He seems to be just as popular as ever, and there is no question but that thousands of his enthusiastic friends would carry on an effective campaign in his behalf. His voice, like 'Teddy' himself, might come back."

"Do you intend to run for Governor to succeed yourself?" Mr. Glynn was asked point blank.

"I don't know," was the response. "I have not made any announcement as to my plans."

Gov. and Mrs. Glynn are accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. William R. Hearst, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Barham, and two friends of Mrs. Hearst, Miss Hazel Bliss and Miss Margaret Goodrich. In the course of the day Gov. and Mrs. Glynn took an automobile trip through the parks and over Chicago's boulevard system. The evening was spent at Bismarck Garden, a noted German resort.

Mr. Glynn will visit a number of Chicago's public buildings and inspect the fire prevention system. He will be entertained at luncheon by Mayor Harrison at the La Salle Hotel, where he will meet many of Chicago's notable men in the fields of finance, commerce, and politics.

Mr. Hearst was asked today what he thought of Mr. Roosevelt's chances for the Presidency.

"I think his chances are good," Mr. Hearst replied. "I think there are very good chances for a union of the Republican and Progressive Parties. The Republicans have been taught a lesson, and are likely now to adopt progressive principles. In that case I should think Col. Roosevelt would have a good chance of being nominated and elected."

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst, Miss Goodrich, Miss Bliss, and Mr. and Mrs. Barham, whose home is in Los Angeles, are on their way to the Canadian Rockies, Vancouver, and San Francisco. Mrs. Glynn probably will go with the Hearst party to the Pacific Coast.

Hangs Himself in His Cell.

PRESIDENT FREES FOUR DYNAMITERS

Commutes the Sentences of Hannan, Painter, Mooney, and Shupe, Minor Union Leaders.

HOPE FOR TWO OTHERS

Twenty of the Conspirators Must Go to the Leavenworth Penitentiary at Once.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—President Wilson today commuted the sentences of four of the dynamiters convicted of transporting explosives illegally from State to State in connection with various outrages and ordered the men set free. The President refused to interfere in the cases of twenty others convicted of the crime, though two of them are permitted to file separate petitions.

The four men whose sentences were commuted were Michael J. H. Hannan of Scraton, Penn.; Frank H. Painter of Omaha, Neb.; Fred J. Mooney of Duluth, Minn., and William Shupe of Chicago. Hannan was sentenced for three years, Painter for two, Mooney and Shupe for a year and a day. All had served two years in jail.

The commutation does not pardon the men, and if they desire to have their citizenship restored to them they must petition for a pardon. In the cases of John H. Barry and Paul J. Morrin, the former sentenced for four years, and the latter for three, the President decided to withhold action until they might petition separately from the whole list of men. This was done for the reason that Attorney General McReynolds found that these men in their minor positions in the Structural Iron Workers' Association were entitled to consideration.

In the cases of twenty other officials of the association the President refused clemency. The list included Frank J. Ryan, the President of the organization, who was sentenced for seven years, and Eugene A. Clancy, San Francisco, six years; Michael J. Young, Boston, six years; Frank C. Webb, New York, six years; Philip A. Cooley, New Orleans, six years; John T. Butler, Buffalo, N. Y., six years; Charles N. Beum, Minneapolis, three years; Henry W. Legleitner, Pittsburgh, three years; Ernest G. W. Basey, Indianapolis, Ind., three years; J. E. Munsey, Salt Lake City, six years; Peter J. Smith, Cleveland, Ohio, four years; Murray L. Pennell, Springfield, Ill., three years; W. Bert Brown, Kansas City, three years; Edward Smythe, Peoria, Ill., three years; George Anderson, Cleveland, Ohio, three years; Frank J. Higgins, Boston, two years; Michael J. Cunnane, Philadelphia, three years; William E. Riddin, Milwaukee, three years.

The twenty convicted men to whom the President refused clemency, will start for the United States Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., tomorrow, to begin serving their sentences. The President today did not follow the customary practice of giving out a statement of his reasons for granting or withholding clemency.

SUFFRAGISTS TO SEE WILSON

Deputation of 700 Will Urge Him to Support Their Amendment.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—President Wilson today agreed to receive on June 30 a deputation of 700 woman suffragists representing the organized clubwomen of the country, headed by Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley. They will ask for his support of the suffrage Constitutional amendment.

On previous occasions the President has told the suffragists he would not recommend to Congress legislation not in the party programme, and that he could not recommend his individual views. The clubwomen believe that the recent action of the Federation of Women's Clubs at the Chicago convention declaring for suffrage should now be taken into consideration.

Gen. O'Ryan on Militia Board.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan of the New York National Guard was appointed by Secretary of War Garrison today a member of the National Militia Board. He succeeds Brig. Gen. Thomas J. Stewart of the Pennsylvania militia, whose term of service on the board has expired.

PITTSBURGH STRIKE REPLY.

Men Refer to Westinghouse Statement as Being Fair.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, June 24.—Employes of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company's plants, who have been on strike since June 5, prepared an answer today to the statement made to them by E. M. Herr, President and General Manager of the company. The answer refers to the company's statement as fair, and adds:

"We believe the company ought to offer now, while there is still discontent and unrest, such propositions as will bring about a termination of the controversy by the unanimous will of the employes now on strike. Therefore we ask the company, in good faith, to consider all the men and women on strike as their employes, and deal with them in the settlement of the essential points at issue."

A conference was held today between H. G. Prout, President of the Union Switch and Signal Company, and a committee of striking employes of the plant. Mr. Prout said he would have to meet with the men as employes before anything could be done toward a settlement.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Westinghouse Company today in New York City strike conditions at East Pittsburgh were discussed, and after a full report as to existing conditions at the works and the course pursued by the officers it was voted unanimously to approve the position taken by the officers and all their actions in the premises.

JACOB ADLER'S ART COSTLY.

His Wallet Missing—But He Still Has His New Play.

Jacob P. Adler, the Jewish actor, reported to the police yesterday that he had been robbed of a wallet containing $1,200 and $1,000 in travelers' checks. He went shopping on Tuesday evening, he said, and returned to his home at 68 Lenox Avenue on the Subway, with his arms full of bundles. He said that he reached home about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, and that it was not until then that he discovered his loss.

Mr. Adler said that he had purchased the travelers' checks in anticipation of a trip to Germany for the Summer. His son, Charles Adler, explained the loss of the wallet by saying that his father had accepted a tense play dealing with Jewish persecution in Russia a few days ago, and that his mind was so deeply engaged with its dramatic possibilities that he had become absent-minded.

The elder Mr. Adler did not know what pocket he had put the wallet into after making his last purchase, and was not even certain that he had not dropped it into the Subway ticket chopper's box in the place of a ticket while thinking of the villainy of the villain in "Broken Idols," the new play—to be produced at the People's Theatre in the Bowery on Sept. 1 with no rise in prices.

WANTS RESERVE BOARD.

McAdoo Asks Senate Committee to Hurry All the Confirmations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Mr. McAdoo, the Secretary of the Treasury, conferred with members of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency today and urged the immediate confirmation of the five members of the Federal Reserve Board named by President Wilson. Secretary McAdoo devoted himself particularly to the nominations of Paul M. Warburg of New York and T. D. Jones of Chicago.

In speaking to members about Mr. Warburg, who is a member of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Mr. McAdoo said that he had no personal interest in the confirmation and had never sustained financial relations with Kuhn, Loeb & Co., although the tunnel company which constructed the tubes to New Jersey, formerly called after him, had relations with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. in the financing of that project.

Senator Owen of Oklahoma, Chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, has called a meeting of the committee for tomorrow morning and will then endeavor to have the five sub-committees to which the names of the Federal Reserve Board members were referred make an immediate report. It seems now that the effort will be unsuccessful.

It is believed that the sub-committees to which the names of W. P. G. Harding of Birmingham, A. C. Miller of San Francisco, and C. S. Hamlin of Boston were referred are practically satisfied with the records of these three men and are ready to make favorable reports. The sub-committees to which the names of Mr. Warburg and Mr. Jones were referred wish to make further inquiry, however, and it was indicated today that Senator Owen would meet opposition in his endeavor to have reports made upon all five members tomorrow. If the sub-committees having the Warburg and Jones nominations in charge are not ready to report it is probable the other sub-committees will hold back, as it is desired that the five names be reported to the Senate at the same time.

The appearance of the Secretary of the Treasury at the Capitol was interpreted as an indication of the earnest desire of the White House to have the entire board assume its duties as soon as possible, so that the reserve system could be put into operation at an early date. Nothing short of direct pressure by the White House can compel immediate confirmation, however, as it is probable that there will be some discussion of the nominations even after they have been reported to the Senate.

Edwin P. Grosvenor of New York, who, as Assistant Attorney General, began the Government's anti-trust suit against the International Harvester Company, has written to President Wilson that Thomas D. Jones had no connection with any of the practices the Government contended were illegal. The letter was given out today at the White House as justifying the President's recent declaration to Senator Owen that there was nothing in Mr. Jones's relations with the Harvester corporation to disqualify him from serving on the Federal Reserve Board.

RESTRICTS PRINTER'S AUTO.

$4,000 Machine to Carry Materials Only, House Decides.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Democratic economists in the House struggled over the eternal automobile question again today. This time it came up in connection with consideration of the Sundry Civil bill, the discovery having been made that Public Printer Ford, who is a New Jersey Democrat, rides about the city in a handsome electric which was purchased for $4,000 with Government funds.

Representative Fowler of Illinois started the discussion. He said "as a Democrat" he could see no use for an automobile.

Representative Percy Quin, a Democrat of Mississippi, shouted:

"I am getting sick and tired of this business. In this city it is a common sight to see little office-holders riding around in great big automobiles. I have seen $2,000 office-holders disporting themselves in $4,000 cars, bought with money drained from the burdened tax-payers of the land. This thing has got to be stopped."

Somebody volunteered the information that the electric was used to carry money from the Treasury to the Printing Office.

"I'm glad to walk to get my money," declared Mr. Quin.

Whereupon the House put an amendment in the bill stipulating that hereafter Mr. Ford should use his car only to carry printing material and that its employment for purposes of pleasure should be stopped.

To Give Out Japan Correspondence

WASHINGTON, June 24. — America's reply to the last note from Japan protesting against the California alien land law was being prepared at the State Department today for publication on June 26, with all the correspondence between the two Governments on the subject. The last Japanese note was dated Aug. 23 last, and until recently it was understood that the State Department did not consider that it called for a reply. Secretary Bryan said today, however, that the reply would be made public with the earlier communications.

Federal Bill to Abolish Tips.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Tips to porters and waiters on trains and steamboats in interstate commerce are prohibited by the provisions of a bill introduced today by Senator Works. At the same time, if the bill becomes law, it will make it unlawful for an employer to pay such low wages that tips are necessary for the proper compensation of the employe.

SENATORS DESPAIR OF CLAYTON BILL

Leaders May Appeal to President to Curtail Session's Anti-Trust Legislation.

COMMITTEE BADLY SPLIT

Members Can't Agree on Interlocking, Price-Fixing Labor Sections—New Amendments by Cummins.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The Clayton Anti-Trust bill, now under consideration by the Senate Judiciary Committee, is badly snarled. Members of the committee seem unable to agree upon what shall go into the bill or what shall be stricken out. Each change is undertaken tentatively and sections are replaced in the bill almost as rapidly as they are stricken out.

The prospect of an immediate report has passed. Senator Reed jocularly offered a resolution today that the committee adjourn to Atlantic City to complete the bill where the cool breezes blow. The committee seized upon the proposal and seemed in a mood to adopt it. The committee, however, will remain in Washington in an attempt to draft a satisfactory bill.

The members have found little common ground for prohibition of interlocking directorates and holding companies, and they have not finally agreed on how to prevent price fixing. The sections designed to relieve labor from the Sherman law and to govern the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes have led to endless argument. The prospect for an early agreement, some members of the committee say, is not rosy, and the sentiment against reporting any such measure at this time is growing.

Senator Hoke Smith, a member of the committee, called at the White House tonight. He intended to discuss Georgia patronage particularly, but his visit is taken as a forerunner of visits by other members of the committee, who may seek the aid of President Wilson or may attempt to advise him that the Clayton bill presents so many difficulties that its consideration might well be left until cool weather.

There was talk again today about an effort to have the President agree to limit the amount of anti-trust legislation at this session, but no concerted action has been taken by Democrats on the committee to this end. Senators on the committee are said to feel that it is not possible for them to go into the questions involved in this bill in a few weeks, and that the measure deserves months of consideration, with comprehensive hearings.

Most of the session today was devoted to Section 6, which provides that a final judgment or decree asserting the violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust act shall "constitute against such defendant conclusive evidence of the same facts and be conclusive as to the same questions of law in favor of any other party in any action or proceeding brought under the provisions of any of the anti-trust laws." In this section the word "conclusive" was stricken out and the words "prima facie" inserted. Agreement was reached upon this point and may withstand assault during subsequent consideration of the bill.

Senator Cummins, Republican of Iowa, in the hope of effecting a compromise on Sections 8 and 9, which relate to interlocking control of corporations, including common carriers, proposed five amendments to the Federal Trade Commission bill. The committee ordered that the Cummins amendments be printed for further consideration.

This group of amendments is intended to empower the Federal Trade Commission to administer the proposed law against interlocking control of corporations and to raise the commission from the status of a mere inquisitorial board to that of an administrative board of wide powers. The five Cummins amendments provide that one common carrier may not own or control another common carrier, except as an extension of a line; that common Directors or officers in competing corporations shall be forbidden, that two or more corporations engaged in interstate commerce shall not have common officers, that the same prohibitions shall apply to common carriers, and that the determination of the facts shall rest with the Federal Trade Commission.

The sections which it is intended these amendments shall supplant provide against common ownership of corporations where the effect of "such acquisition is to eliminate or substantially lessen competition"; prohibit officers in common carrier corporations from acting as officers in companies selling supplies to the corporations, and prohibit interlocking directorates and official boards among banks having deposits, capital, surplus, and undivided profits in excess of $2,500,000.

Senator Newlands tonight made an unsuccessful attempt to have the Trade Commission bill made the Senate's unfinished business. Objection was made to his proposal, but he will renew it tomorrow and probably will gain his point.

Petitions for and against the labor exemption clause in the Clayton bill and in the sundry civil bill are beginning to reach the White House. One memorial from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, purporting to represent the views of 250,000 business men, received today, protested against the exemptions as "class legislation in its worst form."

Bay State Labor Bill Advanced.

BOSTON, June 24.—The Anti-Injunction bill aimed to prevent the issuance of injunctions against labor unions during strikes, was passed to a third reading by the Senate today by a vote of 20 to 14. The House has already passed the bill.

Charge Purchases will be billed August 1st.

DAILY TRANSATLANTIC CABLE DISPATCHES TO THE TIMES

LORD DECIES WINS ON FINAL APPEAL

Law Lords Declare the Builders Ought Never to Have Questioned the Judgment.

ARE ORDERED TO PAY COSTS

These May Amount to $200,000—The Printing of the Record Alone Has Cost Over $5,000.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—The House of Lords today dismissed the appeal which the builders had taken against Lord Decies from the decision of the lower courts in the prolonged litigation over the bills for the reconstruction of his country mansion, Sefton Park, Stoke Poges.

The Law Lords expressed the opinion that the case ought never to have been brought and ordered the builders to pay the legal costs incurred by Lord Decies.

This decision of the House of Lords, the highest court in the British Empire, ends triumphantly for Lord Decies's litigation which has been in progress almost ever since his marriage in 1911 to Miss Vivien Gould, daughter of George J. Gould. The bill in dispute was, in fact, incurred through the necessity of renovating Sefton Park to receive Lord Decies's American bride.

The contract was let to Holland, Hannen & Cubitts of London, and their account was for about $100,000. To $65,000 of this Lord Decies had no objection, but he refused absolutely to pay the remainder. This, he asserted, was an absolute overcharge, and he made a counterclaim on the ground that some of the work which he admitted that he had ordered had been so badly done that he had already paid in excess for it.

When the case came to trial in the High Court in November, 1912, the builders claimed that, as the alterations were not complete when Lord and Lady Decies returned from their wedding trip, they had gone to the South Kensington Museum and had ordered certain decorative designs, such as those for mantelpieces, to be copied. Real oak paneling was used in the bedrooms and sitting rooms, the dowage, Lady Decies's bedroom, was finished magnificently in walnut, and a strong room had been provided for Lady Decies's gold plate and jewelry.

Mr. Justice Bailhache ruled against Lord Decies in this trial and held him responsible for the extension of the plans for the remodeling of the house, which had run his bill up from about $50,000 to $100,000. The precise sum to be paid, however, was, the Court directed, to be settled by an arbitrator, and it also decided against Lord Decies in his counter claim.

Against these rulings Lord Decies took an appeal in February, 1913, and in doing so he obtained permission to include among the defendants the architects and surveyors, accusing them of having been parties to a deliberate fraud to pad his bills.

As a result of this Mr. Justice Bailhache decided that it would be well for him to pay a personal visit of inspection to Sefton Park and see for himself if the renovating work had been carried out as badly as it had been represented. This he did last July, and when he took his seat on the bench after this trip he announced that he had found just cause for Lord Decies's complaint on at least three heads. The joinery he considered poorly fitted, so that a considerable allowance should be made by the contractor on that score. The vibration of the floors he had noted for himself, and he thought Lord Decies justified in complaining of the way in which through this vibration sounds were carried from one part of the house to another.

The trial, however, lasted for thirteen days, and the Judge took two hours in giving his judgment. He dismissed some of the points raised by Lord Decies as "finicky," and he criticised the amount of detail which had been injected into the case, but he held that there were solid grounds of complaint, although saying they were perhaps due rather to carelessness than negligence on the part of the workmen. The design of the building Sir Clement Bailhache pronounced excellent, and he said that it reflected credit on the architect, although proper supervision had not been exercised on the work. So a verdict of $25,000 in favor of Lord Decies was entered.

From the three decisions of the High Court in this case, two against and one for Lord Decies, an appeal was taken to the Court of Appeals. This favored Lord Decies, and the builders then went to the House of Lords, which has now finally decided against them.

So costly has been the litigation that the loss of the $35,000 at first in dispute is comparatively a small matter compared with the order to pay costs. These may amount to $200,000. The printing of the record alone has cost over $5,000.

LAKE CONSTANCE DISASTER.

At Least 35 Fishermen Drowned as the Result of a Sudden Storm.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, June 24.—Ten bodies of fishermen were recovered this morning from Lake Constance and at least twenty-five more are missing. They are believed to have been drowned in a sudden terrific storm which occurred over this region yesterday.

The storm broke so quickly that the fishermen were unable to reach land, only a mile or so away.

Many were rescued by lake steamers and other craft after their light boats had capsized.

OXFORD HONORS MR. PAGE.

Lord Bryce Also Receives Degree—Ambassador Well Received.

OXFORD, June 24.—A very enthusiastic reception was accorded to Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador; Viscount Bryce, ex-British Ambassador at Washington, and the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha when they came up at today's encaenia, or commemoration, to receive the degrees conferred on them by the university.

Ambassador Page and the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha were created Doctors of Civil Law, while Lord Bryce was made a Doctor of Laws.

In introducing Ambassador Page the public orator dwelt on the hundred years of unbroken peace during which the friendship between the two great English-speaking nations had been steadily strengthened, and he referred also to the new ties between Oxford University and the United States knit by the will of Cecil Rhodes.

MALATESTA HAS ESCAPED.

Italian Anarchist Leader Said to be on the Way to London.

GENEVA, June 24.—Enrico Malatesta, the well-known Italian anarchist, whom the Italian Government has been seeking to arrest in connection with the recent revolutionary uprisings in Italy, has succeeded in making his escape.

Malatesta, who organized the plot to establish republican rule, was the leader of the anarchists at Ancona, where the first demonstration took place on June 7, resulting in the general strike. He fled when bluejackets from the naval division commanded by Admiral Cagni reinforced the Ancona garrison.

Disguised as a workman, Malatesta made his way to the Swiss frontier, crossing the boundary at Chiasso. He remained in concealment for a time, and is now believed to be on his way to London.

PROMISES AID TO REDMOND.

M. J. Ryan of the United Irish League of America Sends Telegram.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—In reply to the cablegram received two days ago from John E. Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, Michael J. Ryan, President of the United Irish League of America, today sent the following cablegram:

National Committee meeting July 16. All needed money forthcoming. Liberty-loving America practically unanimous in approval of your leadership. Tory contention inimical to twentieth century spirit and defeat certain. This is era of awakened democracy.

German Army Airman Killed.

SCHWERIN, June 24.—Another aviation fatality occurred in the German Army Flying Corps today, when Lieut. Kolbe was killed by the overturning of the aeroplane that he was piloting during a too abrupt landing. Capt. Ruff, his passenger, suffered a broken leg.

U. S. WARSHIP SALE HAS AVERTED WAR

Greeks Jubilant at News That They Can Have the Idaho and Mississippi.

TO PAY ABOUT $11,500,000

Porte's Proposal to Exchange Property of Turkish Refugees for That of Greek Refugees Accepted.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, June 24.—The news of the vote of the American Congress authorizing the sale of the battleships Idaho and Mississippi to Greece has aroused much enthusiasm here. Nevertheless, no bellicose strain is noticeable in the afternoon papers, which are unanimous in regarding the acquisition of these ships by Greece as making for peace—at least until the new Turkish dreadnoughts have been delivered.

Official circles declare that peace is now assured and that Greece can proceed with absolute calm to negotiate the difficult questions pending with Turkey, who, it is believed, will now be more tractable.

LONDON, Thursday, June 25.—The Daily Telegraph's Athens correspondent wires:

"From knowledge in my possession I can say that the American Representatives had it in their power yesterday to decide whether the third Balkan war was to be declared during the current week or be postponed and allow time for influences which are at work to avert it altogether.

Whether the latter will be achieved remains doubtful, but one can say that the danger of an immediate outbreak, at least, has been postponed, and that, as regards the present war menace created by the persecutions in Asia Minor, a pacific settlement seems probable."

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Thursday, June 25.—Greece yesterday communicated a new note to the powers accepting the Porte's proposals that the property of Turkish refugees shall be exchanged for the property of Greek refugees, and that a Graeco-Turkish commission be appointed to make a valuation of the properties. Greece invites the powers to designate a neutral Chairman for the commission.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Navy officials were busy today preparing to turn over the battleships Idaho and Mississippi to the Greek Government. Final action on the Naval Appropriation bill, which includes authority for the sale of the ships, will be taken in day or two, and as soon as the President has signed the measure the department will be ready to order the transfer.

It is left to the President and the Secretary of Navy to name the sale price, the intention being to fix this at the actual cost of construction and equipment. This involves a rather complex situation, but it is believed that $11,500,000 will be about the figure. With the vessels will go most of the supplies now aboard and a full store of coal to carry them to their destinations.

According to the tentative plan of transfer the Idaho, which is now at Gibraltar, will be sent northward to Gravesend, England, where she will be met by the battleship Alabama, now in reserve at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, which will take off her personnel, including the Annapolis midshipmen, now on their Summer cruise. Then the Idaho will be manned by a Greek naval crew.

The Mississippi, now at Pensacola, will be sent to a northern navy yard, probably Boston, to be stripped of aeronautic appliances. Her personnel will be transferred to the North Carolina, now in reserve at Boston. Greek sailors will be on hand to take her across the Atlantic.

MILITANTS AGAIN ACTIVE.

Attacks on Letter Boxes and Raids on West End Theatres.

LONDON, June 24.—The activities of the militant suffragettes, which had been in suspense since Premier Asquith agreed to receive a deputation of east end workingwomen, were resumed today in the shape of attacks on city letter boxes and organized raids on many west end theatres.

The militants also created disturbances at a social function at the Royal Academy.

COMPLAIN OF HER DRESS.

Row in a French Provincial Town Due to One Woman's Gorgeousness.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 24.—A delightful instance of provincial female jealousy is reported from Saint Mihiel, in the Meuse Department.

The other day the rector of the university called into his study one of the professors, M. Corot, and reproached him because of his wife's "frivolity and love of dress." He said he had received a letter of complaint from the Mayor, Dr. Albert Thiery.

The professor sent off a furious letter to the Mayor, telling him he had all the difficulty in the world in preventing his wife from serving the Mayor as Mme. Caillaux served M. Calmette.

The Mayor disclaimed responsibility, declaring that he was only the mouthpiece of a number of good citizens who had petitioned him to take action.

M. Corot, having recovered from his wrath, explained that he had ample means to allow his wife to dress as she pleased, and Mme. Corot herself then let the jealous ones into the secret of her "extravagant" toilettes.

"Yes, I love to be elegantly gowned," she said. "Thus on race day I wore one of the new cloaks. It was the first time such a thing had been seen in this town. What a to do! I was voted eccentric and fast.

"The fact is, I make my own dresses. Not long ago I appeared in public with a gown covered with Irish lace made by myself during the long Winter evenings. The whole thing cost me $7.50."

A REGENT IN SERVIA.

Government of the Country Placed in the Crown Prince's Hands.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, June 24.—King Peter of Servia has appointed the Crown Prince as Regent of that country. The news has caused considerable surprise here.

It is believed that the King left Belgrade on account of difficulties with army officers, leaving his son to deal with a very difficult situation.

BELGRADE, June 24.—King Peter today left Belgrade for the baths at Vranya, in the southern part of Servia. A royal proclamation issued shortly afterward was as follows:

"Owing to ill-health I am unable to perform my duties, and, in accordance with Paragraph 69 of the Servian Constitution, I confide the Government of Servia to my heir, the Crown Prince Alexander, during my illness."

As it was known that King Peter, who is 70 years old, was seriously ill, the first impression caused to the public by the issue of the proclamation was that his Majesty had actually abdicated. There would be little surprise in Court circles if today's action by the King should turn out to be merely a preliminary step to abdication, which King Peter is said to have had in contemplation for some time.

The Crown Prince is the King's second son, his eldest son, Prince George, having renounced his right to succession to the throne before Prince Alexander was born in 1888.

Albanian Rebels Take Two Towns.

LONDON, June 24.—Fighting continues in Albania, and the Mussulman insurgents, according to late advices, have captured Berat, thirty miles northeast of Avlona, and one other small town.

PARIS POSTMEN, HUNGRY, GIVE WAY

Minister Promises to Urge Their Claims in the Senate—Obtained a Little Food by a Rope Bridge.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 24.—The letter carriers' strike ended this afternoon by the surrender of the men. The Minister of Posts and Telegraphs promised to support the men's claims for increased allowances before the Senate, and on this undertaking the strikers capitulated.

Exciting scenes preceded the surrender. When during the night the police, municipal guards, and soldiers from four regiments occupied the courtyard of the General Post Office the carriers retired to the sorting rooms on the first floor, where this morning 4,000,000 letters were waiting to be sorted.

Directly 1,200 sorters came on duty at 5 A. M. they barred and barricaded the doors and refused to touch a single letter.

Early in the afternoon the strikers who were holding the fort began to feel hungry. They had been confined in their improvised blockhouse since 5 o'clock without food. From the windows they made signals to their friends in the street to buy provisions for them and lowered sacks by long strings from the windows in order to draw up much-needed supplies. The police, however, were on the watch, and as soon as consignments of loaves and cheese and bottles of wine had been attached to the dangling strings they dashed forward and cut the strings.

The famished postmen howled with rage. Some onlookers interfered, and a free fight followed.

Then an ingenious confederate in the street climbed to the top of a provision van. He was attaching another supply to a rope when the police drew the van away and spoiled the adventure.

Finally a string bridge was arranged from the windows of the Post Office to those of a house opposite, and across this frail structure bags of victuals made their way precariously. They amounted to very little among so many, however, and the urgency of their appetites played a large part in inducing the men to seek the interview with the Minister of Posts, which resulted in the agreement to resume work immediately.

Afterward Paris soon had two deliveries of letters, the men trying to make up for lost time.

KEMP COMING FIRST CABIN.

But the "Tramp Poet" Has Only One Suit, a Handbag, and $1.50.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—Harry Kemp, the "tramp poet," who came to England as a stowaway, sailed today for New York as a first class passenger on board the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria.

He had only one suit, a single handbag, and the sum of $1.50 in his pocket. He was persuaded that he ought to have a dress suit. A friend promised him his second best suit, but when he went home to fetch it found that his wife had sold it.

"Anyway, I'm saved from being conventional," said Kemp.

Will Still Call It Culebra Cut.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, June 24.—The change of name of Culebra Cut by the American Congress to Gaillard Cut meets with little approval among Americans on the isthmus, though there is no desire to detract from the great work of the late Col. Gaillard. To thousands of workers instrumental in conquering the mountain pass the cut will continue to be Culebra, as it has been from the days of the French company till now.

Tobey-Made Furniture

AMONG several pieces lately received from our shops was a handsome carved mahogany lamp. The design was based on motifs from the Italian Renaissance, and was executed with all the perfection of the Tobey hand workmanship. The crispness and sharpness of the hand carving at first glance distinguish the piece from the commonplace machine product.

The shade, also of our own manufacture, is made up in champagne-colored silk lined with rose, giving an unusual and strikingly beautiful tone when the lamp is lit. The whole effect is one of elegance and distinction.

CENTS AND DOLLARS

AT a police examination one question read:

"If you buy a watch for $10.25 and sell it for $8.75 do you gain or lose?" One lad replied: "You gain on the cents but lose on the dollars."

In mortgage investments too many people gain on the cents and lose on the dollars. They get big interest but often lose part of their principal.

T. C. HEATH TOURING EUROPE

Hotel Man Warned Against Atlantic Mermaids and Cork Barmaids.

Thomas C. Heath, assistant manager of the Belmont, has been missed from the lobby of that hotel for more than two weeks, but it was not until yesterday that the whereabouts of Mr. Heath, who had been in the hotel business many years in New England and New York, were disclosed. It was learned that he was carrying out a lifelong ambition by making his first tour of the land of his ancestors.

Postcards received by Mr. Heath's associates and by the two telegraph operators who sent him a wireless message on the way out, warning him to beware of the mermaids of the Atlantic—which Assistant Manager Hyland says should have read "Beware of the barmaids of Cork"—brought the news that Mr. Heath had progressed in his pilgrimage as far as the lakes of Killarney, and that he already had hung by his toes before the Blarney Stone.

Mr. Heath confided to friends that ever since he first went to the old New Haven House, some thirty years ago, he had cherished a desire to visit Tipperary, and when he had seen the cradle of his race he would consider that he really had lived. Mr. Hyland, who was familiar with every green spot in Ireland and knew Galway as well, mapped out an itinerary. Mr. Heath will spend a week at Richard Croker's country place. He had included London and Paris in his itinerary, saving the North of Ireland, the West Coast and Tipperary for the finish of his tour, but it was predicted that he would not get any further east than Wexford.

GUNDA'S EXERCISE IS THE ONE-STEP

Bronx Keeper Says Big Elephant's "Weaving" Keeps Him Contented.

CHAINS LIKE A BRACELET

Col. Alfred Wagstaff of S. P. C. A. Will Visit Gunda with Lorillard Spencer Next Week.

Col. Alfred Wagstaff, President of the S. P. C. A., has taken a personal interest in the case of Gunda, the big Indian elephant at the Bronx Zoo, chained by two legs, and he and William K. Horton and Lorillard Spencer will go up as a committee early next week to learn at first hand the condition of the animal. Dr. William T. Hornaday, Director of the Zoo, said yesterday that he considered the suggestion to build a concrete arena for Gunda impractical, and that the committee will find the elephant is not suffering.

Dr. Hornaday believes Gunda to be by nature a bad elephant. Though he was only eight years old when he came to the Zoo direct from India ten years ago, his ears were torn and battered, indicating that he had been a bad actor. Some elephants, he said, seem to be born mean. Others become bad as they grow older.

"Even in the wild state you will occasionally find an elephant that has made life so miserable for the rest of the herd that they have driven him off by himself," said Dr. Hornaday. "Among those that have been broken to captivity, and made to work by the natives of India, one will sometimes grow unmanageable and acquire a chronic grouch. These are known as 'rogue elephants,' and they live up to their names, running amuck and smashing anything within reach, breaking into villages and knocking huts to flinders until some sportsman drops them with a bullet.

"I imagine that Gunda would have been such a rogue if he had ever had the chance. We cannot afford to give him any rope, and we don't want to shoot him. He is worth about $10,000, and, aside from that, it would be next to impossible to duplicate him, as he is the largest elephant in captivity."

Dick Edwards, the keeper, who has traveled with five circuses and claims to "know elephants like a book," says it seems as if everybody in New York considers himself an elephant expert.

"I've eaten and slept with elephants for the past fourteen years," he said, "and I think as much of them as anybody. The only trouble with elephants in a zoo is that they get too much liberty. In a circus every elephant knows that he has one man for a boss."

Edwards scouted the idea that an elephant suffered from being chained down by two legs.

"An elephant doesn't have to move around to get exercise," he said, and pointed to Gunda, swaying back and forth like a ship in a rolling sea. "See 'm weavin' there?"

"You mean that one-step he's doing?" the reporter queried.

"Sure, that's weavin'. That gives him all the exercise he wants. And as for chains—why, he doesn't mind them any more than a woman does wearin' a bracelet."

"They say he hates you like poison," said the reporter.

"Ah, I just kid him along," said Dick. Then he gingeringly turned the valve to fill Gunda's water basin and had to beat half a dozen retreats while Gunda tried to reach him through the bars. Gunda was aiming to at least douse him with water, but finally got tired of waiting and turned away. Richards made a dash past the cage and jumped for the wicket at the end of the passage just as Gunda turned and shot a trunkful of water after him, missing him, except for his sleeve.

"I just kid him along," said Dick.

COOPER DEFENDS HIMSELF.

Testifies to His Confidence in New York Central Realty Company.

William H. Cooper, on trial in the United States District Court on the charge of conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, testified yesterday. The charge is connected with the operations of the New York Central Realty Company, which owned property in Westchester County, in Hackensack, and in Plainfield which the Government contends was overhauled so that investors suffered heavy loss.

Mr. Cooper said he had had so much confidence in the enterprise that he obtained an advance of $100,000 from his father's estate to put into the company and also took the savings bank accounts of his daughters, Antoniette and Evelyn, which amounted to $2,000 each, and sunk them in the company. In addition, he induced his mother-in-law, Mrs. Joseph E. Brown, to put the $1,000 insurance she received on the death of her husband into the concern.

Its failure he attributed to the failure of the New Haven Railroad to put a station on the Westchester property and to the delay of the city in constructing the Bronx Boulevard.

Describing his own career, Mr. Cooper said he began work as a shop boy in Buffalo at the age of 12, and in 1886 was employed in his father's department store at Peoria, Ill. Then he became Superintendent of the Siegel-Cooper store in Chicago, but has now no connection with the establishments of that name.

The trial will continue today.

OUTING FOR 308 CHILDREN.

St. Vincent de Paul Society Opens Fresh-Air Work.

The Special Works Committee of the St. Vincent de Paul Society has resumed its annual fresh-air outings for poor children of the different Catholic churches of the New York Diocese. The first outing for the season started a few days ago, when 308 children were sent to the Fresh Air Farm at Spring Valley, N. Y., for two weeks' outing. Every two weeks other poor Catholic children will be sent to the home until Sept. 22, when the work closes.

Last Summer 2,183 children of the tenements had a two weeks' outing at Spring Valley. The record of the special works of the society for the past year shows that $100,000 was expended in helping poor families in their homes. More than 37,000 visits were made to 7,738 poor families by members, and 3,323 children were placed in homes by the Catholic Home Bureau, one of the society's special works. The society has under its supervision five boys' clubs with a membership of 5,500. Thomas M. Mulry, President of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, is President of the society, and members of its Finance Committee are:

Henry Heide, George J. Gillespie, William J. Amend, Michael J. Drummond, Joseph P. Grace, James G. Johnson, Thomas H. Kelly, Dr. Charles F. McKenna, John G. O'Keefe, Eugene A. Philbin, John J. Pulleyn, Dr. Francis J. Quinlan, Herman Ridder, John D. Ryan, Thomas F. Ryan, Myles Tierney, and Theodore E. Tock.

VAN BUREN FILES DENIAL.

No Agreement with Others to Overcharge City, He Says.

Augustus H. Van Buren, who, with Everett Fowler and John J. Linsone, was being sued by the city for $100,000 which they were accused of having overcharged the city in condemning land for the new aqueduct, filed his answer yesterday. He denied that he had any agreement with the other defendants to make unfair charges and to divide the money thus gained with them. He also denied that he had any part in the procuring from the city of $350,000 or any other amount, which, it was said, represented the total amount of the bills of the three defendants.

Mr. Van Buren admitted that he charged $50 a day for his services in the hearing of claims, but said that this rate of compensation was fixed by the Corporation Counsel, that the bills were approved by the Board of Water Supply and were audited by the Controller. He denied that he made wrongful charges in the matter of disbursements and said that all the money he received from the city he was entitled to. He asked for a bill of particulars.

Mr. Van Buren is an ex-Controller of the city of Kingston, and like the other defendants, is a prominent lawyer.

MAYOR PINS MEDALS ON BRAVE FIREMEN

Felicitates Them and Congratulates the City They Serve.

MOONEY DECORATED AGAIN

Capt. Farley of Hook and Ladder 8 Had Best Disciplined and Most Highly Efficient Company.

Medals were presented to eight firemen who saved lives at the risk of their own in 1913 by Mayor Mitchel on the steps of City Hall yesterday in the presence of 400 invited guests and a large crowd. The Mayor said every man in the Fire Department was ready to do the same heroic work when the opportunity offered. The firemen who rescued their comrades or civilians at fires and the medals they received are as follows:

Fireman (first grade) John F. Mooney (No. 1) Hook and Ladder Company 4, James Gordon Bennett Medal and Department Medal; Capt. Patrick Walsh, Engine Company 7, Hugh Bonner Medal and Department Medal; Fireman (first grade) Frank J. Costello, Hook and Ladder Company 12, Emily Trevor-Mary B. Warren Medal and Department Medal; Engineer William McAllister, Engine Company 86, William L. Strong Medal and Department Medal; Capt. Frederick J. Simpson, Hook and Ladder Company 6, Henri P. Wertheim Medal and Department Medal; Fireman (first grade) Thomas J. Lucas, Hook and Ladder Company 115, Brooklyn Citizen Medal; Fireman (first grade) Lulius W. Deja, Hook and Ladder Company 148, Hurley Medal; Fireman (first grade) William J. McGrath (No. 2) Hook and Ladder Company 25, Thomas E. Crimmins Memorial Medal.

Capt. John E. Farley of Hook and Ladder Company 8, who has been in the service thirty-one years, received the John T. Stephenson Medal for maintaining the best disciplined and most highly efficient company during 1913, while Capt. Seymour J. Guy and the fifteen members of Engine Company 39 each received a bronze "College Efficiency Medal" for efficiency in drill and evolution.

Mooney won the Wertheim Medal and a Department Medal last year. When Mayor Mitchel pinned the two new medals on him yesterday, he remarked: "You haven't room for many more."

Fire Commissioner Adamson in a complimentary speech presented the medal men to the Mayor, who said:

"I am very glad of this opportunity to congratulate you on this recognition of the splendid work that you have done for the city and for the citizens of the city and on this recognition of your valor. But I think that there is really more occasion to congratulate the people of the city that they have the services of men like you in the Fire Department. Everybody knows that the men in our Fire Department have always been willing to risk their lives and their safety for the saving of lives and for the protection of property.

"There are no cowards, as far as I know, in the Fire Department, or in the Police Department of this city. And I think that the people of the city are to be congratulated on that fact. Yours is one of the most hazardous employments in the public service. When an alarm comes in you never know how serious is the condition that you will have to face. But you go to the fire in answer to that call, knowing that it is your duty to follow the order of your superior officers and to face whatever risks may be involved; and I have yet to hear of a man in the Fire Department who has shrunk from the performance of his duty as he faced it at a fire.

"Again I say I congratulate you, but still more I congratulate the city that it has your services. I trust that you will go on as you have begun in the service as an inspiration to the other men of the department, and to all of the city's employes."

BABY TOOK BICHLORIDE.

Physicians Save Infant by Irrigation Treatment.

Owing to the promptness of Mrs. Michael Tarangelo, wife of a blacksmith in Corona, Long Island, her baby was saved after she had swallowed a two-grain bichloride of mercury tablet. On June 11 she took the tablet, believing it to be candy.

Mrs. Tarangelo found her daughter about 8 o'clock in the morning with a bottle of the tablets. The baby said that she had eaten one of the "candies." The child was taken to the office of Dr. David Weschler and from there to the hospital. Dr. Walter Steffens applied irrigation treatment, and this was continued until all traces of the poison were removed.

Packard

Hot Weather Hauling

The days that mean death to laboring horses are at hand. By using Packard trucks you can avert the disruption of your delivery service and increase your profits at the same time.

More than 250 Packard trucks are operated by breweries during the summer rush season; 126 Packard trucks care for the long, trying suburban hauls of department stores; 337 Packard trucks are saving horses and money in the summer work of express and transfer companies.

Under normal conditions a Packard will do the work of from two to four teams. In hot weather its relative efficiency is often higher than that.

ALEX D SHAW & CO NY

IT ISN'T ALL TRUE

Dr. Max Nordau is a famous French author and a recognized student of sociology. He talks about American men and American women with a freedom of opinion that is, to say the least, unconventional and picturesque.

"She likes to associate with Europeans. She fishes for invitations and gets them. She possesses everything that passes for quality in a lady of society, but lacks the supreme thing, the most delicate of possessions—culture. The best of English governesses teach her good manners. A very light coat of bright varnish is enough to catch her attention. She must be admired in order that her husband be envied. He wishes to read her name every time he opens the society pages of a newspaper. Her strongest feeling is self-adoration. She has money but no home. Nowhere does one meet so many rich people without friends as in New York."

These are some of the things which Nordau says. Read his talk complete in next Sunday's New York Times.

Most Puppies Have Worms.
Many Die Because Owners Fail to Use
VERMILAX

This remarkable preparation removes all worms in 25 to 40 minutes, without injury to weakest puppies. Worms and intestinal troubles are indicated by vomiting, fits, frothing at mouth (usually attributed wrongfully to madness,) twitching or dragging along on hindquarters.

VERMILAX restores intestinal and digestive organs to normal action and marvellously improves the appearance and joyous spirits of doggy over night. Should be used for its laxative and tonic effect in hot weather.

GATHERS EVIDENCE IN ELLERT SCANDAL

Deputy Atty. Gen. McQuaid to Push Prosecution Despite Dist. Atty. Smith.

FACTOR IN POLITICAL FIGHT

Other Charges Against Queens Prosecutor, a Candidate for Re-Election, to Be Revived.

William A. McQuaid, Deputy Attorney General, who was put in charge of the prosecution of James Heffernan and Harry Scanlon by Attorney General Carmody after District Attorney Matthew J. Smith of Queens had attempted to have dismissed the indictments found against them on a charge of assaulting Mrs. Clara Ellert, 16 years old, in the clubhouse conducted by "Joe" Cassidy, the Queens Democratic boss, in Long Island City on Dec. 18, 1913, held a long conference with County Judge Burt J. Humphrey in the Queens County Court House yesterday regarding the case. After the conference Judge Humphrey said that Mr. McQuaid was gathering all documents and data available in the case.

In the State investigation of the Ellert case it was charged that District Attorney Smith tried to shield the two men involved because they were friends of the Democratic boss. Furthermore, Mrs. Alfred Grey Eno, head of the suffragists in Queens, who has done much to urge the prosecution of the Ellert case, is believed to have aroused considerable sentiment against him. But he has announced that he will be a candidate for re-election in the Fall. Mr. Smith's candidacy is said to be regarded as hopeless by even his friends in Queens. He was elected two and a half years ago on Cassidy's ticket by fewer than 500 votes, and after that time was the subject of two sets of charges in which residents of Queens requested his removal. The first set was dismissed by former Gov. Dix. Last July a new set was filed with Gov. Sulzer. The second charges are said to have been lost sight of in the Sulzer impeachment proceedings and are still pending. It is said that they will be revived if Mr. Smith persists in seeking re-election.

In the second batch of charges Mr. Smith was accused of using his office and the Grand Jury for political purposes and of making illegal use of the Grand Jury subpoena. Among those whose affidavits were included in the charges was Maurice E. Connolly, Borough President of Queens. Mr. Connolly stated in his affidavit that Smith first urged him not to run for the office of Borough President, telling him Mr. Cassidy would have him indicted within six months. Mr. Smith, he alleged, then tried to embarrass his administration after he had been elected.

COLUMBIA BOWS TO TRADE.

Removes Restrictions on Its Fifth Avenue Property.

All the leaseholders of Columbia University property in the blocks between Forty-eighth and Fifty-first Streets, from Fifth Avenue to within a short distance of Sixth Avenue, received notices yesterday from John McLean Nash, Treasurer of the University, stating that the trustees had consented to the use of the property for light business uses. All of Columbia's valuable property there was restricted to private homes, but when the invasion of business set in up Fifth Avenue the restrictions were removed from the Fifth Avenue frontage. A few years ago the University began to sell its holdings in the block from Forty-seventh to Forty-eighth Street and that fact helped to advance trade further up Fifth Avenue.

Under the original terms of the leasehold the tenants of homes in the side streets have been unable to use the houses for business and many former occupants have moved away in view of the changed conditions. Many efforts have been made to secure a modification of the old residential restrictions and this was authorized at a meeting of the trustees early in the week.

For the present, however, tenents of Columbia houses may use their homes for light business only, such as dressmaking, millinery, or other trades which do not involve radical alterations or the placing of signs on the buildings, except as approved by the trustees.

The property was formerly the Elgin Botanical Gardens, and was given to Columbia by the State of New York over a century ago.

WOMAN KILLS FOUR LIONS.

Wife of an Officer in South Africa Had Only Two Natives with Her.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—From South Africa comes an account of a Scotswoman's daring lion hunt.

Mrs. De Laporte, wife of one of the officers in charge of the Sabie game reserve on the Delagoa Bay Railway, received news in the course of her husband's absence that lions had killed a bull a few miles away.

An hour before dawn, armed with a rifle and accompanied by two natives, she went in search of the lions. Suddenly through the bush she saw six of them, still devouring their prey. She accounted for two before the animals realized their danger. The third she rolled over as it made off, and the fourth, a young lioness, which was attempting to charge, she stopped with a bullet in the eye at a distance of eight yards.

By this time Mrs. De Laporte had exhausted her ammunition and was, therefore, unable to follow up the two survivors.

MOYER ASKS STATE AID.

Fled from Butte Dynamiters in Auto —Riot Cost $100,000.

BUTTE, Mon., June 24.—Butte was quiet today after a night of rioting caused by internal strife in the local union of the Western Federation of Miners, which cost the life of one man, injuries to four others, and property loss of about $100,000.

Mayor Duncan fears more fighting between the two factions of the local union, but said he would not ask for troops, as he believed the Sheriff should make that request. The Sheriff, however, has taken no action to that end.

A dispatch from Helena this afternoon said that Charles H. Moyer, President of the Western Federation, had arrived there. He, it was learned, left here in an automobile, and made the seventy-three-mile trip direct to the capital.

Moyer asked Gov. Stewart to take charge of the situation. Moyer and others were driven from the hall last night under fire, and Moyer's whereabouts for hours was uncertain.

Sues Mitchell May for Auto Injuries.

Edward Gaffney was appointed yesterday guardian of his 14-year-old son, Edward, to bring suit against Mitchell May, Secretary of State. Mr. Gaffney says in his application that on June 20 an automobile owned by Mr. May, traveling at high speed, struck his son and that the chauffeur gave no warning.

CITY NEWS CENSOR? IS NONE, SAYS MAYOR

Denies That Dr. Blan Has Authority to Give or Withhold Department Information.

NO PRESS AGENT, EITHER

Commissioners All Tongue Free, but Advised to Talk Most About Things Accomplished.

After reading accounts in yesterday's newspapers of the activities of Dr. Louis Blan, an examiner in the Commissioner of Accounts office, who was said to be an official press agent and censor of news from city departments, Mayor Mitchel lost no time in fixing Dr. Blan's status. "If Dr. Blan gave the impression to anybody that he had been engaged as a censor of news he was far exceeding his authority," said the Mayor.

"A wrong impression has gone out that the Administration is employing a press agent," said the Mayor. "There is no such thing. Dr. Blan, as a part of his official duties as an employe in the office of the Commissioner of Accounts, has been assigned to do the mechanical work of summarizing the reports of the department heads so that the Mayor may comment on them.

"Dr. Blan has no authority to suppress or alter news in any way. As to the charge that the department heads have been bottleed up, it is not true. I have not ordered Commissioners not to give out news. I have cautioned them not to talk about constructive work, but to talk after they've done things. I have suggested also that they should not make reports public before submitting them to me, but any Commissioner is free to talk after he has reported to me."

The Mayor seemed to be disturbed that any head of a department should have reached the conclusion that they were to be "bottled up" because Mr. Blan had been hired to summarize reports. He was told that several Commissioners had taken this view of the situation and that they were not at all pleased. When he was told that certain Commissioners resented any plan to keep them from giving out news in their own way the Mayor said that while some of the Commissioners might have been irritated by the activities of the Commissioner of Accounts they had no reason to be. It was entirely a misunderstanding, he said.

"There is no stop-control on any department or any Commissioner," went on the Mayor. "Mr. Blan has been retained in a clerical capacity only, to separate the component parts of some reports and summarize them."

"Are you going to issue an order to your Commissioners, telling them that they are at liberty to give out any information they desire?" the Mayor was asked.

"I shall communicate with each one and make it clear," he replied, "that they have entire liberty to talk at any time on any subject except to reveal the subject matter of reports I have not received."

Several Commissioners, it was learned yesterday, intend to summarize their own reports, as they consider that they are much more able to do it than an examiner for the Commissioner of Accounts. The Mayor will receive a number of reports within the next few days, the Fire, Dock, and Police Departments and the Civil Service Commission having yet to be heard from, and he intimated that when these were finished Mr. Blan would not be nearly so active as he has been in the past. Earlier in the day the Mayor was quoted as saying:

"The stories which were printed were false, and the men who wrote them knew that they were false." When he was asked if he had been quoted correctly, he replied that he did not intend to make such a sweeping assertion, as he referred only to the case of Commissioner Fetherston, who, it was said, had withdrawn a story he had given out and refused to give it out again until it had been revised by Mr. Blan. The Mayor sent for Commissioner Fetherston and the latter denied that such a thing had happened.

After leaving Roome, the Cardinal journeyed to Switzerland, where he now is. He will sail for New York on Sept. 2. The Cardinal is in excellent health.

S. P. C. C. ARRESTS AUTHOR.

Henry Wallace Phillips Says Mother of Child Actress Is Jealous.

Henry Wallace Phillips, author of "Red Saunders" and other Western stories, was arrested last night by an officer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children on a charge involving the welfare of Marjorie Cluxton, a fourteen-year-old girl, with whose mother he had boarded in an apartment at 142 West Ninety-sixth Street. He was released after an hour's confinement in the West 100th Street Station on $500 bail furnished by Dan Smith, the artist, and will be arraigned in the Harlem Court this morning.

Mr. Phillips was released last July from the State Hospital for the Insane on Ward's Island, where he had been a patient for three years. He was sent there at the request of his wife, Louise Moore Millspaugh Phillips, formerly of Richmond, N. Y., whom he married in 1898, and from whom, he says, he is about to obtain a decree of divorce.

On his release Mr. Phillips went to live as a boarder with Mrs. Lillian Cluxton, divorced wife of Dr. F. C. Cluxton of Bradford, Penn., who rented rooms in her apartment on Amsterdam Avenue. Mrs. Cluxton's daughter, Marjorie, is a child actress. Last December, Mr. Phillips says, she took sick in Chicago and came home. He then met her for the first time.

"I am an artist," Mr. Phillips said after his release, "and I had the girl pose for me. In May I had her sent to the House of Mercy at Inwood, where she was put in charge of Sister Gertrude. I had represented to the Children's Society that she did not have proper guardianship. This trouble has been caused by jealousy on the part of the girl's mother, who resents the interest I take in her daughter."

The arrest was made by Special Officer John C. Butts on a warrant issued by Magistrate Levy of the Harlem Police Court. Though a native of New York, Mr. Phillips has spent many years in the West and in Canada as a miner, cowboy, and school teacher.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, JUNE 25, 1914.

THE TEETH OF THE SHERMAN LAW.

It is the general understanding that the pending revision of the trust laws is designed to make them more severe. Certainly it would be false pretenses to pass laws making them less severe. Yet the Supreme Court's decision on Monday dissolving the Lumber Trust for "blacklisting" raises doubts regarding the clauses regarding unions, farmers' and other organizations "not for profit." This week 80,000 members of the International Federation of Bricklayers were disfellowshipped by the American Federation of Labor. Their offense was that they filled the places of strikers, and denied the authority of the International Union of Marble Setters, which is affiliated with the Federation. The news telegram declares that these 80,000 men were "blacklisted," that is, that they were not to be allowed to earn their living so far as the Federation could control the matter. At Butte dynamite and firearms were reported yesterday as fatally used in a labor struggle between rival unions. Both sides cannot be right, and yet there must be one law for both. Mr. Gompers has no difficulty in taking sides, and has pledged the Federation's support to the Western Federation of Miners. But how is the law to sympathize with rioters and dynamiters, or to take sides against those unionists who seceded from the union in revolt against assessments and compulsory exhibition of union cards as a condition of earning a living? There is no doubt that these occurrences are in connection with labor disputes, and that they are in accord with the practice of unions. They could not be prosecuted under the prohibition of the use of the funds appropriated for prosecution of other trusts. That much is clear, for that law means what it says, and says what it means. But what would be the condition of the law under the exemption of unions in language about which few agree? Could the President sign it if it authorized such acts? If it did not authorize them, would labor accept it as satisfactory?

One of the acts annulled by the Supreme Court on Monday was the Kentucky statute authorizing farmers to pool their tobacco. On the same day the Farmers' Society of Equity sent to the farmers of the country a circular saying that the immense crop made it possible that wheat might sell at 75 cents. Accordingly the farmers of the country are urged to "hold" their wheat for $1. Can the farmers do under the national law what the farmers of Kentucky are forbidden to do? If the farmers can do it, why cannot others? If associations "not for profit" are to be privileged over others, may it not be anticipated that many such organizations will be formed for the purpose of doing things otherwise unlawful? If associations of farmers may raise the price of wheat, why may not a benevolent association of bakers raise the price of bread, and so on through the list.

These are not the only "jokers" and matters about which opinions differ which are summarily settled in the pending bills. They are prepared by a committee of the Senate, which occasionally has a quorum, and were sent to the Senate by a House in which there is no quorum. Should railways have the right to make traffic agreements or pools? Should the right of suit against common carriers under anti-trust laws be limited to officials, or be extended to any complainant? If "unfair competition" is forbidden by the old law, is it well to forbid it again under a new law? If we are to have a Trade Commission to regulate unfair practices, ought it not to have control of the subject and not be too much hampered by statutes whose meaning is obscure before passage, and will be more obscure before the courts settle the points the lawyers will raise? In his report on the Trade Commission bill Senator Newlands says that it would have prevented the formation of such trusts as those in oil and tobacco. It would not have prevented them if it had not been enforced, and the anti-trust law which "busted" them could have controlled their practices if applied to them. These points are not made against the enactment of the pending bills, for it is agreed that it is necessary to dispose of them to end uncertainty which holds enterprise in check. But surely there can be no disagreement about knowing exactly what the new laws provide, or about passing them under false pretenses regarding their provisions. The Senate is improving these bills as it did the banking and tariff bills, and the bills should be made fit to pass before they are passed.

SOAP BOXES ANYWHERE.

Not free speech, but free speech in places they designate and at Tarrytown's expense, is the heroic issue championed in his letter to The Times, printed elsewhere, by Leonard D. Abbott, President of the Free Speech League. The town believes that he and his wild followers will create a disturbance if permitted to speak in the streets. Mr. Abbott knows that a permit would be one to raise a riot. His errand there is provocative of riots. The villagers do ill to fall in with his plans by becoming disorderly and giving him the notoriety he craves, but President Pierson and Police Chief Bowles are well within their rights in withholding a permit.

Mr. Abbott's right to hire a hall collides with the equal right of the private owners of halls to refuse to let one to a mischievous tenant. Moral suasion will not do so effectively, he says, what can be done by a defiance of law and order in Tarrytown. He is for "direct action." Instead of meeting with a mob his proposal to set up soap boxes anywhere, the village would do well to have a few officers ready to lead Mr. Abbott and his fellows quietly to a place where they will have a chance to think.

NOT A LOCAL MATTER.

No New Yorker can hear without a feeling of pride and satisfaction the comments which are being made all over the country on the demand, made here, that Elihu Root reconsider his determination not to be a candidate for the Senate. It has ceased to be solely a State matter and is becoming one of concern to the nation. From New England to the Pacific Coast the comments are all of one character, and those made by Democrats and Progressives, as well as by Republicans, recognize the high position which New York has assumed in the Senate. Such a tribute is no less agreeable to New York because she has not always been able to command it. The Empire State was long condemned to a disgraceful silence in the nation's councils. While States like Rhode Island, Maine, and Connecticut supplied the Senate's leaders, New York was voiceless and impotent with its Platts and Edward Murphys. Even when its Senators were of a higher grade, as in the cases of Hill and Conkling, it is difficult to imagine the whole country regarding their retirement as a national misfortune and demanding that they reconsider. The State which leads the Republic in so many other respects has now assumed also the leadership in statesmanship which rightfully belongs to her, and it is Elihu Root who has brought that honor to her.

The general recognition of the national aspects of this matter by the press, east, south, and west of us, has been unmarred so far by any dissenting voice. The Democrats and Progressives, while naturally opposed to Root as a Republican, heartily concede his eminence and the honor it has conferred on his State. They no doubt feel, and rightly, that it is to the interest of the nation to have a strong opposition leader. It is to the true interest of the party in power, too. Thus The Richmond Times-Dispatch says it is not prevented by its disapproval of his politics from recognizing that he ranks "among the big Americans in public life today," and that "such a man is of distinct value "in an age too much given to hedg-"ing, shallowness, and mediocre men-"tal ability." It concludes that New York will "have to go far to find a "man that will not show poorly by "contrast." The Washington Times, speaking for the Progressives, says that he "has held a good many politi-"cal offices, some of them of great "eminence, and he has never failed "to add new distinction to his store "by his discharge of the duties of "each successive post." The Washington Star, independent of all parties, declares that "the Republicans of "New York have nobody to match "Mr. Root in point of ability and ex-"perience," and that the Democrats "could not hope to match him."

In Connecticut, The Hartford Courant holds that if the direct election of Senators means the loss of such men, it will not prove a boon. "Elihu Root's wisdom and skill," it says, "have been of great service to the country," and it points out that his political opponents concede that "his retirement from public life would be a distinct loss." Out in Oregon the same view of the case appeals to The Portland Oregonian, to which paper it seems that Mr. Root's replacement by a smaller man would be an indication that the people had not yet learned how to use their new power wisely. "There are many reasons," says The Oregonian, "why the nation "should prefer to see Mr. Root re-"main in the Senate, for he is a man "whose transcendent ability has been "of great service to the nation." The Philadelphia Public Ledger says under the title "Root's Service a National Asset":

> It will be a national misfortune should Senator Elihu Root refuse to be a candidate for re-election. Were he to become a candidate and be defeated it would prove a lamentable commentary upon the capacity of New York State to govern its affairs with credit and put at the same time a stigma upon the whole nation. In a United States Senate as constituted during any period of our national history, he would have been a distinct and effective addition. New York's greatest Senator was Seward, and yet, in mental attainments, Root is his equal. He is as good a lawyer as Webster, as sound a logician as Calhoun, a far abler lawmaker than Conkling, a statesman of the broadest grasp and a patriot of the highest ideals. A man of that calibre is a national asset, which cannot afford to be lost.

The Kansas City Journal says:

> Mr. Root is a statesman who honors the office he holds, and no office is so exalted, not even the highest, as to be above his deserts. He lends dignity and strength to the public service. He is recognized throughout the world as one of the great statesmen and great international lawyers of the present era. If he persists in his reported determination and retires to private life and to the ease which he has so richly earned, the country will lose one of its biggest statesmen and the party one of its most valuable assets.

It is not necessary to multiply quotations. The nation looks to New York not to step down from the high place she has assumed by placing any man of less stature than Elihu Root in the Senate.

CURVES, MORAL AND OTHERWISE.

"I might lecture to you boys about control being the big thing in life," said Mr. "Christy" Mathewson in his address to the boys of the New York Juvenile Asylum at Dobbs Ferry. But he didn't. He went on to discuss the "fadeaway" and other considerations important to the art of curve pitching—which advertises the fact that the Giants' star pitcher puts his preaching into practice off the field as well as on. Few, facing 550 delinquents, could have resisted that fat and abundant opportunity to moralize. "Matty" could well have taken a most unfair advantage; his admiring audience would have suffered anything from him. But he has shown himself as having one of the rarest and yet the most important virtues of the true orator-preacher—he knows when to stop. In other words, his oratory is under as perfect control as his valuable right arm. He delivered his philosophy of conduct in one short sentence and let it go at that—a straight overhand delivery, but it covered the plate.

Possibly more than one of the 550 were thinking over the relation that exists between straight living and success while "Matty" described the disadvantages of round-arm work for the beginner; more than one put a second meaning to his advice: "Never mind if the opposing batters "do make hits off you. It won't be "long before you have such control "that you can place the ball where "you want to and begin to outguess "the batters. Little by little you "will be able to acquire your curve."

APPLE AND FLOOD.

The knowledge of good and evil, leaping like twins from the core of one apple tasted, was the doom pronounced upon Noah and his descendants—not upon Adam—in the old Babylonian tale of the Flood and the Fall of Man appearing in The Times's London cable dispatches yesterday. The scholars are agreed that the Biblical writers of Genesis based their story of Noah's ark on that revealed by the Nippur tablet and deciphered by Prof. Langdon. But from Greenland's icy mountain to India's coral strand, and beyond, the account of mankind's sin and the Deluge is in the folklore of every nation. Whether it is founded on some historical event or is purely imaginary does not account for the persistence and wide spreading of this tradition. It lives because it tries to set forth the mystery of evil.

The freedom of the press was vindicated by John Milton in his citation of the apple story, that man can know good only by the publication of evil, in order to shun it. Noah published news of evil; he got a "beat" on all other means of publicity of his day. The news was unwelcome, his neighbors didn't like it, they disbelieved it and ridiculed and denounced the publisher. But he foresaw the flood and guarded all against it who would avail themselves of his ark of refuge. As an example of one who looks at the facts without flinching and with due preparation, Noah is inspiring. If he also ate the forbidden apple that experience, too, conveyed its element of moral profit.

LEPRAPHOBIA.

The horror of lepers is a religious horror. The scriptural writers were not good at diagnosing diseases, and their accounts mix up leprosy with several other ailments that are highly infectious. Leprosy is not nearly so fatal as tuberculosis, and it is not so easily "catching." In fact, some doctors and nurses of lepers who have attended them for years hold that it is not spread at all by contact. The terror still inspired by the traditions of the disease Dr. Rucker of the Federal Surgeon General's office properly dubs lepraphobia. At the meeting of the American Medical Association in Atlantic City he denounced the inhuman treatment of lepers, and proposed the founding of a Federal Leprosarium.

If lepers must be segregated, they should not be treated as wild and dangerous animals. The case of John Early, who has been driven from pillar to post all over the United States, is in point. Communities refused to care for him. Bills to establish hospitals for his pitiable kind never reached a vote in the State Legislatures. Dr. Rucker would have the United States appropriate enough money to establish a national hospital for the unfortunates, wherein they may have the treatment of human beings.

REVISING THE BRITISH BUDGET.

Now it appears why the British Chancellor was so bitter against Mr. Hill's criticism of his budget. When Mr. George berated the American "buccaneers" and "pirates" for their criticism of his policy of social reforms by taxation he knew that his budget was a botch, and could not be forced upon Englishmen by the party representing the majority of the nation. This has been confessed by taking a penny off the income tax. So far as it has been collected it must be repaid, and all the July dividend and interest warrants must be redrawn. The muddle is worse than our own income tax caused.

There is another point of interest to Americans in the manner in which the British budget "fell to pieces," in the language of one London newspaper on Tuesday. The Speaker ruled out of order the legislative provisions which were "tacked" on to the budget. These "riders," as we call them, and of which some most objectionable are now pending at Washington, were not allowed even to be put to a vote. The Chancellor's reforms must be postponed until he can get the money for them, and perhaps he cannot get it at all. Several by-elections have been lost on his insurance scheme, and it is said by British judges that the budget fiasco will hasten a general election with no presumption in favor of the Government through the benevolences whose economic effects were indicated by Mr. Hill. No wonder the British Chancellor raged at the foreign critic whose plain and polite words exposed him to his countrymen.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Gunda's Case Again Considered. For defense of the way in which Gunda, the big Indian elephant in the Bronx Zoological Park, has for two years been constantly chained, Dr. Hornaday seems to depend chiefly on the assumption that the animal has brought this treatment on himself by refusal to control a "savage temper and a murderous disposition." In other words, the doctor would have us withhold our sympathy from Gunda because all the privileges and liberties of the other elephants in the park would be his if he would only be good, as they are.

That justification for the severe treatment of prisoners, even when they are human criminals, is viewed very much askance by modern penologists, and its use in the case of an animal is a reminder of the Middle Ages, when bulls and bears and other beasts occasionally homicidal were often tried in court for murder, and, when convicted, put to death by the common hangman. Of course Gunda is in no degree responsible for his ferocity, and while in it full warrant might be found for killing him, if the public safety could not otherwise be secured, it is no excuse at all for condemning him to long years of constant suffering.

Dr. Hornaday denies that Gunda does suffer. Now, few of us would claim to know as much about animals as does this properly eminent authority, but perhaps he is not so much better informed than the rest of us as to the emotions and sensations of animals, for in that respect they are dark mysteries to all of us. This elephant's life has been brought down to mere existence in conditions as unlike those natural to him as could easily be imagined. His motions have been reduced to a monotonous swaying on feet practically fixed. There is reason for believing that this immobility has for him something of the deadly tedium that would soon drive mad a human being in like imprisonment, and that the weariness is not accompanied by more or less of pain passes credulity.

Whether Gunda suffers or not, there is no doubt that many do who watch his persistent resort to the one poor means of relief that has been left to him. The thought of him as he swings there ceaselessly back and forth is a horror by day and a cause of bad dreams at night. Something must be done about it, and promptly.

The Azores Easy to Find! Sea Captains questioned by Times reporters as to what chance, in their opinion, an aviator flying from Newfoundland had of making a landfall in the Azores, showed surprisingly little inclination to declare the achievement impossible. Indeed, they apparently regarded it as hardly difficult, though admitting that the vibrations and elevation of an aeroplane in flight would render observations untrustworthy.

One of them called attention to the length of the line along which the islands stretch and to the height of one of the group as helpful to the aerial voyager, but perhaps the seamen did not take sufficiently into account the difference between navigation on the ocean and navigation far above it. The very brevity in point of time of the aviator's journey adds enormously to the difficulty of establishing his position, since his opportunities for correcting his course will be pitifully few, and a slight deflection or an unrecognized drift, rarely of any particular consequence for a ship, would be fatal for the occupants of a craft with margins of safety of all kinds so perilously narrow.

The compass, too, is apt to misbehave in such close proximity to the motors, while the gyroscopic substitute is heavy and it uses up power.

Scolding Seems Undeserved. Much grief is apparently felt by The Milwaukee Sentinel because "the Eastern press" took the admirably reasoned decision of the Wisconsin Supreme Court, sustaining the State's eugenic marriage law, as in effect commendatory. We erred, The Sentinel tells us, in not paying more attention to the fact that two dissenting Justices wrote an opinion denouncing the statute in almost ferocious terms as oppressive, unreasonable, unnecessary, and provocative of immorality!

As these statements had nothing whatever to do with the one question before the court, which was that of constitutionality, and as the prevailing opinion explicitly approved of the law as possessing qualities exactly opposite those ascribed to it by the two dissenters, it is hard to see why "the Eastern press" should not have thought that the law stood the test pretty well.

After all, it was the business of the Wisconsin Legislature, not of Supreme Court Justices, to decide everything in regard to marriage laws except their constitutionality. Obiter dicta are often interesting, but they do not compel either acquiescence or obedience from anybody.

AN EASY OLD AGE.

How Retired Business Men May Retain the Zest of Life.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The ever-delightful "Topics of the Times" in referring to old age pensions touched upon the generally accepted belief that commercial men upon retirement are subject to ennui, rust, and decay. There are enough instances in my observation to refute the claim. Serving recently on a Grand Jury, of its twenty-three members nine were retired business men, and during our intercourse of a month I found seven of them with alert mental action, dispassionate in survey, and with eager interest and comprehension of the cases presented, comparing favorably with the other members in active pursuits.

Pretty nearly all of us, even during strenuous occupations, experience an hour or two of tedium daily, perhaps periods of stagnation resultant from mental or physical fatigue. Others beyond 60 are uniformly tedious to all they encounter, through inability to accept new conditions, through the peevishness common to some in advancing age, and through general pessimism. Every day should be a welcome birth in experience. Entering business life at 13, after forty-two years of activity, several causes, some of them obligatory, appealed to me as reasons for retirement, although the fear was entertained, based upon the experience or premonitions of others, of general mental and physical atrophy succeeding relinquishment of life's habit. A struggle of months of consideration followed, until I summoned the courage to do that which I was afraid to do. Nearly five years have passed, and there are no regrets. On the contrary, life is more satisfying because it occupies broader fields.

Over thirty years' concentration on one enterprise narrowed my scope of vision. Upon retirement wider vistas opened in all directions. In proportion to that which is to be known, I found myself often densely ignorant of elementary principles. Too late or inapt to pursue a single subject with thoroughness, the attractions of the many have induced an omniverous taste. History, biography, the essayists, orators, mechanical and natural sciences, civics, commercialism, sociology, and a wide range of subjects are superficially traversed. This great city of 330 square miles is full of interest in distinctive localities, buildings, museums, parks, libraries, water front, and what not. A daily ramble of five to eight miles has not yet exhausted its resources for me. I take an occasional trip to some other city within several hundred miles, and I have walked or ridden within a radius of twenty-five miles from Times Square until I have acquired good knowledge of the topography and features of interest so quaintly and conscientiously portrayed by Sarah Comstock, The Times contributor.

Now, there are many business men rapidly approaching early old age who begin to find their pursuits relaxed or "dull, stale, and flat," but fear relinquishment of habit. It seems time now to begin to cultivate new habits, abandon their severities and abruptness, search for new things in life, and with the abandonment and discovery realize

How blest is he who crowns in shades like these

A TREE CULTURE BUREAU.

Needed to Look After City's Planting and Pruning.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reply to your correspondent in the Bronx who complains of the destruction of trees in that borough by unskillful planting and pruning, and wishes to know if the Tree Planting Association cannot remedy this defect in tree culture, I would say that the association has been endeavoring for several years to have established in the Park Department a bureau or board composed of foresters, one for each borough, who are graduates of reputable schools of forestry, and organized, equipped, and administered according to the most approved teaching of the science of forestry. This board or bureau would coordinate all of the tree culture of the several boroughs; place all tree planting and culture of the greater city on a scientific basis, and act as the immediate adviser of the Park Board in all matters pertaining to the selection, planting, cultivation, and conservation of trees in the parks, avenues, streets, and public places.

To give this plan of organizing a permanent, scientific, unified, and practical system of tree culture for the several boroughs the highest possible indorsement, the Tree Planting Association requested the Dean of the State College of Forestry of Syracuse University, Prof. Hugh P. Baker, to cause a survey of the boroughs to be made by skilled officers of the college and formulate a plan of organizing the proposed bureau. The request of the association was generously complied with by Dean Baker, and the task was assigned to Prof. Francis, whose department is that of planning of cities and cultivation of trees in parks and streets. The survey has been completed, a report made, and a plan of organizing a tree culture bureau or board submitted which has been pronounced by authorities who have examined it as the most complete and practicable hitherto devised. The Tree Planting Association has accepted the plan and submitted it to the Park Board, which has it under advisement.

It is believed by the association that if this plan is approved and carried into effect a new era in tree planting and cultivation in the parks, streets, and public places of New York will be inaugurated, and that this city may soon rival Washington and Paris.

Two Imperators.

From The Sun.

The big Colonel reviews the big ship. "Amazing," quoth he. "Bully!"

The big ship reviews the big Colonel. In its quiet wooden way—Wellington and Grant had that wooden look, too—and its stately steel way the German Imperator reviews the Progressive Imperator. "Of the first rank, amazing, out of sight! What power! What a draught, what speed, what boiling boilers, what great intellectual bunkers, what a cargo of principles and trophies, what swift reversal of engines, what a tremendous discharge of smoke and steam, what a heaven high crow's nest, what a delicate steering gear, what accommodations for stowaways, what hot water tight moral compartments, what a perpetual Walpurgis Night of foghorns, torpedoes and rockets, what a handsome third-class coffee room! Fine, fine! Wonder beautiful! Hoch, likewise Hock and Bock, Imperator!"

The Second Imperator bowed deeply, dipping a respectful nose in the deep. The First Imperator put the Captain in temporary charge of the Second Imperator and turned in for forty winks.

GUNDA'S BAD TEMPER

Blamed on the Keepers Who Denied Him a Mate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

No one can gaze upon poor Gunda without asking himself, "Why?" When the animal arrived in the Zoological Gardens he was a good natured, docile elephant. I think the fault is with the management of the place. Either Dr. Hornaday or his subordinates won't be guided by nature. All animals, including the most ferocious, like the companionship of their kind. This elephant would never have developed murderous tendencies if a mate had been put in the cage with him. Instead a cow elephant was put in a cage near him, but where he could not see her.

The Zoological Society bought at much expense a pair of beautiful giraffes. They were put in the same inclosure and both flourished. Some wise subordinate of Dr. Hornaday's had them put in different inclosures. In a few months both were dead—grief, The Times reporter wrote, was the cause.

A pair of Chapman zebras—male and female—occupy together an inclosure in the park. They are as docile as house cats. Near them are two Grevy zebras, separated by iron bars. I have seen the zebra stallion trying to bite through this iron grating to attack people and I challenge even the man who feeds them to enter the stall with this animal. Yet he was well behaved when he arrived.

Dr. Hornaday perhaps doesn't appreciate the law of nature with respect to the association of animals of a kind. There used to be caged together in the Zoological Park a black leopard and a spotted leopard. The color combination was most artistic, but one day the fellow with spots took a dislike to the black fellow and killed him. This would probably not have occurred to a cage mate with spots. The fault may be with the keepers. Few of these are chosen because of their knowledge of or sympathy with animals. They are often chosen upon the recommendation of politicians. In many years of observation I have never known an animal with a cage mate of its kind to degenerate into a criminal beast.

CHARLES H. GEORGE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Last year, with a party of friends, I visited the Zoo, and, in view of the size of the Zoo, was struck with what seemed to be the limited quarters given the wild animals. With all that room, in rolling meadow and woodland, it seemed as though a certain leopard we noticed, some lions, and a white grizzly bear might be allowed more space than just an extra half length in which to pace to and fro. The case of the chained elephant was, however, particularly noticeable and pathetic.

According to your story, Dr. Hornaday thinks that, were Gunda asked, he would prefer to be chained for life, with room to move two feet backward and two feet forward, than to be shot.

Given that Dr. Hornaday were possessed of the jungle instinct; that he had not been born in, but brought into, captivity at an age which made it possible to remember his wild freedom; that he measured over nine feet in height and weighed 10,000 pounds; that he had a year lease on life which ran into the eighties, with the privilege of moving two feet forward and two feet back, and he were given his choice between being shot or being allowed to toll out his eighty years, which would he be likely to select?

It is a pretty safe guess what the average "lifer" would choose. Somehow it seems as though the edict of the jungle would be that it's not just a square deal—this slow-death business—which the Zoo is handing out to Gunda.

EDITH DAY ROBINSON.
Hempstead, L. I., June 23, 1914.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When Mr. Smith was Commissioner it was suggested that a place similar to the hippopotamus tank be made for the elephant then chained in Central Park. If I am not mistaken, he and Mr. Snyder thought the plan feasible, but could not be undertaken on account of lack of funds. One of your contemporaries was requested to start a public subscription, but for some reason no effort was made.

The elephant enjoys a bath. If such a place were built, with a tank for water, not only would it prove more humane, but doubtless prolong life.

Have we no poet to immortalize our tender mercies, our humane treatment of captives—prisoners in penitentiaries, pride of the jungle in our parks? What sort of an example is this torturing process to the children? Does it not teach them to be cruel?

Overworked by Parcel Post.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My husband is a trolley conductor, and his run is from Hartford to Windsor Locks. We live in the latter place. We thought the parcel post was going to do wonders for all the people, and we did not concern ourselves about the matter further than that.

But my unfortunate husband has aged ten years during the last year, because he is made to do a great deal of extra work in connection with the parcel post, and he does not get a cent extra for it either. What good is it to us if the parcel post carries goods cheaply to us and others if we are killed doing the actual work for nothing? I read in The Times of Monday that people are beginning to see the bad side of the new device in Post Office management. All the men on my husband's line say "Amen!" to your article. Why should our company make us work for nothing, even if the Government makes them work for nothing? I hear the Government doesn't even pay the steam railroads for their parcel post work. What kind of government is this? Why don't the railroads refuse as well as the trolleys? We did not care about them till now we see how it hits ourselves. Now we see that honesty is the best for all, even the workingmen. We should pay the trolleys and railroads and let them pay the men and employ more.

"Cures" for Juvenile Delinquency.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few years ago every "educator" seized eagerly on the chance to explain the badness of many boys on the theory that they had adenoids. Then a holy crusade was preached against the offending adenoids, for it is written, "If thy right hand offend thee, cut it off," and why not adenoids as well?

By this time we hear no more of this ingenious theory—no one exploits it to his own profit. Maybe it is because the lease of life of these theories is as short as that of the last "missing link"; maybe it is because all adenoids are now cut out and children born free of them—but we are now confronted with the "theory of molars." According to a respectable theorist, Superintendent of a juvenile asylum, defective teeth usurp the place of honor formerly given over to adenoids as a producer of youthful naughtiness and depravity, and the dentist is the magician who will work the wonders formerly done by the throat specialist.

Meanwhile, I advise the throat specialists not to give in without a fight. I am acquainted with a throat specialist, and am therefore ready to testify in favor of adenoids as against defective molars in the question of morals of pupils. Is there to be nothing lasting in this world? The naughty child continues, somehow or other, in much the same numbers as ever. Adenoids, molars; next guess?

Dangerous Lunatics at Large.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Wherein lies the responsibility for such a dreadful tragedy as that committed by Mrs. Henry S. Folsom in the murder of her husband?

When one has a contagious disease, such as diphtheria, scarlet fever, or measles, he is obliged to protect the public by a printed sign tacked on his residence, and if this is not done he is liable to a fine or imprisonment or both. In the case of this unfortunate woman, who had a diseased mind, her late husband, her relatives, and undoubtedly their personal friends knew of her true condition. Therefore, why was she permitted to be at large? Supposing she had murdered one of the women she was suspicious of instead of her husband, would her late husband or her family not be criminally liable for such action on the part of the demented woman?

SAFETY FIRST.
New York, June 23, 1914.

DIRECT ACTION.

Leonard Abbott Would Now Defy Authorities in Tarrytown.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There are a few undisputed facts in relation to the "free speech fight" now raging in Tarrytown. The issue was raised, in the first place, by courteous requests, on the part of Arthur Caron and of the head of the Free Speech League, for a permit for an outdoor meeting. These requests were made to President Pierson and to Police Chief Bowles in a letter and in personal interviews. A reply was promised by the Chief of Police, but was not sent. Instead, a statement was published in the press to the effect that no outdoor meetings would be permitted in Tarrytown, but that if visiting speakers chose to hire a hall they would not be prevented.

I contend that this edict is unsatisfactory from every standpoint. In view of present conditions in Tarrytown, it amounts to a total suppression of unpopular ideas. Judge Tompkins, at White Plains, like the authorities of Tarrytown, has talked of the possibility of "hiring a hall." But every one knows that a hall cannot be hired in Tarrytown today by the exponents of radical or unpopular ideas. The village President himself has not been able to hire a hall at which even the free-speech argument might be presented, and when a local clergyman offered his grounds for a debate on the issues involved he was prevented by fellow-clergymen and by his church Trustees from carrying through the plan.

If a man believes in free speech in Tarrytown today how can he get it? He is forbidden the streets and he is forbidden the halls. There are only four possible ways, as I see it, in which he can proceed. He can appeal to the minds of the people through printed matter. He can get a foothold on private property and talk to as many people as care to come and hear him. He can put the matter up to the courts, and try to get a legal decision. And he can resort to "direct action."

All these methods have been employed in Tarrytown, but I contend that the last-named is the most effective. The fourteen men and the one woman who tried to speak in Fountain Square, and who showed themselves ready to go to prison for their conviction, are the people who will be remembered longest in connection with this fight. Those who are deprived of their rights are justified in taking them, and progress in all ages has been inspired by men and women who have shown themselves ready to fight, to suffer, and, if necessary, to die, in behalf of fundamental rights.

Free speech is one of the most precious of such rights, and is so recognized by the national and by all the State Constitutions of the United States. It is one of the paradoxes of the present situation in Tarrytown that men who are attacked as "foreigners" and as law-breakers have shown themselves law-abiding and ready to suffer imprisonment as the cost of upholding this principle of free speech embedded in the very fabric of our American institutions.

All the lawlessness in connection with last Monday evening's demonstration in Tarrytown came from the people of the village and from the authorities. A peaceable attempt was made to hold a peaceable meeting on neutral ground connected with the Croton Aqueduct and belonging to New York City. The meeting was held amid an incessant din from the village hoodlums. Women who tried to speak were pelted with stones and filth. One speaker was wounded in the mouth, and talked with blood flowing. Public officials counseled the turning of the hose on the little band of courageous men and women who stood their ground for more than an hour in face of the savage onslaughts of the crowd. The police of the village did nothing to quell the disorder. On the way from the aqueduct to the railway station a number of the visitors were bruised, hit, and kicked. The aqueduct police, who arrived at the station at 10:30 P. M., contributed their share of vindictiveness and clubbed men even as they were trying to get on the train.

In view of these undisputed facts, can any fair-minded man deny that the real defenders of the American principle of free speech in Tarrytown today are the so-called "I. W. W.'s"? Of course, the Free Speech League is in no way identified with the Industrial Workers of the World. Can any fair-minded man deny that "lawlessness" at Tarrytown has proceeded from the people of the village and from the authorities?

The Collision Near Stonington.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I note the inquiries and replies in The Times relative to the disaster to the steamboats Narragansett and Stonington, both of the Stonington Line, on Long Island Sound, June 11, 1880. I was Health Officer at the time, and the bodies of the victims that were brought here were placed in my charge. I quote from my record concerning the disaster as follows:

> Saturday, June 12, 1880.—Steamers Narragansett and Stonington collided in the dense fog last night about fifteen miles off Cornfield Light. The former was burned and the passengers mostly saved by the latter and brought back to Stonington about 6:30 A. M.

Among the bodies brought here I recorded one as "A lady, unknown, aged about 45 years, had earrings, crosstipped with gold, black dress, said to have had a little girl with blue dress trimmed with lace"; also "Rev. E. B. Lockwood, pastor of the Sixty-eighth Street M. E. Church, New York, drowned."

With regard to the Metis disaster, my record states that "John Roche of Bolton, England, was drowned from steamer Metis off Watch Hill, Aug. 30, 1872. The body was brought to Stonington by the United States revenue cutter Moccasin." "The body of an unknown woman, aged about 45 years, another victim of the Metis disaster, was brought to Stonington, was unclaimed, and buried by the authorities."

SOLOMON VS. SCIENCE.

"Backward, turn backward, O Time in thy flight.
Make me a child again just for tonight."
Let me but dig in the jam as of yore,
Rifle the cooky and cake tins once more;
It would be such fun when mamma came my way,
Sweetly and stickily smiling to say:

"Mother dear, listen, and stifle your rage—
I am just working to stave off old age.
Sweets are the fount of perennial youth.
Metchnikoff says so. It must be the truth."

Then to my side the dear lady would fly.
"Bless you, my darling wise child," she would cry.
"You have a leaning toward science, that's clear.
I will eat with you, (a kiss,) little dear!"

Would she? Well frankly I have a small doubt—
I was a child ere the slipper went out.
Fads educational held little sway,
Fads dietetic were still on the way.
Science and Metchnikoff might share the blame—
I'd get the spanking, you bet, just the same.

TELL OF FIRE RISKS AT FACTORY INQUIRY

Witnesses Point Out the Need of Increasing Safeguards in the Big Stores.

REAL ESTATE MEN PROTEST

Say City's Income Is Threatened by the Burdens Being Piled Upon Property Owners.

The State Factory Commission at its session in the City Hall yesterday delved into the subject of fire hazards in stores and factories. Fire prevention was discussed at length by Joseph O. Hammitt, head of the Fire Prevention Bureau, who said that many of the present requirements were likely to prove of little use so far as old buildings were concerned, although they might apply to new buildings.

Floor openings in department stores, Mr. Hammitt said, constituted one of the most dangerous of fire hazards because of the large floor space loaded with highly combustible material. There was nothing, he said, to prevent fire spreading from floor to floor. It was fundamentally necessary, he said, that there should be some means of closing the floor openings without shutting off the means of exit.

The problem of exits from stores, he said, was a most pressing one, as there was no guarantee that fires would not occur at such times as during the Christmas rush. Having a sufficient number of exterior exits on each floor was one way of making the stores safe, he said. Revolving doors with rigid braces should not be permitted in department stores, in his opinion. Legislation fixing minimum uniform standards for department stores would be desirable, he believes, although existing laws give him authority to direct the safety devices described. He said also that windows opening on fire escapes should be protected with wire glass.

Woman Investigator's Discoveries.

Miss Anna C. Phillips, who has been investigating department stores for the commission for three months, told of conditions she found in eighty stores in about a dozen cities in the State. Few of the stores, she said, had wire glass inclosures for elevator shafts, while seventy of them had no fire-resisting inclosures for stairways. A frequent condition, she said, was open stairways around open elevator shafts, thereby making a flume. Fifteen buildings were constructed of quick-burning material, and twelve were of slow-burning material. One store, she said, made a practice of throwing waste paper down a chute into the basement. Fifteen stores in old buildings, she said, had installed fire walls at the suggestion of insurance companies.

Fire escapes in many of the stores, Miss Phillips said, were useless because of iron bars or metal shutters, while in other cases goods were piled against the windows leading to the fire escapes. In New York City, Miss Phillips continued, twenty-eight of thirty-one stores she inspected had packing rooms not inclosed by fireproof material. Many stores had alcohol, naphtha, and other combustibles unprotected, and in one store an employe was discovered using gasoline within eight feet of a lighted oil stove. In another store, on the sixth floor, 125 feet from a fire escape, she found six barrels of bay rum and more than thirty large bottles of alcohol.

Miss N. Schwartz, Executive Secretary of the Consumers' League, spoke of the proposed recodification of the labor laws. She advocated a law that would necessitate the posting of work hours in a conspicuous place, similar to the requirements in factories.

Would Fix Lunch Hours by Law.

Miss Elizabeth Dutcher of the Retail Clerks' Union recommended, among other things, a law fixing the lunch hour for store employes. Some employes, she said, were sent to their luncheon as early as 9:30 in the morning. She recommended that the time be limited between the hours of 11:30 A. M. and 2:30 P. M. She also said that there should be a law against blacklists, and told of twenty-two States in which such laws were in force.

Miss Geneva Sukap and Miss Ida Fulks, clerks in department stores, told of their experiences and observation in the stores.

Emanuel W. Bloomingdale, general counsel for the New York Dry Goods Association, gave the proprietor's point of view on the proposed recodification of the labor laws. The proposed changes, he said, would perpetuate the very things now complained of. What was needed was a basic law that would get rid of all the contradictions and duplications that now exist. He thought there should be separate laws for factories and mercantile establishments. As to the fire hazard in department stores, he advocated water curtains and lights indicating the exits.

A protest against the labor laws as a violation of home rule was made by Henry C. Block, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association. East side tenements, he said, were taken as a basis, while they could not be compared with the buildings on Fifth Avenue and in other sections of the city.

The City's Income Threatened.

He objected to real estate owners being taxed to meet the requirements of the labor law, and said: "If you keep on adding burdens upon real estate, the greatest source of revenue the city has, the city soon may not be able to raise enough revenue to run the Government."

Mr. Block blamed the agitation of the Factory Commission for the great depression he said existed in the real estate market today. He reported real estate owners as greatly bothered by the duplication of inspections and supervisions in the thirty-one city departments. "And now," he added, "we have the Factory Commission and the Industrial Board to annoy us." He said it would be better to have all inspections and supervisions under the Building Department. He also suggested that a special department of inspection and enforcement be created.

Miss Zoe Coffin, Miss Mary McNally, and Mrs. Mary Wolf appeared before the commission to ask that women employed in the printing trade be exempted from the section of the law forbidding women to work at night. Miss Coffin said she had worked at night as a linotype operator in a newspaper office for twenty years, and would not change for day work, if she could help it. Mrs. Wolf said she had been a proof reader on a morning newspaper and had lost her job because of the labor law and had not been able to find regular employment since.

Miss Rose Schneiderman, representing the Women's Trade Union League, urged that this section of the labor law be not repealed. She said that 100 or 150 women working in New York City at the printing trade at night could find other profitable employment, which would be better than to have all women subjected to night employment.

The commission will continue its hearings this morning.

MISS WILDE, BRIDE OF EARL J. MOON, JR.

Ceremony in St. Thomas's Church Follows a Brief Romance—Full Choral Service.

SISTER, MATRON OF HONOR

Countess Di Frasso One of Six Attendants Who Carry Directoire Canes—To Visit Princess de Croy.

The wedding of Earl Joseph Moon, Jr., of St. Louis, and Miss Dorothy Wilde, younger daughter of Mrs. M. V. Siegel, was solemnized at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in St. Thomas's Church with a full choral service. The church decorations were white lilies and peonies with palms massed in the chancel, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Frank German of St. Thomas's Church, Mamaroneck, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Caswell of St. Thomas's Church.

There was music all through the ceremony, as well as during the seating and departure of the guests, the programme being selected by the bride. Daniel Fillippi was the organist, and the choir, headed by the choirmaster, bearing the golden crucifer, came down the nave to meet the bridal procession, and, turning, preceded it to the altar. The ushers who led the bridal party were John de Koven Bowen of Chicago, Thomas Carter, Jr., and Ralph Morriss of St. Louis, John Carroll, Jr., of Baltimore, Don Morrison Kelley and Lester Kafer of New York. Stuart MacDonald, a brother-in-law of Mr. Moon, was his best man.

The Bride's Attendants.

They were followed by the bride's attendants, who were the Misses Hilda Hiss, Mildred Dodge, and Abby Morrison, Mrs. John de Koven Bowen, Mrs. Herbert Sierck, and the bride's sister, the Countess Dentice di Frasso, (Miss Georgine Wilde,) who arrived on Thursday from Italy. She was the matron of honor.

She wore a frock of lavender satin, with plaited tunic of orchid chiffon that came to within six inches of the bottom of the satin skirt. The corsage was of the chiffon, save that in the centre back the lavender satin showed as a wide panel, belted across at the waist line with the folded girdle to match, and went down the back to the skirt's edge. The chiffon formed elbow sleeves and a Medicis collar at the back, and in the centre front white tulle was inserted as an impiecement. Her wide-brimmed shepherdess hat was of orchid tulle with a large tulle bow at the left side, and both the hat and the collar were shirred to show quillings of a deeper hue. The Countess also wore a long rope of superb pearls and a huge sapphire set in diamonds on her corsage and carried a bouquet of purple orchids and lavender sweet peas.

Mrs. Bowen and Mrs. Sierck wore pale blue, and the three girl attendants were in pale pink. All wore huge leghorn hats trimmed with full double ruches of blue or pink tulle around the crowns, and each had a single pink rose laid anywhere on the brim that suited the wearer. The gowns had mousseline bodices cut square at the neck and having elbow sleeves with turned back cuffs of tulle. The skirts were slit at the back over petticoats of crêpe de chine matching the skirts, and the tunics were draped in double loops full on the hips and tapering in below the knees. Wide folds of soft satin formed the girdles, and were draped at the back in huge bows that almost covered the corsage back.

All of the attendants carried tall Directoire canes. Those of the two young matrons were topped with clusters of pink roses and those of the three girls with purple orchids. The canes were the bride's gift to her attendants, and each had the owner's initials engraved on the gold band encircling it.

Cousin Gives Bride Away.

Miss Wilde walked with her cousin, Charles Monteith Gilpin of New York, who gave her in marriage. Her gown was of soft white satin charmeuse. The corsage was cut low and square and was swathed softly around the body with folds of tulle over the shoulders and the long, close sleeves were of tulle, the bride wearing no gloves. There was a folded girdle, and from this a coat tunic, shorter at the front, fell fourteen to twenty inches, and was finished with a deep flounce of point lace that dropped lower on one side than the other. There was a square court train of the soft satin lined with tulle. The voluminous tulle veil was fluffed into a full, soft cap held by orange blossoms that trailed down each side of the dark coiffure and sprays of orange blossoms held it to the train and gown.

The cap was held at the front by a long bar pin, set with many diamonds, a gift of the Duchess de Talleyrand (Miss Anna Gould.) She also wore a slender chain, with a pendant of a large diamond and large pear-shaped pearl, the gift of the Princess del Drago. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The procesional was the "Lohengrin" Wedding March. "O, Perfect Love" and the "Sevenfold Amen" were played during the wedding ceremony and the recessional was the Mendelssohn "Wedding March." During the seating of the guests the special musical programme included a prelude by Rachmaninoff, a minuet by Beethoven, a chanson by Rubinstein, and also selections from Gounod, Dvorak, Wagner, Duparc, and Puccini.

Reception at the St. Regis.

A small reception followed at the St. Regis, where the second floor, including the marble ballroom, was reserved for the guests. The bride and bridegroom stood against a background of palms in the Louis XVI. ballroom, and Mrs. Siegel headed the receiving line. Mrs. Siegel wore a trailing robe of pastel blue charmeuse draped with white tulle and black lace, topped by a transparent black shepherdess hat wreathed with mixed flowers. There was music and dancing in the ballroom after the reception, in which the bride took turns with a number of the guests, and the refreshments were served in the adjoining room.

The wedding was the result of a pretty romance. Miss Wilde first met Mr. Moon less than six weeks ago when the guest of friends in Chicago. It was a case of love at first sight on both sides, and within four days they were engaged. They are booked to sail Saturday on the Zealand, going direct to Belgium, where they will be the guests of the Prince and Princess de Croy at the Château Billignies, and from there will go to France to visit the Duchess de Talleyrand and the Prince and Princess Murat (Miss Stallo). On their return they will live at Washington Terrace, St. Louis.

Muhlenburg Bailey, Mrs. Lewis Gouverneur Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rutherfurd, Mrs. Brady Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Ledyard Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Lovell Jerome, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carroll, Mrs. Elbert H. SCOTS CHEER BANNOCKBURN

Pipes, Drums, Songs, and Speeches Recall Great Battle.

All the Scots in New York it seemed tried to get into Carnegie Hall last night to celebrate the six hundredth anniversary of the battle of Bannockburn and to honor Robert Bruce. It couldn't be done and some hundreds had to content themselves with listening to the highlanders' pipes from outside. Inside it was enthusiasm from pit to ceiling, and it grew with each song, speech, and fling.

Ex-Senator Charles P. McClelland was the Chairman of the meeting, and there were speeches by Andrew McLean, editor of The Brooklyn Citizen; the Rev. Robert Bruce Clark, descendant of the hero of the famous battleground, and the Rev. Dr. John R. Mackay of the North Avenue Presbyterian Church.

There were songs by Mrs. Giesca Nichols and Hamish MacKay and the New York Scottish Highlanders' Pipe and Drum Band played all the favorites. Pipe Major James Cooper had his bandsmen out of breath, and the Scots whispered to each other that there never was such wonderful music. Some of the bandsmen did the dances while Major Cooper blew the pipe and tapped with his foot.

MISS LOUISE DREW HURT.

Actor's Daughter Thrown Out in Auto Collision.

Miss Louise Drew, daughter of John Drew, the actor, was injured last Saturday afternoon in an automobile collision near Quogue, L. I. The Drews are summering in East Hampton, and Miss Drew was on her way there in a new auto runabout. She was driving it, with a chauffeur beside her.

In attempting to pass an automobile containing the family of Dr. Henry L. O'Brien of Brooklyn, who has a Summer hime in West Hampton Beach, the running board of Miss Drew's car struck the fender of the other machine. Miss Drew's chauffeur grabbed the steering wheel from her, and turned so sharply that the runabout struck a tree.

Miss Drew and the chauffeur were thrown and the car was wrecked. One of the levers struck Miss Drew's right knee, cutting a deep gash. Otherwise she was uninjured. She was taken in Dr. O'Brien's car to the office of Dr. Wadhams, at West Hampton Beach, and after her knee had been treated, she was carried to her father's home by friends in another machine.

WEDDED AT FARM OF COLONIAL DAYS

Miss Eleanor Roelker and Harrison Tweed Married Where Gen. Greene Took Bride.

RECEIVE UNDER ELM TREE

Providence, Boston, and New York Society People at Nuptials at End of "Poet's Walk."

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 24.—A wedding which called together many who are socially prominent in this city, New York, Boston, and elsewhere was that of Miss Eleanor Roelker, sister of William G. Roelker, and Harrison Tweed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harrison Tweed of New York, which took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Greene Farm, in East Greenwich, the home of the bride.

Miss Roelker comes of a long line of ancestors prominent in the history of this State, and Greene Farm, which was built in the seventeenth century, has figured extensively in Colonial history, having been the home of several Governors of that name, of the last of whom Miss Roelker is the great granddaughter.

The marriage ceremony, which is the first to take place at Greene Farm since that of Gen. Nathanael Greene, the revolutionary hero, took place out of doors at the end of the long "Poet's Walk," which stretches from the sloping lawn beside the house to a tall screen of shrubbery at the further end.

The bride and her attendants came from the house across the veranda and down the grassy slope to the music of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin."

Preceding the bride were the ushers, F. Skiddy von Stade, Francis R. Appleton, Jr., of New York, Dudley L. Pickman, Jr., George G. Amory of Boston, Stewart S. Lowery of San Francisco, Winthrop Aldrich, son of ex-Senator Nelson W. Aldrich; James J. Higginson of New York, and Francis W. Sargent, Jr., of Boston.

Then came the matron of honor, Mrs. George Peabody Gardner, Jr., of Boston; the bridesmaids, Miss Katherin W Tweed of New York, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Camilla Morgan of New York, Miss Margaret Thomas of Boston; Miss Helen Taft, daughter of ex-President William H. Taft, and the maid of honor, Miss Edith G. Roelker, sister of the bride.

They were gowned alike, in white taffeta, fashioned with long tunics and sash bows of taffeta, chiffon bodices over pink, with a tiny pink rose at the belt. Their hats were quaint affairs of leghorn, with crowns of deep blue silk, with a cluster of tiny pink roses in front and strings of black velvet ribbons. They carried pink Killarney roses. The bride's gifts to them were large oblong white leather pocketbooks, with gold initials.

The bride was accompanied by her brother, who gave her away. She wore a draped gown of white satin, with garniture of point d'Angleterre lace, which also formed a Medici collar. Clusters of orange blossoms ornamented the gown and caught the bride's veil, which was of tulle. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The bridegroom was attended by Harold S. Vanderbilt, son of William K. Vanderbilt of New York.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. William G. Thayer of St. Mark's, Southboro, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Daniel Goodwin of East Greenwich. During the ceremony "O Perfect Love," was softly played by a string orchestra, and at its conclusion, to the march from "Aïda," the bride and bridegroom led their attendants to a large elm tree, near the end of the walk, under which they stood to receive congratulations.

They were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Roelker, the latter wearing white net over pearl-colored satin, with pale blue sash, and a white hat, trimmed with pink roses and pale blue ribbon. She wore a cluster of gardenias.

A wedding breakfast was served from a large tent erected on the lawn, the bride and bridegroom sitting on a large old settee beneath a tree near by at a table ornamented with pink roses.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Tweed left on their wedding journey, the bride wearing a draped gown of dark blue taffeta, with a picturesque black hat faced with pink, with clusters of tiny pink roses and ribbon strings. Mr. and Mrs. Tweed will spend their honeymoon in Europe, and on their return will live in New York.

BABIES SHOW HOW TO GROW

Infants' Hospitals and Wards Claim Attention in the Week's Celebration.

It was Sick Babies' Day yesterday in the Baby Week celebration, and the Babies' Hospitals and the Babies' Wards of other hospitals were thrown open to visitors to show them what is done for the little ones and to let them know that money for the work is always useful and gives the physicians and nurses opportunities to save many lives.

Especial preparation was made at the Babies' Hospital in East Fifty-fifth Street for the Commissioner of Correction, Katharine B. Davis, was to speak there at noon. Dr. Davis misunderstood the day and went to the hospital on Tuesday. Late yesterday she sent word that she was detained unavoidably. Meantime thirty-five mothers came with their babies to hear what she had to say, and were sent off with a supply of "Better Baby" literature.

One of the babies who arrived to be weighed was Patrick, who was three months old, and tipped the scales at five pounds and five ounces. Patrick was far from a robust specimen of young manhood as he lay weeping copiously upon the scales, but he was a worthy celebrant of Baby Week, for the five ounces he had gained in the last five days. That was a big gain, and Tiddems, the cat mascot of the hospital, hopped upon a chair beside the baby and smiled with delight.

The real shining light of the hospital was one of its residents in its incubator room. This little room was made with double walls and double windows, and was kept at a temperature of 85 degrees, for the little people who made their way into this cold world too soon. They were put into little beds separated by low glass partitions to guard against traveling germs. No one was allowed to enter this incubator room except the nurse in charge and the doctor.

The hero of the incubator room was Louis Shinoni, who when he entered the hospital weighed two and a half pounds and in four months' residence there gained two pounds more. The nurse lifted Louis in his basket and took him to the glass door through which the visitors gazed at him with wonder. Louis had made a marvelous fight. The first month of his stay was a losing one. His weight went down and stayed down, and he was as near death as it was possible to be and live. His chart showed the nearly fatal descent and a long, low line extending through the thirty days when it began to ascend. Though not much to look at as far as babies go, Louis had every appearance of intelligence and fighting force.

There was a nice baby who was pulling splendidly through a stomach operation that would have been arduous for an adult, and one remarkable when performed on a baby of a few weeks. Little black babies were among the patients. Lucille Clark, one of these, wore a beautiful great lavender bow on her hair as she was taking her luncheon on the roof garden, but it could not console her for digestive troubles, and Lucille howled loudly. Harry Lee was a nice little black boy, with nothing more the matter with him than malnutrition. He sat up comfortably in his bed, his arms filled with toys, his hair standing up on his head in funny little woolly horns, and too shy to raise his big black eyes.

Dr. Charles G. Kerley and the resident physician, Dr. Edward A. Morgan, with the Superintendent, Miss Mary Agnes Smith, and her assistant, Miss Woods, showed the visitors around. One of the visitors was Miss Elen Louise Adee, an active manager of the hospital and especially of its Summer work. B. Ogden Chisolm of the Board of Directors was also there. In the list of things that "Every Mother Should Do" that is given out this week one mentioned is: "Keep everything out of the baby's mouth but its food." The hospital showed with one of its little patients how it managed this. The baby wore securely sewed to the sleeves of his little gown a pair of hand protectors—good-sized aluminum cups, into which the hands went. These were perforated with holes for ventilation, and were large enough for the little hands to have free play and altogether too large to go into any baby's mouth.

Today is the day of the well babies, and day nurseries, temporary shelters, homes, and asylums will be visited. This afternoon there will be an automobile ride for mothers and babies.

DR. DAVIS ACCUSES KEEPER.

New Drug Arrest at Blackwell's Island Penitentiary.

Charles E. Wheland, a keeper in the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island, was arrested last night by Patrolman Lydig and locked up in the East Sixty-seventh Street Station on a charge of violation of Section 1,691 of the Penal Code, which prohibits the sale of drugs or liquors to prisoners.

Dr. Katharine B. Davis, Commissioner of Correction, accompanied him to the station. She said that Wheland had admitted that he had slipped packages in and out for prisoners and had received money for them. He denied that there was any drug or liquor in what he had passed in. The case will come up in the Yorkville Court this morning.

Wheland has been a keeper for several years. He has been under surveillance of Commissioner Davis and Warden Fox, but the case against Dr. Charles H. Baxter occupied the first attention of the officials in their drug crusade, and they waited until this had been disposed of temporarily before taking up Wheland's case.

LIBRARY GETS SCULPTURES.

Plaster Casts by MacMonnies Represent Poetry and Philosophy.

Two new groups of sculpture are attracting the attention of visitors to the big Public Library building who go in by the Fifth Avenue entrance. They are on either side of the broad steps to the entrance, in the niches above the fountains. They are plaster casts, the designs by the sculptor MacMonnies, and are placed in position temporarily to see if any change is necessary before they are put into marble.

The two groups represent Poetry and Philosophy. The former, on the left of the steps as one enters the building, is the nude figure of a young woman leaning against an active steed, Inspiration, a drapery which she holds partially covering her. Philosophy is represented by a mature figure of a man of sturdy frame, also slightly covered by the folds of drapery. He is supported by a Sphinx.

DECLARES COLOMBIA GOT DUBOIS NOTE

Expression of Regret Over Panama Not a Mere Department Memorandum, Says Bryan.

BANKERS ARE TO TESTIFY

Senate Committee Will Delve Into Nicaraguan Finances at Hearings This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—In an effort to induce the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations to report favorably the proposed Colombian treaty, Secretary of State Bryan has submitted to the committee a full copy of the memorandum prepared by American Minister Dubois in the Taft Administration. Mr. Bryan's idea in submitting that memorandum was to show that he had gone no further than his predecessor in the direction of an apology.

Mr. Bryan said tonight without qualification that the memorandum sent to the committee, and from which he made an excerpt for comparison with the language of the treaty two days ago, had been submitted by Mr. Dubois to the Colombian Government. The language of the memorandum, which has been printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES, is rather confusing on that point, in that Mr. Dubois's use of the third person makes it sound more like an "aide memoire" for the American Department of State than a communication to another Government.

Some Senators of the Committee on Foreign Relations seemed to have believed that the memorandum submitted to them by Mr. Bryan never had reached the Colombian Foreign Office. In exaggerated form this impression has been published as indicating that Secretary of State Knox not only did not express regret to Colombia for occurrences incident to the acquisition of the Canal Zone, but after receiving recommendation to make such an expression refused to do so.

But Mr. Bryan said this evening that the memorandum undoubtedly had gone to Colombia. The whole correspondence, he said, was at the service of the committee, though he did not expect to make it public just now.

Representatives of the banking firms of Brown Brothers & Co. and J. & W. Seligman & Co. of New York will appear before the committee this week to explain their connection with Nicaraguan finances in connection with the inquiry now being made into questions related to the proposed treaty with Nicaragua. S. Mallet-Prevost, a New York attorney, who has had considerable practice in and about the State Department, and who is said to have taken a part in drawing some of the contracts between American bankers and the Nicaraguan Government, will also appear before the committee. Charles H. Conant of New York, who was invited to appear, has accepted, letters from Mr. Conant and representatives of the two banking firms reaching the committee today.

Considerable interest was manifested by members of the committee today in the publication of the statement made by Emiliano Chamorro, Nicaraguan Minister to the United States, that Germany was willing to pay for the Nicaraguan route more than it was proposed the United States should pay under the pending treaty. It is stated that when Minister Chamorro made this statement to the committee he asked that it be regarded as strictly confidential. Even today members of the committee did not know whether the statement of the Nicaraguan Minister was based on the interchange of official communications between the German and Nicaraguan Governments or upon unofficial information.

Rafael Cuardo, Minister of Finance of Nicaragua, will appear before the committee tomorrow in support of the treaty.

For a long period, the Sheriff's sales and many of the chief real estate auction sales were held at the Willoughby Street office until the erection of the Real Estate Exchange. Shortly after the death of Mr. Kerrigan, in 1902, Mr. Smith succeeded to his business. Mr. Smith took an active part in the formation of the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers and served as Treasurer of the board. ISIDOR WORMSER DEAD.

Retired Banker, Son of Late Simon Wormser, Succumbs in France.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—The death of Isidor Wormser, the New York banker, who had been living for the last two months at Sospel in the Alpes-Maritimes, France, is announced. He died on Tuesday night from an attack of pneumonia. His funeral will take place in New York.

Isidor Wormser was the son of the late Simon Wormser and nephew of the late Isidor Wormser, who was for many years a well-known banker of this city. Word of his death was received by his brother-in-law, William E. Lauer, yesterday. Mr. Wormser retired from the banking business a number of years ago and had made his home in France for the last year, spending most of his time at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mathieu Goudchaux. He was in his forty-sixth year and had been in ill health for a long while.

Mr. Wormser's father, who was in the banking business with the late Isidor Wormser, figured prominently in the suit, in 1903, to have set aside the lease of the Metropolitan Railway system by the Interborough Rapid Transit. The banking firm was powerful in Wall Street at that time, and the Interborough made the claim that the suit was started to depress Interborough stock in anticipation of a coup. The suit was finally dropped. Although he had retired from active business after his father's firm disbanded, Mr. Wormser retained his seat on the Stock Exchange until his death. He was an enthusiastic automobilist and entered in the Vanderbilt Cup race in 1904, driving his own car, but did not finish the race. Besides his daughter, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Angie Wormser, who was with him at his death.

SUMMER RESORT FOR CUBA.

New York Filled with Visitors from the Island Republic.

The dark-skinned men and women who suddenly appeared in such numbers in the Broadway hotel lobbies yesterday were not Mexican refugees. Most of them were Cubans. The open season for Cubans in New York is now on, and the hotel representatives who speak Spanish had a busy time yesterday.

Almost every Broadway hotel and some others employ nowadays a steamship man who can speak Spanish and whose business is to meet incoming steamers from Latin-American ports and conduct as many of their passengers as he may to the hotel with which he is connected. Sometimes this leads to serious competition on the piers for the patronage of a party of travelers, particularly if the party is large or bears indications of wealth.

About the only Mexicans that are seen about New York hotels nowadays are wealthy exiles or agents for the Constitutionalists. The Central American season, which is a comparatively new institution, was on a few weeks ago, when ever so many Costa Ricans and Guatemalans and a few Salvadoreans were coming in, mainly on their way to Europe.

The Ward liner that got in yesterday brought, according to one hotel representative, 154 Cubans, mainly persons of wealth. A few are on their way to Europe, but the majority have come up to spend what is the hottest part of their heated term in the United States. Some will go to the Adirondacks. One large party arrived at the Breslin yesterday bound for Saranac Lake. Some spend the entire Summer in New York.

"The number of Cubans coming up here for the Summer is increasing every year," said a hotel man. "Those who are accustomed to their trade consider them desirable guests, for while, like most Latin-Americans, they demand a rather low rate for their rooms, at the same time they are in the habit of taking most of their meals in the hotel. Perhaps the majority of American visitors to New York take most of their meals outside the hotel where they are staying. Indeed, the number is not small who never take a meal where they have their room.

"It is remarkable how the spread of English in Cuba is being assisted by these visits of families to New York. I have known a family to arrive here at this time of the year with no member of it speaking a word of the local language, and have found everybody very proficient, not only in English, but in slang—particularly of the baseball variety—when they came back to town two months later to sail for home."

TOLSTOY APOSTLE HERE.

Kaminitzski Will Not Add to the Wealth of Our Barbers.

One of the passengers that attracted attention on the Hamburg-American steamer Hamburg when she arrived at her pier yesterday from Genoa was Paul Kaminitzski, a Russian, 28 years old, who came in the steerage to teach people Tolstoy's idea of the simple life. His long, dark locks hang down his back nearly to his waist and a thick, black beard reaches about the same length in front, so that it is difficult to decide whether he is coming or going.

He wore a long, gray robe, tied with a girdle, and his hair was tied back with cherry-colored ribbons. He had about $5,000 with him, and said he would travel to the various Russian colonies in the United States to get converts to the simple life. He told the passengers that his only fare was chicken, eggs, fish, vegetables, and fruit.

The Prophet of the Simple Life will go to Ellis Island today with the other immigrants on the Hamburg, which was detained for several hours outside Sandy Hook in the fog yesterday morning.

GIANTS AND YANKEES SPLIT DOUBLE-HEADERS WITH BOSTON CLUBS--DODGERS LOSE--TURF

DOYLE SEVERELY GASHED BY SPIKES

Mann's Feet Collide with Giants' Captain's Eye and Wrist Sliding Into Base.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 24.—The Giants, who prior to today had won all five of the games played against George Stallings's Boston tailenders, were forced to an even break today before the largest mid-week crowd that has attended a baseball game at the Walpole Street Park this season. The Braves took the first game, 7 to 3, and the Giants won the second, 4 to 0, without being threatened after they broke into the game with three runs in the fifth inning. New York was outhit in the first game, Demaree not having a great deal, but in the second contest Marquard had the home batters "eating out of his hand," and all they got was three singles.

In the opener it was Al Demaree against Dick Rudolph, the McGraw choice being hit safely eleven times and for six extra bases in the six innings he lasted, and the Braves establishing a 6-to-1 lead against him. Fromme, who finished the game, was hit for two doubles and a single. Rudolph pitched a slow but effective game, the Giants' nine hits being scattered through five innings, and all except two of them coming after the home team had the game well in hand.

The first game proved costly for the Giants, as in the fifth inning Larry Doyle was badly spiked by Leslie Mann. Meyers threw out Mann going down to second, and Doyle got the ball low. Mann's spikes struck Doyle under and over the left eye, severely cutting him, and the spikes on Mann's other foot clipped Larry's left wrist and then drove into his ankle. Doyle was out for the rest of the day, and may be incapacitated for a week.

McGraw sent "Rube" Marquard out after the second game, and the rangy sidewheeler won it against the Braves' combination of Perdue, Crutcher, and Cocreham. Boston reached Marquard for only three hits—all singles—and the home team did not see second base except in the fourth inning, when a hit and two bases on balls filled the corners, but with no runs resulting. Perdue started off nicely for Boston, but midway through the game three hits mixed in with a couple of bases on balls proved his undoing. The Giants made eight hits in the second game, but the fifth was the only occasion of hitting in a bunch.

The heavy hitter of the day was Third Baseman Beal of the Braves with a single, a double, and a triple in the first game. Robertson made three singles for New York, boosting his average to 405. Fletcher, Burns and Merkle did some great fielding in the second game, while Maranville in the short field was the live wire and consistently robbed the Gaints of hits all the afternoon.

In the first game the Giants poled the first run in the second inning after two were out, Robertson getting a hit to centre and Stock hitting a high fly back of first base that Gowdy, Gilbert and Evers could not reach, and Robertson sprinted all the way home. Boston got this run back in a hurry and should have had more. Maranville singled to right and romped to third when Stock, after falling down on a great stop of Gowdy's hit, threw past Doyle trying for a force out. Deal's single to center scored Maranville, and the corners were filled when Mann set down a safe bunt toward third. Whaling then clipped one to Stock, and Meyers pivoted in a double play, Merkle later running Tyler out.

In the third the Braves went ahead a run. Demaree passed Gilbert, who was safe when Doyle played Connelly's bounder late to second, Maranville then coming through with a hit. Only nine Giants came to bat in the third, fourth and fifth innings, while in the fifth the Braves landed on Demaree for the game. To start the ball rolling Connelly boosted the ball over the right field fence for a home run, after which a pass to Maranville, a single by Gowdy and a right field triple by Deal followed in short order and put the Stallings crew ahead 5 to 1.

New York got two runs back in the sixth, two being out when Maranville threw over Gowdy's head after taking Fletcher's bounder, and Doyle and Robertson following with hits. In the Braves' sixth ining, Whaling led off with a double header, taking third on Meyers's wild throw and coming over the plate on Evers's single to centre. And in the seventh Connolly's opening single and Maranville's sacrifice paved the way to make another double by Whaling, a run producer.

"Rube" Marquard and "Hub" Perdue both pitched air-tight ball for the first three innings of the second game, Boston getting only one man on base and the Giants two. In the fourth, though, after Fletcher's double had been wasted for the Giants, Evers's single for Boston and passes to Gowdy and Deal filled the bases. But Marquard curved over a couple of strikes on Mann, who finally boosted a fly out to Burns.

It was in the fifth session that the champions got going, scoring three runs and causing Perdue's retirement from the mound. Robertson was "robbed" of a hit by Maranville, but Stock pounded a double to right and immediately counted on Meyers's hit into the same territory. Marquard went out on a foul trying to sacrifice, and then Perdue passed both Bescher and Burns to get a chance at Fletcher, Artie producing a single to right centre for two more runs.

In the sixth Crutcher pitched for the Braves, Robertson getting his third hit of the day, but being doubled up when Stock laced a hot one straight to Maranville on the hit and run play.

In the seventh Mann opened with a hit for the Braves, the inning being the fourth in which "Rube" saw the first hitter reach first base. Burns made a nifty shoestring catch of Whaling's low liner and Merkle rushed to the left field fence to take pinch hitter Martin's foul. Things were quiet for the Giants until the ninth, when Merkle got two bases on a low liner Murray could not reach. Robertson lifted one to Evers, and after Merkle stole third Stock sent a short fly to Mann, whose throw to the plate went wide. The score:

SUPERBAS LOSE TWO GAMES

Ragan's Passes Start Phillies on Their Winning Way.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—Philadelphia won both games of a double-header from Brooklyn here to-day, the scores being 2 to 0 and 6 to 1. Both of Philadelphia's runs in the opening contest were started by passes given by Ragan.

In the second game the home team bunched hits on Brown and Allen and won easily. Mayer and Alexander, who twirled for Philadelphia, kept their opponents' hits scattered. Only one error, a muff of a thrown ball by Luderus, was made during the two games and this resulted in the only tally secured by Brooklyn.

Umpire Orth slipped going through a passage way to Philadelphia's bench before the first game and ruptured the ligaments of his right knee and sprained his elbow. He was taken to a hospital where it was said it will be several weeks before he can again umpire. The score:

Cubs' Batting Streak Beats Reds.

CINCINNATI, June 24.—Chicago indulged in a batting streak in the fifth inning today, making six hits, which coupled with four bases on balls and an error gave them nine runs. The final score was 11 to 5. Yingling, who started for Cincinnati pitched good ball up to the fifth. He then yielded two hits to the first two men up, and walked the third. Schneider, who relieved him, lasted a third of an inning, when he was relieved by Koestner, who was also hit hard. Cheney and Pierce pitched well. Score:

Seaton Threatens to Quit Feds.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 24.—Tom Seaton, pitcher of the Brooklyn Federals, who drew a three-day suspension along with Manager Bradley for arguing with the umpires, said last night that he would quit the Federal League unless his suspension should be lifted by President James A. Gilmore.

"The umpires had absolutely no right to suspend me," said Seaton. "I merely asked them about the way one of the pitchers was standing on the mound, and now I have been notified that I have been suspended for three days. This kind of stuff will not go with me."

WALTER JOHNSON MARRIES.

Miss Roberts, Bride-elect, Saw Pitcher Beat Champions Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Walter Perry Johnson, premier pitcher of the Washington American League Baseball Club, was married here tonight to Miss Hazel Lee Roberts, daughter of Representative E. E. Roberts of Carson City, Nev. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents at 1,498 Monroe Street at 8 o'clock by the Rev. Forrest J. Prettyman, Chaplain of the United States Senate. Representative Roberts gave his daughter away. Only members of the family of Miss Roberts were present.

Just before Johnson went to the mound to win the second game of today's double-header with the Philadelphia team the pitcher blushingly admitted that the ceremony was to be performed tonight. Miss Roberts was a spectator of the game. Around her sat a crowd of 12,000 fans whose first information of the wedding was gleaned from the "newsies" shouting the headline of a late afternoon extra, reading: "Walter Johnson Will Be Married Tonight."

Miss Roberts is the only daughter of Representative Roberts. She came to Washington three years ago when her father was elected to the Sixty-second Congress.

Doak Unmerciful to Home Club.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., June 24.—William Doak, whose home is in Pittsburgh, held the home team to four widely scattered hits today and shut them out, St. Louis scoring three runs and making ten hits off Adams. McQuillan pitched the last inning. Magee of the St. Louis club was put off the field in the third innings for disputing a decision. Singles by Wilson, Butler, and Snyder in the second inning gave the visitors their first run. Wilson opened the fourth inning with a double, and after Butler had sacrificed Wilson was again batted hard by Snyder, whose hit in this instance was a double. Cruiz singled in the fifth inning and Dolan sacrificed. Cruiz then scored from second base on a wild pitch by Adams. Score:

Warrant Out for Cobb's Arrest.

DETROIT, Mich., June 24.—A warrant was issued today for the arrest of Tyrus Cobb, baseball player, on a charge of disturbing the peace. The complaint was made by William L. Carpenter, a meat dealer, with whom Cobb had an altercation Saturday night. Cobb is in Battle Creek today attending the Southern Michigan League flag raising ceremonies, and no effort will be made to serve the warrant until he returns.

HARTZELL'S HOMER GIVES YANKS GAME

Boston Rudely Shuts Them Out in First Half of a Double-Header.

The unfortunate Yankees came home yesterday and divided a double header with the Boston Red Sox at the Polo Grounds. Boston took the first tilt by a score of 3 to 0, and the Yanks won the second with the arithmetic 3 to 2. Manager Frank Chance since he left the family circle has been picking on the umpires, and has been suspended, but he was back encouraging his boys yesterday. The Yanks are doing their best, which is something. Their best, however, doesn't measure up to the best that some other clubs are doing on this circuit.

In the opening game interest naturally centres on the fifth inning, when the Bostons won the game. In this stanza Janvrin led off with a two-bagger to left. Nunamaker, the Yankee catcher, used to play with Janvrin, and thought that perhaps he could catch him napping off second, but he made a wild toss and Janvrin went to third. Larry Gardner, who is back in the game, after a long lay-off, beat out an infield tap and Janvrin scored. Steve Yerkes then goes into the publicity zone by smashing a home run into the left field stand among the two-bit fans, sending Gardner home ahead of him.

After the intermission, having had his share of peanuts and lemonade, one can now settle down to the second contest. The 4,000 folk who assembled at this pastime had an idea—and they were right—that a day during which two games were played couldn't go by without Mr. Chance's team showing something. So in the second contest the Yanks rose in their terror and just beat the Red Sox for all they were worth.

In the second inning, Daley doubled to right, and Tris Speaker endeavored to earn his $18,000 a year by making a circus stab of Sweeney's line drive. Nice work. Williams singled to centre, but Daley, timid as he was, halted at third. Keating flied to Hooper, whose nice toss doubled Williams, but before the play was completed Daley romped home with a run.

Then in the third, Thomas singled to centre and went to third on Foster's single. Hooper forced Foster at second and Thomas scored.

Along in the seventh inning, after Lewis was out, Janvrin beat out an infield hit, and went down on a wild pitch. Steve Yerkes was again on deck with a double to left, scoring Janvrin. In that same inning the Yanks came to life. Hartzell singled through short, and was forced at second by Cook. Daley jammed a fly to Speaker, who lost it in the sun, and Cook got to second. Ed Sweeney then hit to right, scoring Cook.

In the ninth Roy Hartzell, faithful fellow, came to the Yanks' rescue. He banged the first ball pitched into the right field grandstand for a home run, and ended the game.

Scout Irwin has speared a new first baseman. His name is Mullen, and he comes from Lincoln, Neb., the home of the "silver-tongued orator of the Platte," William Jennings Bryan. He will report on July 1, and will show this league something. The scores:

White Sox Spoil Coveleski's Record.

CHICAGO, June 24.—Chicago broke Coveleski's record of runless innings today and defeated Detroit by 5 to 2 in the first game of the series here. Coveleski had pitched thirty-two and two-thirds innings for Detroit without a run being charged against him, but after one out in Chicago's third inning his opponent on the mound, Eddie Cicotte, scored the first run, thereby stopping Coveleski at his thirty-fifth inning. The visiting twirler was hit hard, and this attack, coupled with loose fielding of Purtell, gave the locals the game. Kavanaugh was ordered off the field by Umpire Connolly for arguing a third strike decision. The batting of Blackburn and Breton was a feature. The score:

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Washington today celebrated Walter Johnson's wedding day and the home-coming from a disastrous Western tour by defeating Philadelphia in both games of a double-header, before the largest crowd of the season. The scores were 4 to 3 and 2 to 1. Johnson and Boehling were in top form, the Athletics totaling only seven hits in the two games. The fielding on both sides was fast, Barry and Thompson starring for the visitors, and Shanks and Gandil for the Senators. Baker and Henry were both spiked, but neither was seriously hurt. ONLY TWO FAVORITES GET HOME FIRST

Miss Fielder and Coquette Successful Choices at Aqueduct.

With but two prominent favorites winning—Miss Fielder in the first and Coquette in the last—"form players" had a rather hard day of it at the Aqueduct track yesterday. Yet the crowd seemed to enjoy the sport and "rooted" and screamed and cheered at intervals with sufficient fervor to show that they knew how to pick the long shots successfully. Buxton was again the day's idol, for he rode three winners, repeating his success in the saddle on Tuesday.

Taking up the running at the perfect start made in the selling event at a mile, Stonehenge remained in front to the final, though Buxton had to ride him out to the last ounce to win. Amalfi, favorite for the race, had an attack of the sulks just after the start and fell to the rear until he was fully twenty lengths behind Stonehenge and absolutely last in the field of nine that competed. This demonstration of bad temper sent Wolfe to the bat and he gave Amalfi such a dose of punishment that the horse was glad to get on about his business, which was to try and beat Stonehenge. He tried so effectively under the shaking up he received that when the final quarter pole was reached, well in the stretch, he was up on even terms with Mr. Specks and Mater, then a couple of lengths behind Stonehenge, the fifteen to one shot, that was running away with the race. Hearing danger signals in the pattering hoofs behind him Buxton "sat down" on Stonehenge and gave him such a bit of vigorous riding that he was just able to stall off Amalfi's desperate rush and wabble across the line, winner by not more than a head's length.

It looked for a time as if Hocnir and Undaunted were to have the finish of the Union Selling States at seven furlongs entirely to themselves. They had outrun the rest of the bunch into the stretch, and were pounding away together for the finish, when Pomette Bleu shot up from the rear, got between them and made the finish so interesting that, though Hocnir won by plenty of daylight, Pomette Bleu snatched the place honors from Undaunted by about the length of her graceful neck.

Coquette gave Buxton his opportunity to win just half the races run during the day. He took advantage of it and did not let any of the four young misses who ran against his mount get near him at any part of the race. They were as helpless against her yesterday as was an icecake on any exposed porch against heat prostration. Lady Barbary was the only one that could get within hailing distance. The summaries:

JOHNSON WOULD BET $5,000

Negro Will Back Himself to Defeat Moran on Saturday.

PARIS, June 24.—Jack Johnson and Frank Moran, the American heavyweights who are to fight for the championship here on Saturday, appear to be equally confident of victory as their training draws to a close. Johnson is so satisfied he will win that he has $5,000 to place on his chances, but so far has found no taker. Moran, at his training quarters at Meriel-Sur-Oise, a few miles outside Paris, asserted today that he was suro he would defeat Johnson. So far there has been little betting on the result.

Both men went through the customary exercises today, covering several miles on the road and engaging in bouts with their training partners. Moran had bouts with Tom Kennedy and Willie Lewis in addition to bag punching. Moran has received few visitors, while Johnson, who has been doing a large part of his training in public, is an object of interest to considerable crowds daily.

Johnson will weigh about 210 pounds when he enters the ring. This means that he will be about ten pounds heavier than at the time of his fight against "Jim" Jeffries at Reno on July 4, 1910.

Since Johnson began training he has lost 25 or 30 pounds in weight. He will continue his hard work until Friday.

OARSMEN READY FOR REGATTA TOMORROW

COLLEGE CREWS ALL READY FOR RACES

Cornell Again Holds Top Place in Betting—Big Demand for Car Tickets.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 24.—The last of the finishing touches was added to the crews today, and they are now fit and heady for the grueling contests which will hold the attention of the college world Friday afternoon. The coaches all assert that their oarsmen are in excellent condition, and there is not a sign of staleness in any of the crews.

The humid heat was feared by the coaches and the work was therefore of an even lighter nature than had at first been planned, although none of the coaches had any idea of strenuous rowing for their crews. The humidity lifted a little in the afternoon and the paddles were lengthened out a bit, but the rowing was all in the nature of conditioning rows, just enough to keep the sweep swingers up to the high notch of training to which they have attained in their months of preparation for the regatta.

The University of Washington crew was the only eight not out in the morning. The other eights were sent out for rows, which averaged about two miles. Syracuse tried a few racing starts at the finish mark, but the other crews attempted little more than easy rowing.

There were a host of visitors at the Cornell quarters today, and this evening Coach Courtney took out Si Weed, coach of the 1910 Cornell 'Varsity, with him to follow the work of the three crews. The veteran crew went up to the head of the course and came down rowing easily to the float. The junior eight rowed down from the two-mile mark at a higher clip than the freshmen just in front of them, but there was no time work.

Coach Rice took the Columbia crews out for a two-mile row for the benefit of several visitors, among them Eugene Giannini, the Yale assistant rowing coach, and C. Halsted Mapes, a Columbia alumnus. Henry Lang of Columbia rode with Coach Rice in the coaching launch. The others followed in another boat. The crews went out for a mile paddle and made no attempt to show what was in them.

Only once did they raise the stroke, and then rowed ten at 36 for the benefit of the visitors. Giannini expressed his appreciation of the splendid form in which the Blue and White is rowing. Mapes had not seen the crews rowing for some weeks and he noted a marked improvement in their practice.

Late this evening some early betting took place among the groups gathering in the hotel lobbies for the regatta, and there is indication of more spirited speculating on the results of the races this year than has been apparent in the past few years.

Cornell rules the favorite in all three races. One of the first bets of the day was $30 to $100 that Cornell would win all the races. Another bet was laid between two men, one of whom Cornell thinks fit for an insane asylum and the other for jail. The one whom Cornell followers brand as out of his mind bet $20 to $100 that the Ithacans would take all three races with open water showing in each of the three races. This bet by no means reflects the feeling of the majority of the Cornell followers, for they expect three very close races.

Even money was bet on Cornell against the field. Not much Columbia money was in evidence, but what was bet was laid at 3 to 1 against the field. Syracuse was quoted at 5 to 2 and Pennsylvania and Washington at 10 to 1 against the field.

Against individual crews, Washington followers are covering Pennsylvania money at 10 to 8, and Washington and Columbia are at evens. Syracuse and Columbia are also pretty well at evens, with both crews seeking odds, but not getting them.

Cornell is the favorite in the freshman race, with their money going at even against the field. Syracuse comes next, quoted at 3 to 1 against the field, Wisconsin 8 to 1, and Columbia and Pennsylvania 10 to 1.

In the junior race Cornell is an even money favorite as in the other two events. Columbia seems to take second place in the odds, at 4 to 1, Syracuse 6 to 1, and Pennsylvania 10 to 1 against the field.

The inhabitants of Poughkeepsie have the notion that Cornell cannot lose and the only betting in which they will indulge is blind pools.

The keen interest which is being taken in the regatta is reflected in the record number of observation train tickets which have been sold. The train pulled in today and all of the good seats have gone long ago. The Cornell manager says that the seats have sold more rapidly this year than ever before, and on the first day that he received his allottment of tickets, he sold 1,000. The railroad had to put on more cars to the train as a result.

CHICAGO, June 24.—Martin E. Delaney, Athletic Director of the Chicago Athletic Association, wants to be the trainer of the American Olympic team, which will compete in Berlin in 1916 if plans of Middle Western patrons of amateur sport are successful. Delaney was assistant trainer to Mike Murphy in 1912, and is urged as his successor by men who point to Delaney's successful career of twenty-one years, during which he has developed many stars.

AMERICAN CREW ON THAMES

Union Boat Club Oarsmen Arrive in England in Good Condition.

HENLEY, England, June 24.—The crew of the Union Boat Club of Boston, which is to compete in the Henley regatta, arrived here shortly before 6 o'clock this evening from Liverpool, where they landed today. The men were all in good condition. The crew went out on the water for a brief spin, paddling down stream. They rowed a neat, clean stroke and made a very favorable impression on the numerous college oarsmen who watched them.

The Americans will commence serious practice tomorrow, taking two practice spins daily. They have secured comfortable quarters at Sonning, three miles distant and will motor to Henley daily for their work. The crew will be coached by Rudolph C. Lehmann, the well-known oarsman and rowing expert, if his services can be secured. W. Haines, who advised the crew in its practice at Boston, is optimistic over its chances here.

ATHLETIC JURY NAMED.

James E. Sullivan to Help Decide Knotty Problems at Olympic Games.

RHEIMS, France, June 24.—J. G. Edstrom, Sweden; Sciilard Stankovits, Hungary; Frantz Reichel, France; James E. Sullivan, United States, and Mr. Fisher, England, were today named as an international jury for the Olympic games to be held at Berlin in 1916. The International Olympic Committee made these appointments at a meeting held on the train which carried them to Rheims to attend a series of fêtes given in their honor by athletes here.

The committee also decided that the Olympic games of 1920 should be held at Budapest.

A feature of the celebration here was a reproduction of the ancient Greek games by torchlight, in which many hundreds of athletes and others took part. It was pronounced one of the most remarkable pageants ever seen.

James E. Sullivan, head of the American delegates, has received the entries of fifty additional Hungarian athletes for the Panama-Pacific games at San Francisco.

SHAMROCK A SLOOP AGAIN.

Challenger Will Have a Bigger Single Head Sail Than Before.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, June 24.—Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV., challenger for the America's Cup, is being sloop rigged again, but retains the longer bowsprit and will have a bigger single head sail than before. Whether this change will be permanent depends upon the result of further tests of the challenger with the older Shamrock.

Before the rerigging was begun Shamrock IV. had another trial with Shamrock III. in a strong wind and a lively sea. The race, however, was abandoned after twelve miles had been covered, in order to avoid risks of accident to the challenger's gear. Shamrock IV. was leading at the time and her gear had stood the severe test well.

Emperor Gives Cup for Yacht Racing

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 24.—The announcement that the Emperor of Germany will give a cup to the winner of the sonderklasse yacht race at the Panama-Pacific Exposition was contained in a telegram received today by the German Consul, Franz Bopp, from the German Ambassador in Washington. This makes the third cup from the head of a great nation, as President Wilson has offered a cup for the winner of the twelve-meter race and King George V. of England has put up a cup for the Class N race under universal rules.

TWO HARD TENNIS MATCHES FOR PELL

West Side Player Defeats Watson and Bull in Middle States Championship.

With the start of the women's singles the three tennis championships of the Middle States were well advanced yesterday on the courts of the South Orange Lawn Tennis Club at Mountain, N. J. Theodore R. Pell easily carried off the honors of the day. He defeated C. F. Watson, Jr. and Charles M. Bull, Jr., in consecutive rounds. His general work was impressive, although he developed a disposition to drive the ball into the net, especially in his match with the Crescent Athletic Club representative. It was expected that Watson would put up a hard contest, but Pell won in straight sets and completely outplayed his opponent. The winner did not tarry, and in spite of the hot weather, took on Bull in the fourth round. The Bay Ridge player was in splendid shape and made a surprising start, capturing the first set 8—6. Bull is usually a slow beginner and his aggressiveness rather surprised Pell. The latter gradually overcame his tendency to drive the ball into the net and improved his position by making the second set even. Bull carried the third set to 3—3, when he fell away and Pell won 6—3.

Joseph J. Armstrong of the University of Minnesota gave Karl H. Behr, the former Yale Captain, a stiff argument, carrying the match to three hard sets. The Western player showed some sound tennis and kept his opponent from passing him. It was not until Behr lost the first set that he was able to gauge his opponent's play, but once he broke through Armstrong's defense he quickly recovered his lost ground and by well-executed placement shots, qualified with T. R. Pell for the semi-final round.

Several interesting matches were decided in the women's singles championship. Mrs. Marshall McLean defeated Mrs. D. C. Mills in the first round, the latter defaulting in the second set. Mrs. McLean continued her good court work in the next round by winning from Miss Edith Condit in straight sets. The big upset of the first round was the victory of Mrs. Louise H. Raymond over Mrs. C. N. Beard. The latter, who was formerly New Jersey champion, captured the first set after deuce and vantage had been called twice, but the effort proved too much for her, as Mrs. Raymond rallied in the second and third sets and won the match. Mrs. Polly Sheldon, the Montclair Athletic Club champion, easily defeated Miss Gladys Bladgen after the latter had made a close fight in the first set. Miss Eleanor Roche of Boston, sister of the title holder, won the first round from Miss Dorothy Enger, but fell a victim to Mrs. Robert Le Roy's clever racquet work in the second round. The summary:

Men's Singles, Middle States Championship.—Second Round—H. N. Balch defeated Stanley E. Manchee, 4—6, 6—3, 6—0; Thomas F. Cooke defeated David K. Mackay, 6—4, 6—1; James S. Cushman defeated Theodore C. Corwin, 6—2, 6—1; Walter Merrill Hall defeated Felix Doubleday by default.

Third Round—Theodore R. Pell defeated C. F. Watson, Jr., 6—3, 6—3; R. S. Stoddart defeated E. F. Thomas, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3; Karl H. Behr defeated J. P. Waldron, 6—0, 6—4; Holcomb Ward defeated H. N. Balch, 6—0, 6—0; Walter Merrill Hall defeated Thomas F. Cooke, 6—0, 6—3; Benjamin M. Phillips defeated J. S. Cushman, 6—3, 7—5.

NEW BICYCLE RECORD.

Leon Didier Pedals 30 Miles Behind Motor Pace in 36:29 1-5.

The old record for thirty miles was broken by more than two minutes by Leon Didier, the French champion, in the thirty-mile motor-paced bicycle race at the Brighton Beach Motordrome last night. This race was a fine contest between Didier and Bobby Walthour, who led up to the fifteenth mile. At the middle distance mark Didier caught and passed Walthour. He managed to retain the lead for the remainder of the race, although Walthour made several desperate attempts to overtake him. The Frenchman kept pedaling away like a machine behind his motor, and had stretched his lead to nearly a quarter of a lap at the finish. All previous records for the five, ten, fifteen, twenty and twenty-five-mile marks for this race were also broken.

The times were as follows: Fifth mile, 6:17; tenth mile, 12:16; fifteenth mile, 18:08; twentieth mile, 24:15 1-5; twenty-fifth mile, 30:29 1-5; thirtieth mile, finish, 36:29 1-5. The old motor-paced record for thirty miles, held by Bobby Walthour, was 38:29 1-5.

The ten-mile motor cycle race, in which the interest was almost equal to that shown in the motor-paced events, was won by George Sperl of Brooklyn after a close race with Martin Kessler. The summary:

One-Mile Open, Amateur.—Won by Jerry Menzrato, Empire City Wheelmen; Adam Byerman, Mohawk A. C., second; Alfred O. Lake, N. Y. A. C., third. Time—2:27 3-5.

One-Mile Consolation.—Won by A. Desmond, Newark; J. Pratt, Empire City Wheelmen, second; Nat Gutoff, Atlas B. C., third. Time—2:01.

Jackie Clarke Defeats Rutt.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., June 24.—A. Jackie Clarke, the Australian cyclist, created a surprise at the Newark Velodrome tonight, when in straight heats of a match race at one mile he defeated Walter Rutt, the world's champion. Clarke's margin of victory in the first heat was large, but in the deciding duel it was a struggle for the last two laps. After Rutt had taken the lead away from Clarke, the latter outsprinted the title holder to the first turn, and maintained his advantage. The last eighth in the second heat was ridden in 12 seconds by the winner.

Harry Kaiser, the Bronx youth, and Willie Hanley of San Francisco won the amateur team match race at two-thirds of a mile from Donald McDougall, the amateur champion, and his partner, Gus Wohlrab of Jersey City, in straight heats.

George Cameron, the New York professional, made good use of his forty-five-yard handicap in the final of the two-third-mile handicap. Frank L. Kramer, riding from scratch, made a fine effort to overtake Cameron, but could not do better than capture second place after a splendid chase.

Walter Schlee, racing from the twenty-yard line, won the half-mile handicap among the amateurs, the scratch men, Edward Madden and Tommy Smith, doing well to finish third and fourth, respectively.

Kramer in Title Race Again.

The five-mile national championship bicycle race for the professional sprinters will be run at the Brighton Beach Motordrome Saturday night and may prove the real test for Frank L. Kramer, who is striving to win the American title for the fourteenth time. Kramer's wonderful sprint makes him the favorite in the short distance races, but even his friends are wondering whether he can defeat Walter Rutt, world's champion; Alfred Goullet, Jackie Clarke, Alfred Grenda, and the other younger and stronger riders in a long, hard-run race. It will be Kramer's first effort this season over the five-mile route, and the result will indicate his chances for winning the championship another year. The professionals also will compete in a one-mile handicap and a two-mile invitation handicap. A field of about forty riders is entered for the contests. The amateurs will have a big card of races, and the motorcycle speed merchants will clash in three or four events.

Scoring the deciding goal with little more than two minutes to play in the sixth and final period at Van Cortlandt Park yesterday afternoon, the Red polo team of Squadron A defeated the White combination by 6 points to 5. J. Metcalf shot the winning goal for the Reds shortly after Robert Hunt had evened the count with a drive from midfield. P. Strong and W. The third chukker was scoreless, while in the fourth Hunt alone scored. In the fifth Strong, Hunt, and Bolton tallied, while in the closing period Metcalf and Hunt gave the Reds their winning margin. FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Under Pressure—Dividend Cuts and Rate Predictions Cause Decline.

Stocks were under much pressure yesterday, and remained weak throughout the session. The trading was the most active in many weeks, and the net loss the most pronounced movement recorded during a considerable period. There were declines of a point or more in many issues, and declines in excess of two points in such leading stocks as St. Paul, New York Central, and Union Pacific. A good deal of activity on the part of bearishly inclined traders helped to account for the break, but outside liquidation also contributed to it. These two forces making for reaction were not offset by the commission house buying in behalf of those who were attracted by the break in prices. In varying degree the intermountain decision; the prediction of a disappointing ruling by the Commerce Commission in the pending rate case, and the adverse news of the day were held responsible for the liquidation and the pressure from traders to which the market was subjected.

It has for some time been thought that the rate decision is not likely under existing conditions to exert as much immediate favorable influence upon business as was expected of it some months ago. There is such a thing, however, as belittling too much the favorable significance of such relief as may be granted to the railways, and all predictions agree that some increases in rates will be allowed. So far as the intermountain decision is concerned the Stock Exchange has chosen to put a more adverse interpretation upon it than have the representatives of the railways themselves. This perhaps is sufficient evidence that the possible adverse effect of the decision is being exaggerated.

The news of the day included the passing of the United States Cast Iron Pipe preferred dividend, and the omission of the dividend on Pan Handle common and a reduction in that road's preferred dividend. These dividend changes naturally enough served to emphasize the unfavorable forecasts which were current concerning the coming freight rate decision. Both of these matters were instrumental in causing the sharp decline in New York Central and a smaller loss in Pennsylvania, while the Pan Handle dividend action found reflection in a break of seven points in that road's common stock. The dissolution of the syndicate which underwrote the Western Union stock taken over from the American Telephone & Telegraph Company was another of the day's influences making for decline. Over 50 per cent. of the stock underwritten was turned over to the members of the syndicate. These and other matters less on the surface combined to make the Stock Exchange session the poorest experienced in a long time.

The day's news from the iron trade was disappointing in that it failed to bear out the more hopeful views which came to be entertained in the steel trade early in the month. Business, however, has been larger in June than in May, and the reduction in unfilled orders is believed to have been so small that even a moderate increase in incoming orders during the balance of the month would be sufficient to prevent any further inroad upon unfilled orders being shown for June. Meanwhile The Iron Age records that prices have been even less satisfactory than volume, owing to concessions by sellers. The steel trade, moreover, seems less inclined now than it was until recently to think of the rate decision as a turning point in the trade.

Demand sterling receded yesterday, although it was still so high that further engagements of gold were thought likely for shipment by Saturday's or next Tuesday's steamer. Cable transfers, however, were still in active demand. The margin between cable and demand broadened to the equivalent of a 7 per cent. money rate which suggested that remittances were still being called for in connection with funds which have to be provided on the other side before July 1. There was a good deal of talk of a possible reduction in the discount rate of the Bank of France from 3½ per cent., where it now stands. It seemed though an open question whether this action was likely to be taken this week. It was argued that to hold the rate up would continue to attract money to Paris, and that this might be desired until arrangements had been completed for the forthcoming French national loan.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Kuhn, Loeb Bank Directorships.

In connection with the intended resignation of Paul M. Warburg from the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. upon confirmation by the Senate of his appointment to a place on the Federal Reserve Board it was learned yesterday that with Mr. Warburg on the board other members of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. will give up their places on national bank directorates. Mr. Warburg, as has been announced, resigned from the Bank of Commerce some time ago. Mortimer L. Schiff, who was a Director of the Fourth National Bank, now merged with the Mechanics' and Metals, has declined a place tendered to him on that company's board. Jacob H. Schiff is a Director of the National City Bank.

⁂

Municipal and Government Bonds.

The market for Government bonds has not been active for many months, but brokers making a specialty of them say that the past ten days have been the dullest of all. In some brokerage houses, whose business in these securities in normal times brings in a tidy income, an average of four or five bonds a day have been dealt in, and it is not unusual for trading to contract until only a few "pieces" in denominations of $100 or $200 each are handled. The demand for municipal issues, on the other hand, is reported by the bond men to be improving. Investors are paying less attention than they did six months ago to the amount of income to be derived from a purchase, and are looking more particularly at the quality of the bonds. Occasionally a 4 per cent. issue put out by a city whose credit stands on the highest plane is sold at a price to net the seller 100 cents on the dollar, and the investor receives about 3.95 per cent. on his money.

⁂

Bonds That Are Not Bonds.

The proposed reorganization of the Rock Island companies, in the course of which No. 2 and No. 3, or the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad and the Rock Island Company are to be wiped out of existence, takes no account of the odd $7,500,000 of the railroad company's 5 per cent. bonds. These bonds are a relic of the Rock Island's unhappy marriage with the St. Louis & San Francisco, and are popularly considered to represent about half the Rock Island Company's total loss on the Frisco. At any rate, when the Hawley-Yoakum-Campbell group took its road back after friction had developed with the Rock Island members of the family there was not enough money realized from the sale of the stock to pay off the bonds put out when the property was acquired. To make up the deficiency the railway accommodatingly bought $7,500,000 of bonds from the railroad. There is an offsetting claim of $1,500,000 held by the railroad against the railway, and aside from the cancellation of this claim it is not proposed to pay anything on account of the bonds.

⁂

Franklin's, Incorporated.

For months past a terrific campaign has been carried on by a Wall Street promoter to place shares of Franklin's, Incorporated, a candy manufacturing concern, in the hands of the public at $10 a share. Investors so unfortunate as to be on his lists have been deluged with letters and circulars. Most of his printed matter has consisted of attacks on other brokers who quoted Franklin's at $9 a share. The promoter charged that these self-styled brokers were in a conspiracy to hurt Franklin's, and that they could not deliver real stock at a cent less than $10 a share. Yesterday at Muller's weekly auction of securitise a quotation was established on Franklin's that cannot be questioned. A block of 164 shares sold at $1.10 a share.

⁂

Bonds for Cost of Engraving.

A reminder of another well-known promoter's activities was furnished by yesterday's sale of securities at auction when some optimist on the Southwest paid $400 in cash for $30,000 in par value of Kansas City, Mexico & Orient first mortgage 4 per cent. bonds.

⁂

Copper Buyers Hold Back.

In the copper trade producers of the refined metal have reason to wonder how long will be the road of depression before a turning is found. Lower quotations fail to bring into sight better buying than was evident a week ago. At 13¾ cents for electrolytic, copper appears to be exceedingly cheap as compared with the prices of a year ago, but consumers do not think so. Outside of purchases of small lots for early delivery there is little doing in the market, according to trade reports, and refiners are waiting as eagerly as the steel makers for the result of the freight rate decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

⁂

Gloom Over the Day's Market.

In the early part of yesterday's session of the stock market it was possible to pick out a few stocks and speak of their especial weakness in contrast with the fairly good tone of the list as a whole. This condition did not last long, and shortly after noon it was far more difficult to select a stock on the quotation board that was making a satisfactory account of itself than it had been to find a weak member earlier in the day. The Street was blue. The air was filled with rumors of pending developments of an unfavorable character, and the fact that most of them had no discernible roots in the ground detracted nothing from their influence in depressing sentiment.

STEEL PRICES GOING DOWN.

June Business Unsatisfactory and Sellers Making Concessions.

The steel trade has not derived all the satisfaction from June buying that it expected to in May. The Iron Age says:

> June buying of steel products, though considerably increased over the poor business in May, has not met the expectations of the more hopeful in the trade. Prices have been even less satisfactory than volume, greater concessions by sellers coming in the past week than in those preceding.
>
> The additions to order books have been chiefly for third-quarter delivery, though in implement bars, which have contributed an important part of the new tonnage, deliveries extend through the year.
>
> There is no indication in the business of the month that the country's consumption of iron and steel is increasing. In the Chicago district some mills have taken contracts at the new low prices of June, with the proviso that specifications be given for early shipment of a portion of the order.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Tone in London a Shade Steadier—Prices of Americans Close Easy After Advances.

LONDON, June 24.—The general settlement on the Stock Exchange is progressing smoothly.

New business was quiet today, with the tone a shade steadier, especially in the Paris favorites, which improved on Paris buying, accompanied by rumors of an early reduction in the French bank rate in preparation for the new Government loan. Brazilian bonds were weak.

American securities opened steady and prices advanced on light covering during the forenoon. The list was not supported in the afternoon, and prices slowly sagged off and closed easy.

Money and discount rates were quiet.

PARIS, June 24.—Prices opened heavy, but closed steady on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 84 francs 10 centimes for the account.

BERLIN, June 24.—Trading was quiet and prices were steady on the Boerse today.

Bank of France's Metal Holdings.

PARIS, June 24.—The weekly statement of the Bank of France when issued tomorrow will show an increase of 100,385,000 francs in gold holdings and a decrease of 3,257,000 francs in silver.

NORTHERN CENTRAL LEASE.

Pennsylvania to Execute It as Soon as State Approval Is Given.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—President Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company announced today that the Directors had decided to execute the lease of the Northern Central Railroad as soon as final approval of the terms of the lease and the proposed 40 per cent. stock dividend had received final approval from the Public Service Commission of this State.

The terms which were offered by the Pennsylvania and accepted by an overwhelming majority of the stockholders of the Northern Central, call for a lease of 999 years from Jan. 1, 1911. The stock of the Northern Central is to be increased by 40 per cent. and the additional stock is to be distributed as a dividend, pro rata to the present stockholders. The Pennsylvania is to guarantee 8 per cent. dividends on the increased stock during the life of the lease, and in addition will pay a special dividend of 10 per cent., or $5 for each share of $50 par value, at the time of execution of the lease.

The proposed stock dividend will amount to $7,737,000, the present stock capitalization being $19,342,500.

COURT REJECTS POPE SALE.

Objects to Receivers Accepting Notes Totaling $1,400,000 as Speculative.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 24.—In the Superior Court today Judge William L. Bennett declined to authorize the sale of the Pope Manufacturing Company, now in the hands of a receiver for $1,800,000. The plan submitted to the Court provided for $400,000 in cash and the balance in five-year notes. Judge Bennett said Connecticut courts never had allowed its receivers to indulge in financial speculation. Immediately after Judge Bennett's decision those interested held a conference looking toward a basis for another offer.

George R. Nutter of Boston, representing the syndicate which made the offer, told the Court it was the desire to pay enough for the Pope property to reimburse the merchandise creditors in full and meet the expenses of the receivership. He said the syndicate, composed of Daniel Gurnett and James T. Putnam of Boston, and Carl Bonney of Worcester, contemplated reorganization of the company with a capital of $2,800,000.

$1,043,760,000 COTTON CROP

Largest Ever Grown Except That of 1911, Final Census Figures Show.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Final figures on the 1913 cotton crop, announced today by the Census Bureau, place it as the largest the United States has ever grown, with the exception of that of 1911. At the same time, the estimate of the total value of the crop shows it was the most valuable ever produced, it being worth $1,043,760,000.

The quantity of cotton ginned from the 1913 crop, counting round as half bales and excluding linters, was 13,982,811 running bales, or 14,156,486 bales of 500 pounds gross weight. Cottonseed produced was 6,305,000 tons, of which 4,759,508 tons were crushed. The value of the cotton is estimated at $887,160,000, and of the seed $156,600,000.

The 1914 area shows a large increase, variously estimated at from 12,000 to 15,000 acres.

PASS PAN HANDLE DIVIDEND.

No Payment on Common Stock and Preferred Reduced One-Half.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—The Directors of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway, the Pan Handle system, a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad, today passed the dividend on the common stock, and reduced the dividend on the preferred stock to one-half of 1 per cent. for the quarter.

The Pennsylvania Company Directors—the lines west of Pittsburgh—declared the usual semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent. The Pennsylvania Railroad Directors declared the usual quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent.

The dividend rate on the Pan Handle preferred stock was reduced from 5 to 4 per cent. three months ago, and on the common stock from 5 to 3 per cent. per annum in the quarterly distributions then made. In anticipation of today's action there had been a sharp decline in the price of the company's shares. The Pan Handle Directors decided to consider dividends hereafter semi-annually, in June and December, instead of quarterly.

In announcing its dividend action the Pan Handle board issued a statement saying:

"The company in recent years has declared 5 per cent. dividends per annum on both classes of stock, including 1913, when that company and other lines in the same territory suffered severely from the disastrous floods. In the latter year the company failed to earn the dividends paid to the extent of $2,600,000, but the Directors believed it a wise policy to continue the dividends at the regular rate, and utilized a large part of the surplus from previous years for that purpose. In March, 1914, however, the Directors deemed it prudent, in view of the large decrease in gross and net earnings, to reduce the dividends, and declared a dividend of 1 per cent. on the preferred stock, and three-fourths of 1 per cent. on the common stock.

"Since that time conditions have not improved, there having been a continued and increasing decline in gross earnings, and the Directors decided that the reduced earnings of the company did not justify the declaration of any dividend on the common stock, and declared a dividend on the preferred stock of one-half of 1 per cent."

WANTS HIGHER BOND LIMIT.

New York Railways Co. Calls Public Service Board Into Court.

The New York Railways Company has taken to the Supreme Court its dispute with the Public Service Commission concerning the amount of bonds which it should be permitted to issue in consideration of the fact that it has recently purchased 175 new street cars of the stepless type. The company wants to issue $1,050,000 bonds, but the commission is willing to authorize only $640,000. A writ of certiorari signed by Justice Greenbaum and returnable in twenty days from June 16 was served yesterday on the commission, requiring it to produce the record in the case for review.

The dispute turns on the proportion of the cost of the new cars, which the Interborough should be permitted to capitalize. The company wants to capitalize the entire cost, which at $6,000 each for 175 cars amounts to $1,050,000. The commission, however, has taken the stand that as an equal number of old cars, each of which cost the old Metropolitan originally about $3,200, have been retired, the cost of these should be deducted from the amount of bonds which the New York Railways Company may now issue. This would permit the street railway company to raise only $499,200 for its new cars, and as the bonds have to be sold at a heavy discount the actual amount of new bonds the commission is prepared to authorize is $640,000.

The New York Railways Company, however, is protesting against being forced to write off the entire first cost of the old cars it has discarded. When it took them over from the old Metropolitan, it says, it only paid $700 apiece for them, and their reasonable value today is only $300. It will not agree to pay the cost of their entire depreciation from the time when they were purchased by the old Metropolitan, as they were worth only $700 apiece when they came into its possession.

The company contends that the action of the commission in this matter is unauthorized, illegal, and in violation of its rights, and as the commission refused on a rehearing to modify its order it is taking an appeal to the courts.

IRON PIPE DIVIDEND PASSED.

Reduced Business, Low Prices and Competition Stated as Reasons.

Directors of the United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company met yesterday and passed the dividend on the preferred stock, which is usually declared at this season. Last year 4 per cent. was voted and paid in quarterly installments.

The decision to make no return to shareholders was not unexpected, as the publication of the annual report earlier in the day showed that the fiscal period ended with May 31 had been exceedingly poor in point of income. The statement showed gross earnings of $191,681, a decline from the previous year of $614,340. After making allowances for bond interest and reserve, a deficit of $59,868 stood against a balance of $684,000 for 1912-13.

"The company's business has been unremunerative," said President Lemoine to the shareholders, "because of low prices and severe competition for a business which in total volume amounted to less than half that needed for the available capacity of all makers. While low prices have been known before, the present unsatisfactory price markets have continued over a longer period, and business managers are in a more or less helpless condition regarding the use of any method for maintaining or advancing the price of their product. That part of the body politic known as the business world can hardly be said to be seized with psycho-neurosis. Rather, the country seems to be involved in a cycle of unrest, distrust and suspicion; an utter lack of confidence, hard to comprehend, but which, nevertheless, exists.

"This condition is not a mental illusion. It is caused by hard facts—which suggest a new bondage rather than a new freedom. Until 'uncertainty' and 'lack of confidence' evaporate, a return to normal conditions is unlikely."

The balance sheet showed assets amounting to $30,914,098. Total surplus aggregated $177,418, as compared with $737,285 in the report for the preceding year.

W. U. Stock Syndicate Dissolved.

The banking syndicate which underwrote the $30,000,000 Western Union stock, sold out of the treasury of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in April, was dissolved yesterday by limitation. It was said in behalf of the syndicate members that of the entire block 47.2 per cent. was subscribed for by holders of Western Union shares. Of the remaining 52.8 per cent., 50 per cent. was distributed among the members a month ago, and the 2.8 per cent. still held by the managers of the syndicate was taken up by other bankers yesterday.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Harris, Forbes & Co. have bought of the City of Hartford, Conn., $500,000 in 4 per cent. bonds at par, which are offered to investors on a basis to net 3.95 per cent. The purchase involved part of an issue of $2,000,000.

J. P. Morgan & Co. announced yesterday that they were prepared to deliver definitive bonds in exchange for their trust receipts for the New York Central & Hudson River 4½ per cent. refunding and improvement mortgage bonds, Series A.

James R. Magoffin of 20 Broad Street has issued a booklet describing a public utility security yielding 6¼ per cent.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Business on the Consolidated Stock Exchange increased heavily on the decline in prices. From the opening at 9:30 o'clock the trend was toward a lower level, although the overnight price changes generally represented merely small fractional declines. The downward movement gathered impetus as the day progressed, with the closing quotations at or near the lowest. There were many indications of the closing out of stocks by tired holders disappointed over the recent course of the market. The latest predictions and rumors as to the pending rate decision were not of an encouraging character. There were transactions in Denver & Rio Grande common, Interborough common, National Lead, and Union Bag and Paper, the only sales of those stocks in Wall Street all day.

To Holders of 4% Refunding Mortgage Gold Bonds Due July 1, 1951:

The Receivers have now operated the property for over a year and no reorganization plan has as yet been agreed upon. They inform us that the earnings have been largely in excess of the amount needed to pay interest on the 4% Refunding Bonds and all charges prior thereto, including rentals on leased property, but that they have been applied to the physical rehabilitation of the property, the payment of car trusts and to other capital purposes. The Court objecting to the issue of further Receivers' certificates has denied the application to pay the July 1 interest, and the junior interests in the property, to whom has been offered the opportunity to pay such interest, have failed to provide the necessary money.

The undersigned Committee, which was formed early in June, 1913, and which has since kept in close touch with the Receivership and its affairs, has for over a year deemed it unnecessary to call for a deposit of bonds, but it is now of the opinion that the rights and interests of the bondholders can only be adequately safeguarded by an immediate deposit thereof. The period of grace in the Deed of Trust securing the Refunding Bonds is three months, after which the principal of the bonds may be declared due under the terms of the Trust.

Bonds may be deposited with the Depositaries named in the Deposit Agreement, viz., CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, 54 Wall Street, in the City of New York; MISSISSIPPI VALLEY TRUST COMPANY, in St. Louis, Missouri; BERLINER HANDELS-GESELLSCHAFT, in Berlin, Germany; and ASSOCIATIE CASSA, in Amsterdam, Holland. Bonds in coupon form must be accompanied by the coupon maturing July 1, 1914. Bonds in registered form and registered coupon bonds must be accompanied by transfer executed by the registered owner or his attorney duly authorized. Certificates of Deposit will be issued by the Depositaries for the bonds respectively deposited with them. In due course, application will be made for listing the certificates issued in New York on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Committee, in accordance with the provisions in that respect contained in the Deposit Agreement, has arranged to purchase the coupons and claims for registered bond interest due July 1, 1914, appertaining to the deposited Refunding Bonds, and Central Trust Company of New York, and Mississippi Valley Trust Company, Berliner Handels-Gesellschaft, Berlin, and Associatie Cassa, Amsterdam, on behalf of said Trust Company, will accordingly be prepared to pay depositors for their coupons upon depositors filing properly executed certificates in the form required by the United States Income Tax Law and the regulations of the Internal Revenue Department.

Copies of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained from the Depositaries, or from the members or Secretary of the Committee. For further information application may be made to the Chairman or Secretary of the Committee.

The Receivers are unanimously of the opinion that the Refunding Bonds are amply secured, and in order that this security may remain unimpaired the Committee urges prompt action on the part of the bondholders. This Committee will neither adopt nor approve any plan of reorganization that, as a condition of participation therein, requires the expenses of the Committee to be paid by an assessment upon the Refunding Bonds.

TRADE COMMISSION URGED ON WILSON

President of Commission Merchants' League Wants Legislation Halted.

"STAGNATION IN TRADE"

Business Manager French Says: "There Is No Falling Off in Business Up to This Point."

John C. Scales, President of the National League of Commission Merchants, has written from Chicago a letter to President Wilson asking that no further action be taken in the matter of legislation concerning improper trusts and trade combinations until after a Trade Commission has been appointed and has had "ample time to ascertain what legislation in amendment of or supplemental to the Sherman act (if any) is required to properly regulate or suppress such trusts or combinations as may be in restraint of trade or inimical to the general welfare."

The league which Mr. Scales represents has branches all over the country. On May 29 last it voted in the affirmative upon a referendum taken by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States upon the question of the creation of an Interstate Trade Commission. Accompanying this vote was an expression of opinion that any further agitation in the matter of anti-trust legislation ought to cease until the commission had reported. The letter sent by Mr. Scales to President Wilson said:

"That there is a general and unwonted stagnation in trade cannot be gainsaid. While by many this stagnation is attributed to the uncertainty as to the final effect of the present tariff, quite as large a number attribute the prevailing dullness to the fear that business in general is to be harassed and hampered by such a multiplicity of drastic laws as to result in widespread depression and disaster."

Mr. Scales also says that, while the members of his organization are in full accord with all legislation looking to the welfare of the country and tending to place business upon the highest plane of equity and probity, they are "unqualifiedly and unalterably opposed to the enactment of such a multiplicity of exacting, vexatious, and inquisitorial laws as shall check not only corporate but even private enterprise, ending finally in unbalancing the whole vast business interests of the country, eventuating in the twofold disaster of opening the great market of the United States to foreign-made goods at the same time while losing our own market to our own people, and depriving the United States of all hope of competing with other manufacturing nations in the markets of the world."

The letter says that it is not enough for this country to export our surplus foodstuffs and raw material. In addition to manufacturing for home consumption, Mr. Scales writes, we must also export manufactured goods in order to provide our people with work and to reach and hold supremacy in the markets of the world. Mr. Scales thinks that our rightful position in these markets can only be obtained and held by entire freedom of action. He thinks the country needs only a few statutory laws, and that these should be broad and unexacting. In his letter, he says:

"We are in the midst of a battle of the nations for trade supremacy, and we must be careful how we undermine and sap the energy and take the spirit and heart out of that multitude of business men and manufacturers who, with intent to wrong no one, nor break any laws, are yet put constantly in fear of some portentous and overshadowing law, often so ambiguous that even the courts cannot agree upon the proper interpretation, and yet when even the courts disagree the business community is held culpable to the point of criminality."

In concluding his letter, Mr. Scales says his organization does not want to be considered as opposing all legislation touching improper trade combinations.

"We favor such legislation," he writes, "but believe it should be approached and carried out with the greatest care, and we know of no better or safer way to obtain sound and safe trade legislation than through the disinterested help of a non-partisan Trade Commission. Consequently, we believe that all additional trust legislation should be halted until the appointment and organization of the Interstate Trade Commission and until its findings and recommendations are submitted to the President and the Congress."

R. S. French, the business manager of the league, said at 90 West Broadway yesterday that the indications are for large crops this Fall, and that when the crops are harvested a market ought to be ready for them.

"There is no falling off in business up to this point, so far as the league has been able to find," said Mr. French, "and we are anxious to hold the market open for the reception of the coming crops. Constant agitation drives money into hiding, and when there is no money in circulation there is, of course, no business. There has been too much talk of legislation, and business men have not been able to discover just what is intended, and so, as they cannot provide for the future, they are fearful that the future holds some danger for them. All we ask for is that the President will move slowly and take no action until the way is thoroughly lighted by the report of a competent and conservative commission."

CURB EXONERATES LEONARD

Pforzheimer Resigns as Result of Faction Fight in Association.

Months of strained relations between two factions of the Curb Association reached a climax yesterday when the members gathered at a special meeting which was marked by wrangling from beginning to end. At the close Carl H. Pforzheimer resigned as a member of the Board of Representatives and Chairman of the Listing Committee, giving as the reason dissatisfaction with the constant airing of differences whenever the brokers got together to discuss business matters. Mr. Pforzheimer has generally been considered as the leader of one party in the organization, while the other is headed by Secretary Franklin Leonard, Jr.

Yesterday's meeting was called in response to a petition asking that investigation be made of a charge that Mr. Leonard had been tardy in looking into the affairs of the Curb firm of L. D. Ketcham & Co. The head of this firm has been missing since it became known ten days ago that he had failed to deliver some $15,000 worth of stock purchased by three Stock Exchange houses. Ketcham has been suspended from the Curb.

Mr. Leonard read into the record testimony given by an employe of one of the Stock Exchange firms which was intended to show that Leonard had filed a complaint with the Complaint Committee after he had made efforts to have action started by those who suffered from Ketcham's delinquencies. The question of whether or not he had taken proper measures as soon as he should was argued for three hours, and in the end he was exonerated of any intent to delay an inquiry into Ketcham's activities by a vote of 40 to 37.

Frederick Schwed presented a resolution before the meeting adjourned, asking for a complete reorganization of the association. The matter was taken under advisement.

Lehigh Valley Lease Approved.

TRENTON, N. J., June 24.—The Public Utilities Commission today approved an application to lease the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company of New Jersey to the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company of Pennsylvania. The commission denied the application some time ago, but a new lease was drawn up which met with its approval. The road extends from Phillipsburg to Perth Amboy and from there to Jersey City.

WOOL MARKET STILL STRONG

Cotton Goods Steadier, Though Prices Have Not Advanced.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 24.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"The wool market remains very strong and active, the aggregate sales of the week amounting to 7,250,000 pounds. A feature which indicates that the wools are needed for immediate use is the fact that in the majority of instances requests are made for immediate shipment, showing that the stocks of old wools in the hands of manufacturers have been so depleted as to necessitate using the new clip to fill out their heavy weight requirements. Prices in the wool producing sections have maintained the high level of recent weeks, and in several instances, record prices have been paid for especially desirable lots.

"The wool and worsted yarn market shows slight improvement in spots, prices remaining very firm, though occasional reports are made of sales under the general run of quotations. It is improbable that any quantity of cheap wool is now held by spinners and a hardening of prices all along the line is bound to result from the use of wools purchased at present quotations.

"Knitting yarns are distinctly inactive, a natural state of affairs at this season of the year. Most of the mills are working on orders placed early in the Spring, new business being at a minimum. Conditions in the cotton yarn market are undoubtedly improving.

"The cotton goods market is steadier, though prices have not advanced. The demand for spot goods has strengthened materially, the majority of the orders placed stipulating much quicker delivery than is usually the case.

"Interest in the woolen goods market is centered in the new season's business which is now starting in earnest. Some serges have been opened at prices from 5 to 7½ cents higher than former quotations, but no large volume of business has as yet been accomplished. The spirit of optimism pervades the women's wear market."

TO GIVE POINTS ON WOOLENS

Government Will Exhibit Foreign Samples Here to Aid Manufacturers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—A special investigation of the markets of the world, with a view to determining the possibility of increasing the sale of American woolen and worsted fabrics, has been made for the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, by American Consular officers in various countries.

Detailed information has been gathered regarding the conditions of the foreign markets and the best methods of introducing American goods. Many samples have been collected. The countries covered in these reports include Canada and the West Indies in North America, Argentina and Chile in South America, British India, Ceylon, China, Japan, and Turkey in Asia, and practically all of Europe.

This information is to be made available to American manufacturers in manuscript form, and therefore the reports and samples will be exhibited according to the following schedule in several cities, where they may be examined by those interested:

Boston, June 25 to July 9—Chamber of Commerce.
Lawrence, Mass., July 15 to July 17—Board of Trade.
Lowell, Mass., July 18 to July 24—Board of Trade.
Worcester, Mass., July 27 to Aug. 1—Chamber of Commerce.
Philadelphia, Aug. 4 to Aug. 15—Commercial Museum, Thirty-fourth and Spruce Streets.
Passaic, N. J., Aug. 17 to Aug. 22—Board of Trade.
New York, Aug. 24 to Aug. 29—Branch office of the Bureau, Room 315, Custom House.
Chicago, Sept. 1 to Sept. 10—Branch office of the Bureau, Room 629, Federal Building.

DUTY ON GOATSKINS.

Treasury Department Finally Fixes It at 15 Per Cent.

The Treasury Department has given another turn to the troublesome question of the classification under the new tariff of China goatskin mats and rugs, by sending out an order to customs officials that from now on articles of this character must stand a 15 per cent. duty under that section of Paragraph 348, which specifies "articles of wearing apparel of every description partly or wholly manufactured, composed of, or of which hides or skins of cattle of the bovine species, or of the dog or goat, are the component material of chief value."

Last Winter the department notified the officials that the goods should be returned for duty under Paragraph 348 at 10 per cent. ad valorem by virtue of the similitude clause in Paragraph 386. The classification then fixed was as "plates and mats of dog and goatskins." The Board of General Appraisers also so held in the first protest case of the kind to come before it under the Act of 1913. The latest shift in the rate to govern the importations resulted from correspondence between Collector Malone and Assistant Secretary Malburn.

CAN'T SUE EMPLOYERS.

Compensation Commission to Protect Concerns Insured in State Fund

The Workmen's Compensation Commission announced a new ruling yesterday, under the terms of which the commission proposes to protect employers insured under the State fund for hazardous occupations from civil suits for damages by injured employes. The ruling was announced because of a report that the commission's policy was not to protect employers from suits by employes who might allege the act failed to cover their cases.

Section 53 of the Compensation act gave the employer full protection from damage suits, the commission said. By special resolution the commission set forth both the text and this interpretation of the section:

"All employes of an employer, whose business is a hazardous employment within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation act, are held by this commission to come within the provisions of the act, and therefore have no right to bring action for damages against their employer on account of injuries received in the course of employment."

⁂

A Garterless Stocking.

An enterprising Philadelphia hosiery manufacturing concern has brought out a garterless stocking, both for men and women. Patents have already been applied for. The men's garterless stocking is longer in the leg than the ordinary half hose. It comes to a point only a short way below the knee, or where the garter is worn ordinarily, and fastens with snaps similar to those on gloves. It can be adjusted to fit either stout or thin men. Comfort and neatness are said to be the leading selling points of the new hose.

⁂

Popularity of Serges.

As the season in dress goods advances an increasing demand is felt for serges. The adaptability of this fabric for use in manufacturing capes and tunics is unquestionably the main reason for its success. There is another point to be considered in favor of this material, and that is its staple quality. With the cutting-up trade more or less uncertain regarding the styles and cloth to feature, there is less chance to go wrong in selecting serge. With the popularity of this cloth on the increase, there is some talk in the market of price advances in the near future, and buyers will make little mistake in ordering their requirements at once.

Helping the Exporters.

The local branch office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is compiling an index of the exporters in this district. The names contained in this exporters' index are secured by the use of special forms which are sent to manufacturers and business houses interested in export trade. When the returns are made the information procured is carefully recorded. The lists so far prepared are utilized daily to distribute the bureau's various publications and to place in the hands of exporting firms that may be interested the confidential information relating to "Foreign Trade Opportunities." Similar compilations are under way at the branch offices located in Chicago, New Orleans, and San Francisco. Callers at the local office during May numbered 485.

Good Business in Wash Dresses.

In several instances manufacturers of wash dresses report that sales so far this month have been double those of last year for a similar period. This increase is due no doubt to the fact that the season was late in getting started. There has been, however, somewhat of a change made by retailers in their merchandising methods in this line. In the past a good part of the season's business was early in January presumably to supply customers wintering in Florida. The result was that a change taking place in the style between that time and the beginning of the Summer season would mean a stock on hand practically valueless. The practice now is to wait until the actual advent of Summer before ordering the bulk of the merchandise required.

Trade in Chinese Hair.

The trade in human hair from Hongkong, China, in 1913, was unsatisfactory, according to a report just made by Consul General Anderson. While the total shipments were somewhat larger, the prices were much lower, so much so in fact that many combers are going out of the business. Shipments during the year were 2,472,833 pounds, as against 2,349,566 in the year before. Of last year's, this country took 191,590 pounds, valued at $128,037, compared with 282,133 pounds valued at $328,973 in 1912. Many shipments to Europe, which took last year 1,852,800 pounds, eventually came here. The price of high-grade hair fell from an average of about $1.50 gold per pound for 16 to 26-inch counts to an average of about $1, while 26 to 36-inch counts fell from $3 to $1.90. Most hair now shipped is of low grade, used for mattress making and upholstery.

Dry Goods Man Needed at Panama.

The general manager of one of the local department stores has received a letter from Major F. C. Boggs, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., asking the store to recommend a man experienced in the conduct of department or chain stores to take a position as Inspector in connection with the Government's commissary stores on the Isthmus of Panama. Major Boggs is chief of the Washington office of the Panama Canal. The man who gets the job will have to be an American citizen under 45 years old, and will have to be physically sound. He must also be able to instruct employes on the fine points of selling goods and handling stock. The starting salary will be $200 a month, with free transportation to the isthmus and bachelor quarters there. The letter was posted in the store in question, and it is understood that several of the younger male employes of the store have made application for the position.

High-Priced Sweaters Sell Well.

There is said to be an unusual demand for high-priced knitted silk sweaters at the present time, some of these goods selling at retail from $25 to $50. They are made at this price both for men and women, and both lines are moving well from all accounts. The most popular model for women is one with a shawl collar and belted back, made Norfolk style. It retails for $35, but when sold with cap and sash to match it retails at $50. It is especially popular for wear at resorts and when golfing or automobiling. All of these knitted silk sweaters are said to combine lightness in weight with warmth, and are also said to be superior to the goods of this sort that are imported. They are made full-fashioned and on hand machines. By the manufacturer these sweaters are offered in all sorts of pastel two-tone effects, as well as in iridescent heather effects.

⁂

For Knitted Silk Goods.

Knitters of silk neckwear for men are finding it a lot easier nowadays to sell the grades retailing at $2, $3, and $3.50 than the cheaper sorts. While there was an unmistakable slowing up in the demand for knitted silk ties this Spring, there is every indication, it is said, that they will be in demand again in the Fall. This applies, however, almost entirely to the higher-grade merchandise of this sort. There is also a strong tendency toward wide imperial shapes in these goods for the coming season. High-priced silk hosiery for men, retailing at $1.50 to $3.50 a pair, are also in good demand at the moment. Iridescent heather effects for men, with hand-embroidered clocking, are especially favored. These effects retail at $2.50. One well-known firm is also bringing out a line of iridescent heather effects for women this season. Good business in knitted silk mufflers is also told of, with the tendency away from heavy, bulky effects. Lightweight soft goods will be in full vogue this Fall and Winter. The better grades will retail at $10 to $15 each.

⁂

The Gray Goods Situation.

There was a little more inquiry in the local gray goods market yesterday than on Tuesday, and a fair day's business was done. Staples continued quiet, however, and showed weakness in second hands. Some of the Southern mills also shaded prices a little on one construction, though on the whole the mills were firm in their demands for full figures. There was some movement of 39-inch 68-72s in second hands at 5⅝ cents, but the mills wanted 5¾ cents. Second hands offered 38½-inch 64-60s at 4 15-16 cents, and this figure was also quoted from the South. Eastern mills were firm for 5 cents, however, and business was done by them at this price. The Eastern mills also got 4⅞ cents for 38½-inch 60-48s; 39-inch 80 squares, which are held firm at 7 cents for contract, were offered at 6 15-16 cents for immediate delivery. A few sales of them were made on that basis. Drills and sheetings were quiet for the most part, but some sales of 36-inch, 48-52, sheetings were put through at 4¾ cents. Lawns were again active, both for spot and contract. Rice cloths were in good request for immediate delivery, as were piques. Voiles and organdies sold in a fair way for near-by shipment.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Cases Where the Facts Determined Duties to be Levied.

Salmon packed in ice are not "fresh fish" within the meaning of the tariff law, according to a decision made yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers in the protest case of the International Fisheries Company, Seattle. The salmon was classified at 1 cent a pound as fresh salmon under Paragraph 273 of the old law, and were claimed properly dutiable at three-quarters of a cent a pound under the same paragraph as "fish packed in ice." In sustaining the protest Judge Brown says a decision of the Customs Court relating to mackerel is controlling in the present case.

The board settled the classification under the old law of drill-testing machines and file-testing machines imported by Alfred H. Post & Co., Incorporated, Philadelphia. They were returned for duty as manufactures of metal at 45 per cent. ad valorem. Both classes of machines were claimed to be machine tools, subject to a tax of only 30 per cent. ad valorem. The evidence clearly established that the drill-testing machines are operated by other than hand power and are capable of cutting metal with the aid of cutting tools. Judge Fischer concludes that these are dutiable as claimed. It equally appeared that the file machines are incapable of cutting metal and cannot be regarded as in the category of machine tools. The Collector's assessment as to the file apparatus is affirmed.

So-called boule furniture, composed of metal and wood and consisting of tables, chiffoniers, and cabinets, will have to stand duty under the old act at 45 per cent. under the metal schedule. The S. & G. Gump Company, San Francisco, importers of the goods, claimed duty at 35 per cent. as manufactures in chief value of wood. The furniture contains a veneer of boule, a composition of wood, brass, tortoise shell, and mother of pearl.

J. P. Cahen & Bros. imported a large variety of veils, chemisettes, yokes, jabots, collars, fichus, bags, and neck frillings. They were returned by the Appraiser as cotton or flax lace articles, composed in part of laces, edgings, or insertings, made on the Lever or Gothrough machines. Duty was taken under the old act at 70 per cent. ad valorem. The importers claimed all of the merchandise dutiable at 60 per cent. as not made on the machines mentioned. After considering the evidence and inspecting the samples of the goods, Judge Howell decided that some of the goods were not made on the machines and sustained the protests to that extent. The balance of the importations must stand duty as found by the customs officials.

Mills & Gibb were partly sustained in protests relating to the classification of elastic cords, which were returned as in chief value of silk, with duty at 50 per cent. under the old law. The importers insisted that rubber predominated in the goods and that the correct rate is 35 per cent. An official analysis shows that some of the goods are in chief value of silk, while in the remainder rubber is of principal value. In each instance where rubber predominates the protests are sustained. The Collector's assessment as to the balance of the goods is affirmed.

It was decided that machines for sewing knitted fabrics together are properly entitled to entry at 30 per cent. as sewing machines under the old law. Collector Malone took duty at 45 per cent. as metal manufactures. The importers were P. C. Kuyper & Co.

Opens Summer Home for Children.

August Hechscher, head of the Zinc Trust, who has a Summer home at East Neck, Huntington, L. I., has donated the use of the old Prime mansion, at Main Street and Prime Avenue, Huntington, for children's vacations in the Summer. Beginning next Tuesday children will be sent to the old Prime house in groups of twenty-five.

TESTING FOR ALCOHOL.

New Working Tables Provided for Use of Customs Men.

The Treasury Department has amended its order of July 28, 1897, known as T. D. 18,209, so as to provide that in all cases of analysis of alcoholic preparations for classification of duty or for allowance of drawback, the alcoholometric tables in the Gaugers' Manual for 1913 are adopted as the official standard table for alcoholic determination.

Simultaneously with the adoption of these new tables, time and labor-saving formulas have been compiled by Dr. R. E. O'Zias of the United States Appraiser's Laboratory in this city, to expedite the work entailed by the constantly increasing number of samples of imported merchandise examined. Dr. E. R. Pickrell, chemist in charge, said yesterday that large numbers of wines and alcoholic preparations are examined daily in the laboratory, the number of tests per annum exceeding 15,000.

The older compilations necessitated certain calculations and references before obtaining the final result at the conclusion of each test. By the new compilation percentages are at once read off when the weight as shown by the analytical balance is known. These alcoholometric tables are being multigraphed in Appraiser Sague's office and will be supplied to all laboratories in the customs service.

BUSINESS NOTES.

About 70 men well-known to the typewriter trade will be in this city during the week beginning Aug. 17 to attend the annual convention of the branch managers of the Underwood Typewriter Company. They will come from all parts of the country. A short trip to Hartford, Conn., will be made for the purpose of inspecting the plant of the company in that city.

K. Silverman of K. Silverman & Lederer, manufacturers of negligees, kimonos, and similar garments, will leave for his annual trip abroad on Saturday on the Imperator. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Silverman.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE DISTRICT OF KANSAS, FIRST DIVISION, IN EQUITY, CONSOLIDATED CASE NO. 1,262.—UNITED STATES & MEXICAN TRUST COMPANY, ET AL., COMPLAINANTS, vs. THE KANSAS CITY, MEXICO & ORIENT RAILWAY COMPANY, ET AL., DEFENDANTS.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE AND SALE.

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to the decree of foreclosure and sale in the above entitled cause, made by the District Court of the United States for the District of Kansas, First Division, on the second day of February, 1914, and certain decrees ancillary thereto, duly entered in the several courts having jurisdiction of the several parts of the property hereinafter described, I, Bernard Kelly, as Special Master thereto duly authorized and empowered by the decrees above mentioned, will sell, in the manner hereinafter specified, at public auction, to the highest and best bidder or bidders, at the west front door of the County Court House, situate in the City of Wichita, Sedgwick County, State of Kansas, at ten o'clock A. M., on the sixth day of July, 1914, the following property of The Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway Company, to-wit: All the mortgaged railroads, property, rights, franchises, functions, immunities and appurtenances to the same belonging, rolling stock, corporate stocks, or bonds or interest in corporate stock, or bonds, contracts, choses in action, interests in any litigation affecting the mortgaged property or any part thereof, brought by or on behalf of said The Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway Company, or the trustee under its first mortgage, dated February 1st, 1901, or to which said trustee may for the time being be a party, property, premises and rights of every kind and description covered by and embraced in said first mortgage of said Railway Company, all of which are hereinafter referred to as Lot "A."

For a more detailed description of the property to be sold, prospective purchasers are referred to the aforesaid decree of foreclosure and sale entered in the above entitled cause on Februry 2nd, 1914.

At the same time and place I will sell, in the manner hereinafter specified, to the highest and best bidder or bidders, all other property of said The Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway Company, real, personal and mixed, rights, franchises, functions, immunities and appurtenances of every kind and description belonging to the said Railway Company and not covered by or included in the aforesaid first mortgage, dated February 1st, 1901, or subject to the lien thereof, all of which property is hereinafter referred to as Lot "B."

The said property, designated as Lot "A," shall be sold, free and clear of any liens or charges, to secure the payment of the outstanding receivers' certificates and receivers' notes, such lien or charge being transferred to the money to be paid into court to pay off and discharge said certificates and said notes and interest thereon, as in the aforesaid decree of foreclosure and sale provided, but subject to a lien to secure the payment of any other indebtedness, obligation, or liability which shall have been duly and lawfully contracted or incurred by the receivers in the operations of the railway properties in their custody and control, and also subject to the rights and claims of certain other persons or companies as in said decree of foreclosure and sale provided, if and to the extent to which the same may hereafter be established, and not otherwise.

Said Lot "A" shall first be offered for sale and bids received therefor; then said Lot "B" shall be offered for sale and bids received therefor.

Immediately after said Lots "A" and "B" shall have been offered for sale and bids received therefor, all the property constituting Lots "A" and "B" shall be offered together as a single lot or parcel and bids received therefor.

If the highest bid for all such property when offered together as a single lot or parcel shall exceed the aggregate of the highest bids received and noted for said Lots "A" and "B" when offered separately, as aforesaid, then all such property shall be struck off and sold together as a single lot or parcel to the purchaser making the highest bid therefor; and if no bid shall be received for said Lots "A" and "B" when offered together which shall exceed the aggregate of the bids for said lots when offered separately, then said lots shall be struck off to the highest bidders therefor when the same shall have been offered separately.

No bid for Lot "A" shall be received from any one offering to bid therefor unless such person so offering to bid shall have first deposited with me, as Special Master, as a pledge that he will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, the sum of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000.00) in cash or by certified check upon any bank or trust company acceptable to said Special Master, or bonds secured by said first mortgage or certificates of deposit of Columbia-Knickerbocker Trust Company therefor in the amount of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($500,000.00.)

No bid for Lot "B" will be received unless the person offering to bid therefor shall have first deposited with me as Special Master, as a pledge that he will make good his bid in case of acceptance, the sum of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) in cash or by certified check upon any bank or trust company acceptable to such Special Master.

No bid for said railroads, franchises, property, and premises embraced in Lot "A" less than the sum of Six Million Dollars ($6,000,000.00) will be accepted by said Special Master, and no bid for the property embraced in Lot "B" less than the sum of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) will be accepted by the said Special Master, and unless said sums shall be bid for said lots respectively, the sale will be adjourned.

Upon the acceptance of any bid for Lot "A" the person or persons making the same shall, after the application thereto of any amounts theretofore deposited by him or them in cash, make payment in cash to the Special Master within ten (10) days after the entry of an order of the Court directing such payment, of such amount as shall be necessary to pay and satisfy the costs in the above case, the allowances that shall be made, and any taxes which may be a lien upon the mortgaged premises; and such purchaser will also be required, upon confirmation of the sale, to deposit in such banks or trust companies as may be approved by the Court, the sums of money mentioned in the aforesaid decree of foreclosure and sale, dated February 2nd, 1914, for the purpose of discharging and satisfying the obligations specified in paragraph 19 of said decree.

The balance of the purchase price of Lot "A" not required to be paid in cash, may be paid either in cash, or the purchaser may satisfy and make good the balance of his bid in whole or in part by turning in to be paid and cancelled, or to have payment on account credited thereon, first mortgage bonds and coupons, and such purchaser shall be credited therefor on account of the purchase price with such sums in cash as would be payable on such bonds and coupons out of the proceeds of the sale, if the whole amount of the purchase price were paid in cash.

The amount payable upon the acceptance of a bid for Lot "B" shall be payable in cash, any moneys deposited to qualify the purchaser to bid being first applied thereon.

In case any bidder or purchaser shall fail to make good his bid upon its acceptance by the Special Master, by making any of the payments as hereinbefore provided in consummation of his purchase then the sums paid or deposited by such bidder or purchaser shall be forfeited as a penalty for such failure, and shall be applied toward the payment of the expenses of a resale, and toward making good any deficiency or loss in case the property shall be sold at a less price upon such resale, and for any other or further purposes that the Court may direct. If any sale for which a deposit has been made shall not be confirmed by the Court, such deposit shall be returned to the purchaser and the deposit of any unsuccessful bidder shall be returned to him when a bid other than that made by him shall have been accepted. The right is reserved to retake and resell the property upon such notice as the aforesaid Court shall direct in case the purchaser shall fail or omit to make any payment on account of the purchase price as hereinbefore required.

Upon payment of the purchase price by the purchaser or purchasers of said property, or his or their successors or assigns, or upon making such provision for the payment thereof as the Court shall approve, and upon confirmation of the sale, the Special Master making the sale will execute and deliver a good and sufficient deed or deeds and instrument or instruments of transfer, giving and transferring the property purchased to the purchaser thereof, or his or their successors or assigns, and upon the execution and delivery of said deed or deeds or instrument or instruments of transfer, the grantee or grantees therein named shall be let in to possession of the property and premises thereby conveyed and transferred.

For a more specific statement of the rights and property to be sold as aforesaid, and the terms and conditions of the sale thereof, reference is hereby made to the decree of foreclosure and sale entered in the aforesaid Court on February 2nd, 1914, as hereinbefore stated.

Gentlemen:

You probably will be interested in the result of our 31st Anniversary Sale which we advertised on the business page of "The New York Times".

We truthfully can say that it was the greatest success that we have had, not only in point of volume but also in attendance, in our entire thirty-one years of business experience. We feel that "The New York Times" contributed in no small way to the huge business we had, as no other newspaper was used to bring about this result.

We wish to thank you for the splendid treatment we received at your hands and for your co-operation in making our sale such a great success. While in no way solicited, we cheerfully recommend the business page of "The New York Times" as a most effective medium towards bringing in trade and we expect to use it frequently in the future.

Thanking you for past favors and trusting that further business relations will be just as satisfactory as they have been in the past, we remain

WATER-TIGHT DOORS OF EMPRESS OPEN

Naval Architect Thinks So, and Steward Testifies He Could Not Close His.

RUSH OF WATER TOO GREAT

Divers to Continue Work with Instructions to Save Bodies First, Then Mail and Bullion.

Special to The New York Times.

QUEBEC, June 24.—Percy Hillhouse, naval architect for the Fairfield Shipbuilding Company, builders of the lost Empress of Ireland, took the witness stand at today's inquiry into the great marine wreck. Asked to explain how it was that the Empress sank fourteen minutes after she was struck by the collier Storstad, he said that it was his opinion that water got into other compartments than the two boiler room compartments which were opened by the great blow of the Strostad's bow.

"You think, then, that some of the water-tight doors of the Empress were not closed," asked Mr. Newcombe, who is representing the Canadian Government.

"Yes," replied the witness.

This theory was borne out later at today's hearing when Frank Harrison, a second-class steward, was called and testified that he found it impossible to close the water-tight doors that it was his duty to close in an emergency. The inrush of the water made it impossible for him to work the doors, he testified. The gear would not respond when he tried it, he said. He heard doors closing in other parts of the ship, but he had to content himself with closing the portholes that were under his charge.

In reply to questions by Lord Mersey, Mr. Hillhouse said that the extra boats provided on the Empress following the Titanic disaster tended to decrease the stability of the vessel, but not to a dangerous extent. Five minutes, he said, should suffice for the closing of all water-tight doors, provided that every man got to his post without loss of time.

Would Have Remained Afloat.

"Assuming that the collision destroyed two bulkheads, and that the two boiler-room compartments were flooded, should the vessel have remained afloat?" Mr. Newcombe asked.

"Yes, if the water-tight doors were all closed," said the witness.

"What, in your opinion, is the reason the Empress sank so quickly?" was the next question.

The witness gave a long, technical reply, the gist of which was that in his opinion water got into compartments other than the two boiler-room compartments, causing the vessel to heel over and founder quickly.

He estimated that the Storstad's bows penetrated the Empress about eighteen feet almost exactly amidships.

In reply to Lord Mersey the witness said that he estimated that the breacn made in the side of the Empress by the Storstad below the water-line, had an area of 350 square feet, which would admit water at the rate of 265 tons a second. Here Mr. Aspinall said:

"This would cause a big initial list. The weight of the bow of the Storstad would accentuate the list and presuming that the collision dislodged one of the boilers of the Empress and caused it to roll to the starboard side, this also would increase the list. Water probably reached other compartments than the boiler room through water-tight doors which Stewards Hayes and Harrison found it impossible to close.

The Empress was such a well-constructed vessel that Mr. Hillhouse was at first puzzled to account for the rapid heeling of the ship. He had arrived at the conclusion that the Storstad struck the Empress at an angle of 80 degrees, nearly right angles.

Mr. Haight said that from data provided by the injuries to the Storstad, the expert he proposed to call had come to the conclusion that the angle of contact at the moment of collision was 40 degrees and that the speed of the Empress subsequently swung the Storstad's bow around, wiping everything off the forepart of the Storstad's deck.

Capt. Kendall recalled, answered several questions put by Judge McLeod as to the course followed by the Empress after leaving Father Point, and asserted that he took a course even safer than that usually followed by outward bound liners.

Diver Tells of Descent.

One of the most interesting features of today's proceedings was the testimony given by divers from the British cruiser Essex, who, since Friday last, have been making investigations respecting the position of the sunken liner and the feasibility of recovering bodies from the wreck. The two Essex witnesses called were Chief Gunner MacDiarmid, who was in charge of the Essex divers, and First Class Seaman Whitehead, who described descents made by him on Friday and Sunday. MacDiarmid said that observations made by his divers showed that the Empress was lying from northeast to southwest on the bed of the St. Lawrence.

The witness further said that his divers made no complaint about diving operations being difficult or dangerous, but he gave them orders not to attempt to enter the hull of the vessel, because he thought this too risky.

Diver Whitehead, who gave his evidence in a remarkably intelligent and modest manner, said that he descended to the wreck once on Friday and once on Sunday. He told how on Friday he remained below about forty minutes walking fore and aft along the port side of the vessel's hull for about forty yards. It was difficult to walk along the ship's side because it was lying at an angle of about 60 degrees, covered with thin slime.

Earlier in the proceedings Mr. Weatherspoon of New York was recalled at the request of Mr. Newcombe, who is representing the Canadian Government, and explained that he was Superintendent of diving operations on behalf of the Canadian Salvage Company, his instructions being primarily to recover bodies on behalf of the Canadian Pacific Railway; secondly, mail on behalf of the Postmaster General, and, thirdly, silver bullion on behalf of the insurers. Mr. Weatherspoon spoke in glowing praise of the divers of the Essex and their apparatus. Their gear he said was the finest procurable, and in their work, especially in their efforts to save Diver Cossboom, they displayed the bravery and skill traditional in the British Navy.

In reply to Mr. Haight, Mr. Weatherspoon said his instructions were to continue diving operations until all possible bodies had been recovered.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was informed this afternoon by Capt. Walsh, the Marine Superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, that the divers of the British cruiser Essex would return this evening to the scene of the wreck with the intention of resuming diving operations. With them goes Capt Staunton, Inspector of Life-Saving Apparatus for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

NUNS TO AID IN STEERAGE.

North German Lloyd Line Arranges for Two Nurses for Each Ship.

The agents of the North German Lloyd Line announced yesterday that, beginning with the sailing of the Barbarossa on July 2 for Bremen, there will be two Sisters of Charity on each liner to look after the welfare of women and children in the steerage.

Arrangement has been made with the mother house of the Franciscan nuns in Vienna to supply two Sisters for each liner, and they will be instructed by Sisters Maris and Josepha, who have had experience among immigrants. They will make the initial trip on the Barbarossa July 2.

This new departure, it is expected, will solve the problem of what to do with children in the steerage when their mothers are seasick. It was the work of Sisters Maris and Josepha as passengers on a North German Lloyd ship which gave the officials the idea to have nuns on every steamer.

Free "Movies" for Children.

In accordance with the plans of the new Church Entertainment Society to use churches for the entertainment of children who would otherwise be playing in the streets, there will be a free moving-picture exhibit, with organ music, in the old First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street, this evening at 8 o'clock. Two entertainments already have been given by the society. Among those who have had the work in charge are Cleveland Moffett, the Rev. Percy S. Grant, the Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, Mrs. John H. Flagler, and Mrs. Mai S. Thomas. On this evening's programme, in addition to other features, will be a historic story film and a nature study film showing birds in their native haunts. The next entertainment will be held at the Washington Square Methodist Church on July 2.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Forty-sixth Street Deal Near Fifth Avenue—Investor Buys Lorenz Hotel in Seventy-second Street—Bronx and Brooklyn Sales—$300,000 Harlem Lease—Business and Dwelling Leases.

The Forty-sixth Street block, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, which has witnessed a rapid transformation from private residences to business within the past two years, furnished an important deal yesterday which is likely to lead to a large improvement in the near future. The two old houses at 15 and 17 West Forty-sixth Street, having a combined plot of about thirty-five feet wide by 100.5 feet, were purchased by an investor through A. J. Robertson.

The buyer was unnamed, but it was stated that negotiations are progressing toward erecting on the site a fine nine or ten-story building to be occupied by a single tenant. The consideration for the property was between $150,000 and $175,000, as the great demand for stores in that street between Madison and Sixth Avenues has made the north side of the street worth about $5,000 a front foot.

The sellers of the houses were the Eleanor D. Just estate of No. 15, and Maria A. D'Oench of No. 17. The plot is nearly opposite the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church Building, the congregation of which is now worshipping with the members of the Baptist Church in Fifty-seventh Street.

Investors Buy Hotel Lorenz.

Realty activity in the upper Lexington Avenue blocks, which has been steadily increasing lately, furnished another evidence yesterday of the growing investment interest there in the sale of the old Hotel Lorenz on the north side of Seventy-second Street, adjoining the Hotel Premier, on the northwest corner of Lexington Avenue. The latter has a frontage of thirty feet on the street while the adjoining Lorenz covers a plot of 125 feet on the street by 102.2 feet deep, including the numbers from 125 to 133. The Hotel Lorenz is one of the older apartments on the upper east side, having been built about thirty years ago. The selling company, known by the numbers of the street, of which Walter E. Deuel is President, acquired the property at foreclosure in 1909 for $360,000, of which $285,000 represented mortgages at the time. Ferdinand E. M. Bullowa has an interest in the hotel, and has been managing it lately. The new owners are said to be a Philadelphia syndicate. Diagonally opposite, on the southeast corner, is the new twelve-story apartment house on the former site of the Freundschaft Club.

Private Dwellings Sold.

An investor has purchased through Senior & Stout, 140 West 136th Street, a three-story and basement brownstone dwelling on a lot 16 by 100 feet.

A Manhattan Bronx Trade.

The two-story building, 3,482 Park Avenue on a plot 50 by 100 has been sold by Adalena Bachman to H. Bruenich. In part payment the buyer gave 1,461 Washington Avenue, a three-story dwelling on a lot 18.9 by 140.

James F. Meehan sold 849 Southern Boulevard, a five-story twenty-family apartment house, on plot 50 by 100, held at $65,000, to Edward A. Mass. In part payment the buyer gives seventeen lots valued at $16,500, fronting on Broadway, Wood Street, and Blanco Place, near the new Jamaica station of the Long Island Railroad. Frank Jewell negotiated the exchange.

DR. VAUGHN PROVES NEW GERM THEORY

Disease Bacteria Not Forms of Vegetable Life, He Tells Medical Association.

CHARITY ABUSES ASSAILED

Physicians Accept 10 to 50 Cents a Call, Report Says—Paper on Heart Surgery.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 24.—Dr. Victor C. Vaughn of Ann Arbor, Mich., President of the American Medical Association, distinguished as a bacteriologist and investigator in the fields of bio-chemical research, made an important contribution to scientific knowledge when he announced today before a section of the association in convention here that the germs of disease are not forms of vegetable life, as had been generally believed and universally taught. On the contrary, he declared, it had now been proved that bacteria more nearly resembled low forms of animal life. This fact has been demonstrated by incontrovertible experimentation not only in Dr. Vaughn's laboratories, but independently by a European investigator.

In another section of the convention, that dealing with hospitals, the presentation of the report of the committee on hospital abuses of charity provided one of the real sensations of the convention. Incidentally the committee was subjected to criticism for its failure to make what the critics considered an adequate and comprehensive report.

Dr. Joseph D. Farrar of Philadelphia, Chairman of the committee, read the report in which it was stated that a large percentage of Philadelphia doctors received only 50 cents for office calls, others were consulted by patients at 25 an office visit, while still another class of physicians received patients in their consulting rooms at 10 cents a head. These financial concessions were made, according to the report, to keep patients from hospitals and dispensaries and to maintain practices.

Dr. Vaughn made his announcement relative to the origin of bacteria before the section on obstetrics and gynecology, which met this afternoon to consider the recently discovered serum diagnosis of physiological and pathological conditions, i e., serum diagnosis of pregnancy and cancer.

"We are taught by all the text books," said Dr. Vaughn, "that bacteria are low forms of vegetable life. This has been disproved. Bacteria are not forms of vegetable life at all. The cells of vegetable life have cellulose walls, but analyses of bacteria disclose the fact that no cellulose enters into their composition.

"Bacteria are more nearly related to low forms of animal life than to vegetable life. I would not, however, classify them as of animal origin, but would put them in a class by themselves. The fact that they are not of vegetable origin has been proved in my laboratories, and has also been demonstrated abroad.

Action of Bacterial Ferments.

"It has been believed that bacterial ferments digested living cells, but this view is wrong. There is no known bacterial ferment that will feed on live cells. After the germs of typhoid fever have been received into the body they begin to multiply at a tremendous rate, but during the first eight or ten days the recipient experiences no inconvenience from them. He feels all right. This shows that the bacteria do not feed on live cells.

"The invading germs, however, furnish ferments which do feed on non-protein material, provided by the body. Then the symptoms appear which are due to the action of the poisonous products of bacteria acting on and impairing the ferments in the blood."

It was expected that Prof. Emil Abderhalden of Halle, Germany, the biologist, whose announcements relative to serum diagnosis caused a sensation in scientific circles last year, would be present. He was detained in Germany by illness, and his paper, which furnished the keynote of the discussion, was read by another. It proved to be an extremely technical thesis, which provided no information additional to that contained in the brief cable dispatches published heretofore in THE NEW YORK TIMES. There was but little enthusiasm manifested by those who took part in the discussion, the consensus seeming to be that serum diagnosis was still in its infancy, more of a unique laboratory toy than anything else, that sometimes it was of value but that just as often it was of no diagnostic use whetever.

When Dr. Farrar read the report of the abuse of hospital charity, Dr. Hornsby of Chicago criticised it on the ground that it lacked detail. He said he had understood that the reason for appointing the committee was to get statistics referring to hospital and dispensary conditions all over the country. The statistics contained in the report, he argued, were chiefly of interest to Philadelphia. He maintained that the report was inadequate to be presented to the House of Delegates.

Dr. Farrar declared that a comprehensive investigation had been carried out, and that the committee had obtained statistics from New York City.

"If this section of the association is of no value," he exclaimed, "we ought to abolish it."

Here is the paragraph in the report which tells of the remarkably low fees for which Philadelphia doctors are willing to work:

"Recently it has come to my knowledge that a few years ago 10 per cent. of the physicians in Philadelphia were dispensing medicine, and today at least 80 per cent. are doing so. Fifty per cent. are only getting fifty cents for office consultations, 25 per cent. are getting twenty-five cents, and 3 per cent. are only getting but ten cents for the work, all for the sake of retaining their practices and keeping dispensaries and hospitals from getting their patients."

Surgery of the Heart.

Dr. Axel Werelius, a well-known laboratory worker of Chicago, read a paper before the section on surgery on experiments he had carried out with animals in surgery of the heart and lungs. This experimental work was similar to that described by Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research at the meeting of the International Surgical Association in New York last April. Here is a summary of Dr. Werelius's paper:

"This research comprises experiments undertaken to test the practicability of surgical interference of the heart and lungs in the human, not only in cases of injury but in ailments of these organs that are hopeless with ordinary medical aid. The experiments, all made under anaesthesia, demonstrate that injuries of the heart, seemingly of the most desperate character, may be successfully repaired surgically, so that no injury to the heart, however violent, should be considered hopeless. This research also demonstrates that abnormalities of the heart, such as a narrow opening between two chambers, can be corrected surgically, and that such conditions as are found in a so-called 'blue baby,' and which are now absolutely hopeless, will in the future be saved by surgical means.

"Of practical application to human patients is the observation that in grave injuries to the heart the heart sac should be widely opened, as the heart needs absolute and perfect freedom of action. Every part of the chest can be reached with comparative ease and safety. This work further demonstrates that removal of the entire heart sac causes practically no disturbance. New heart sacs were manufactured from tissue covering the intestines. Stab wounds, even multiple, entirely through the heart, caused only temporary tumultuous heart action. Knife punctures required suture, and healed rapidly.

"The heart chambers were cut into and sutured. Their interior was explored by the finger, and even inspected by the eye. The windpipe in the chest has been cut off and reunited. This was far more dangerous and difficult than the heart work. This, as well as some of the other work, has never before been attempted. Slight disturbances follow the heart work. Some of the animals jumped up and down the table half an hour after the operation, showing the marvelous recuperative power of the heart."

It should be stated that, whereas Dr. Werelius severed and reunited the windpipes of twenty-five cats, only one animal recovered. Dr. M. Clayton Thrush of Philadelphia, addressing the public health section, urged State control of all public eating places and the monthly physical examination of cooks, waiters, dishwashers, and other employes. He also said that employment agencies should be obliged to furnish health certificates with servants sent to private houses.

Dr. John Zahorsky of St. Louis, in the section on diseases of children, told of how poorly nourished children improved on a diet of lard and milk.

NEW Y. W. C. A. BUILDING.

Work Soon to Begin on Structure in Fifty-third Street.

The officers of the Young Women's Christian Association have decided to begin work soon on the new Central Building on a large plot at the southwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Fifty-third Street.

Donn Barber has been selected as the architect. The structure will be eight or nine stories high and will cost about $600,000. Among its features will be a large auditorium and a gymnasium with a swimming pool. The three upper floors will be devoted to educational work, art, commercial, and domestic arts schools. There will be a garden on the roof.

The present Central Building is in East Fifteenth Street between Fifth Avenue and Broadway, where the work has gone on for more than forty years. The change of the neighborhood from retail to wholesale business has been one of the causes leading to the removal, and larger quarters were needed also.

When the new Central Building is completed the entire block front on the west side of Lexington Avenue between Fifty-second and Fifty-third Streets will be given over to the Young Women's Christian Association work, as the National Headquarters Building, a nine-story structure, was erected on the Fifty-second Street corner two years ago. The new building will conform in architectural style with the National Building.

BOYS HONOR JACOB RIIS.

Commissioner Kingsbury Tells of Philanthropist's Influence.

Four hundred boys of the Jacob A. Riis Neighborhood Settlement, 48 Henry Street, met last night to pay tribute to the dead philanthropist. Harold Sherman, 11 years old, spoke for fifteen minutes explaining why the boys came to the Riis Home, and telling what was done for them there.

Then Charities Commissioner Kingsbury told how Mr. Riis had influenced his life. When he was only a bootblack it was "The Making of an American Citizen" that had aroused his ambition; when he was a country school teacher in the West it was a speech by Mr. Riis, which he had ridden forty miles to hear, that determined him to study at Columbia, and when he was graduated, it was Mr. Riis's personal advice which had induced him to accept a job with a social welfare organization, which Homer Folks had offered to him.

Assistant District Attorney William Dean Embree and Dr. Jane Robbins, Superintendent of the settlement, also spoke to the boys, urging them to follow the teachings of Mr. Riis.

Police Relief Fund $49,000.

It was announced at a meeting of those in charge of the Honor Roll Relief Fund held at Police Headquarters last night that the fund had grown to $49,000, almost all of which had come from the sale of tickets for the exhibition at Brighton Beach. President Fraser said that all but $12,000 of this was in the hands of the Treasurer. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., sent a check for $5,000 yesterday.

Bremner Left $30,000 Estate.

FLACK SAYS POLICE FORCED CONFESSION

Now Denies Part in Marino Murder and Tells Doubtful Story of Third Degree Beating.

NO MARKS OF ILL-USAGE

Magaluso Girl Gives More Details and Brings In One "Cockeye" of Marino's Gang.

The confession of Louisa Magaluso, the Italian girl who told Assistant District Attorney Breckenridge on Tuesday that she and not William Flack, now a prisoner in the Tombs, had killed Giuseppe Marino in her flat, 634 East Thirteenth Street, on April 6 last, is supported by investigation made yesterday by the police and detectives for the District Attorney's office. Flack has retracted his confession of the murder, and the police and detectives believe now that the girl's story is true.

"I was forced to say that I committed the murder when I was in terror of the police," said Flack. "I was afraid to say I was innocent when I was brought before the Coroner. I simply went to the flat to see a man I knew. I found the body of Marino. I told the police about it. They couldn't find anybody else, so they beat me until I said I killed him."

It was Detective Lieut. Deering of the Union Market Station who arrested Flack. He denied every charge of severity. Asked to tell what happened before and after the arrest of Flack, the Lieutenant said:

"The Desk Lieutenant was notified late on the evening of Saturday, April 10, that a body had been found in a flat on the top floor of 634 East Thirteenth Street. I was sent there with Detective Long. At the flat we found Patrolman Michael Sullivan.

"I asked the patrolman how he had learned the body was in the flat. He said, 'This man came to me on post and told me,' and pointed to Flack, who was standing at his side with an air of unconcern. I asked Flack what interest he had in the case, and he told me that the body had been there for several days. I asked him how he knew. Then he explained that he had looked through a window in the hall and had seen the body.

"When I investigated I found that the window was screened with a heavy curtain. I asked Flack how he could see through the curtain. He was puzzled and became evasive. I decided he knew more about the man's death, and I carried him down to the station.

"From Flack I learned the name of the Magaluso girl, who occupied the flat. He called her 'Maria.' I questioned him only a little further, when he became very communicative and told me he had shot Marino. Still I was not convinced by his manner. He seemed to be under the influence of drugs, and I warned him that he should be careful to tell the truth. He insisted he had shot Marino, but somehow I felt that he was lying to save the girl."

Assistant District Attorney Breckenridge said there was no reason whatsoever to believe that Flack had made a confession under duress. He saw the prisoner soon after he was taken into custody, and Mr. Breckenridge saw no marks or bruises to indicate that he had been beaten by the police. The Assistant District Attorney, however, said Flack seemed to be a nervous wreck.

Confined in the Tombs, the girl admitted to reporters that she felt more at ease than she had since the morning of the murder. After she shot Marino, she not only feared detection by the police, but she dreaded more than that the vengeance of Marino's friends. She feared particularly one "Cockeye," who, she said, was an eye-witness of the shooting.

The haunts of the underworld have been scoured by detectives for this "Cockeye," but thus far they have found no trace of such a person.

MAYOR VISITS THE ISLAND.

Finds Conditions Bad, but Praises Work of Dr. Davis.

Accompanied by Commissioner of Correction Katharine B. Davis, Deputy Commissioner Lewis, Chamberlain Bruere, and two secretaries from his office, Mayor Mitchel made a visit yesterday afternoon to the workhouse on Blackwell's Island and to Riker's Island. He said he wanted to get first-hand information concerning the crowding in the workhouse. Conditions, he said, were very bad. The cells were greatly overcrowded and the equipment was poor for taking care of the sick.

The Mayor said that Miss Davis was working on a plan to have the men prisoners in the workhouse taken to Riker's Island and put to work on a farm colony to be established there. He then paid this tribute to the work the Commissioner of Correction has been doing:

"I believe that the city has cause for congratulation in having Commissioner Davis in charge of its correctional institutions. I wish to announce now that there has been remarkable progress made in the department since Commissioner Davis and her Deputy, Mr. Lewis, have been applying standards of intelligence and penal administrative efficiency to the institutions under their care. The Department of Correction has always seemed to me to be the least understood and the most neglected of the city's departments. It was particularly in need of enlightened attention.

"Commissioner Davis's report on the work which she has accomplished during the last four and one-half months, which will be made public tomorrow, indicates that this department, which has been previously regarded as a department of jails, is now a real Department of Correction. Apparently, her department has known what to do, how to do it, and who could help, and has moved forward to accomplishment without hesitation. The policy of open publicity, regardless of whether the facts hinder or promote the departmental policies, has abundantly justified itself thus far."

BOATS COLLIDE IN THE FOG.

Red Bank Rams the Taurus, and Schooner Hits the Point Comfort.

The fog which blanketed the harbor for several hours yesterday morning and caused three collisions was the worst experienced around New York for several years. It disorganized ferry service at a time when commuters were on their way to work, held the outbound liners at their piers, and forced inbound ships to anchor for hours outside of Sandy Hook.

When the fog was thickest, about 8 o'clock, the ferryboat Red Bank of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, laden with 600 commuters, when about midway across the North River, crashed into the side of the steamboat Taurus of the Iron Steamboat Company and tore a hole eight feet long in her upper woodwork.

The violence of the impact smashed three windows in the cabin of the Red Bank on the port side and threw people from their seats. Fortunately, the broken windows were in the men's cabin and not on the side where the women and children were. Nevertheless, the ferryboat's passengers were greatly alarmed by the shock.

Capt. M. B. Allen of the Taurus said that the fog was so thick that he could not read the name of the Red Bank even when she was close alongside after the collision. He said that he had just avoided a ferryboat leaving the foot of Liberty Street for Communipaw when the Red Bank banged into him.

John Hashaton of 47 Walnut Street, Roselle, N. J., was standing between two automobiles in the teamway on the Red Bank when she hit the Taurus and was severely squeezed, but was able to go home after receiving medical attention. He was the only person injured.

The Taurus was taken to Pier A. She will be put in drydock at once for repairs.

At 2:30 A. M. a collision occurred between the ferryboat Wilkes-Barre of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and the Lakewood of the same company, but no damage was done.

The municipal ferryboat Bronx, on her way to Manhattan from St. George with 2,500 passengers on board, just after 8 o'clock, broke her rudder chains and spun around in the fog until she lost headway. The bow rudder was used to guide her up to the city.

The Cunarder Lusitania, which sailed at 6 P. M. on Tuesday for Liverpool with nearly 500 first cabin passengers, was held at anchor off Stapleton until noon yesterday, when she slowly followed the France out of the harbor. The Red Star liner Zeeland, incoming from Antwerp, was also held up till noon waiting for the fog to lift.

In the bay the schooner Samuel P. Bowers ran into the steamer Point Comfort, which runs from Keansburg, N. J., to the Battery. The steamer's wheelhouse was damaged, but none of her 300 passengers was hurt.

BARLOW'S CAR HITS A BOY.

Magistrate Not in It at the Time and the Boy Isn't Badly Hurt.

An automobile owned by Magistrate Peter F. Barlow of 10 Lexington Avenue and driven by Florin McDonald of 14 West 100th Street injured Robert Leiter, 14 years old, of 692 East 160th Street, in front of 769 Melrose Avenue, the Bronx, last night. The boy's injury was not serious, and in a short time he was able to go to his home.

While trying to cross the street Leiter was struck by the mud guard of the machine and knocked down. He suffered contusions of the head, and was treated by Dr. Feenberg of the Lebanon Hospital. The chauffeur, who was alone in the automobile, said that he sounded his horn to warn the boy, who apparently became confused and ran in the path of the machine.

A Word To Your New Clerks From You.

It's about the New Store which opens next Monday.

HERE is what we said to the clerks we have employed for you in the new Wallach downtown store at 265-267 Broadway, just below Chambers Street:

"You are here on approval, just as the Clothing, Furnishings and Hats in the Wallach stores are sold on approval, whether paid for or not.

So you can stay with us as long as you please our customers, who are your real employers. That is your first duty.

Selling merchandise is secondary. Remember, too, that pleasing a customer doesn't mean pleasing him only while he is in the store. He must never cease to be glad he came in. So tell him the truth always. Every man who comes into a Wallach store is a customer—whether he buys or not. So be as particular, as cheerful, in showing goods as in selling them. Be as glad to see the man who comes in to find an address in the directory, or to use the telephone, as though he had bought his complete Summer outfit of us.

Remember, you are here to give the people what they want—not to tell them what they want. Be quick, without being hurried. Be patient. Your time belongs to the customer—not to us, and least of all to you.

And bear this in mind: There is nothing in our line that any man wants that we won't get for him if we haven't it. Nothing is too much trouble."

WE said a great deal more. Maybe there are some other instructions you would like to give the clerks who are employed by you who serve you at the new Wallach store. We will faithfully transmit your instructions if you will send them to us. The store itself will be opened Monday. We shall be delighted to welcome you there.
